DEMOCRATS TO DEVISE OWN TAX PROGRAM IN FACE OF HOOVER PROPOSAL ON FINANCE

Woman Repudiates Testimony, Says Dailey 'Framed'

PLOT WAS HATCHED BY SISTER-IN-LAW OF LEE, IS CLAIM

Lucille Gann Says Testimony Before Court "Absolutely False" and Accuses Helen Davis as Instigator of Conspiracy.

"OTHER WOMAN" IS UNDER ARREST

Dailey, State's Witness in Lichtenstein Case, Bound Over on Murder Charge After Hearing.

After giving testimony, on the strength of which J. T. Dailey, principal state witness in the Bennie Lichtenstein murder case, was arrested and charged with murder, Lucille Gann, alias Mrs. J. H. Fowler, Wednesday night signed an affidavit in which she said that her statements before a justice of the peace court at Lakewood Heights earlier in the day were "absolutely false."

Shortly after Dailey was jailed a brother of Dailey swore to a warrant charging perjury and the Gann woman was taken into custody. In her affidavit she stated that she had attempted to "frame" Dailey at the instigation of a woman known to her as Helen Davis, said to be a sister-in-law of J. D. Lee, now under sentence of death in the Lichtenstein case. The statement said that the Davis woman said that Lee is a brother of Lee Bunch, now serving a gang sentence for a poker game holdup.

At the hearing before Justices of the Peace W. Y. Norman and Ernest Watts Wednesday the Gann woman swore she and Dailey went on an automobile ride on the night Lichtenstein was murdered and that Dailey told her of his intention to rob "a rich man on Ponce de Leon avenue, even if it takes blood."

Helen Davis Arrested.

The other woman, Helen Davis, involved in the Gann woman's affidavit, was arrested in the lobby of a downtown hotel on technical charges of suspicion.

Meanwhile Dailey was held in Fulton county jail without bond, awaiting action of the grand jury.

The justices of the peace decided to hold Dailey for grand jury action after hearing the Gann woman testify and after Harry Kosnofsky, under sentence of life imprisonment for his part in the slaying, had completely changed his previous versions of the crime, alleging that he had driven Dailey to the house where Lee had lived on the day following the killing, where Dailey "planted" two revolvers which were later found by detectives.

Dailey was arrested late Saturday night on a warrant sworn to by Arthur Powell, counsel for Lee, charging perjury and murder.

Charges "Third Degree."

Informed of the Gann woman's admission of false testimony late Wednesday night Powell charged that she was the victim of police "third degree" methods.

"Sturdivant," he said, "and the rest of his crowd have had that wom-

Innocent Man Denied Clear Record in Court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Jesse Lucas, who served 23 years in prison for a murder which another man confessed, today was denied a petition by the supreme court that his name as murderer be stricken from the court records. Such expunging of the records was beyond the power of the court, it was ruled.

"Necessity for finality in decisions is deeper than relief to an individual," the decision said, explaining that such necessity was a "basic principle in criminal jurisdiction."

LEADERS PREDICT ROOSEVELT DRIVE EARLY IN JANUARY

Definite Signs Apparent After N. Y. Chairman James A. Farley Discusses Situation Here.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Definite signs that a pre-convention campaign for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will be launched in New York early in the New Year were apparent for the first time Wednesday night, after James A. Farley, New York state democratic committee chairman, discussed the matter with southern leaders in Atlanta.

While the New York state chairman was "mum" on campaign plans and on the date when a drive will begin to corral delegates for the man now admittedly far in front of all other aspirants and plain native sons, his visit to Atlanta, after he had been Springs for a couple of days, left little room to doubt that the lid from the quadrennial pot will be lifted in January.

Within the last six months, Chairman Farley has touched every section of the country, politically speaking. Wednesday night he was more convinced than ever that Roosevelt will be the democratic nominee on the first ballot. About his own part in the campaign he had little to say. About probable issues he was even less loquacious.

However, this much is assured: Roosevelt may continue to "attend to the business of the governor of New York" up until the day the convention meets, probably in some city in the midwest, but his friends will organize a committee—probably a small one—to dust off the democratic presidential bonnet and toss it into the national ring. And it will be made to fit the head of Warm Springs' most distinguished resident.

It is expected, the political gossip goes, that something of the same strategy employed in the pre-convention campaign of Governor Alfred E. Smith in 1928 will be again used for his successor in 1932. There will be no campaign manager and, it is understood, only a small, compact committee confined to New York state friends of Roosevelt.

Chairman Farley himself attributed little significance to his Atlanta visit. He discussed with Governor Roosevelt only matters pertaining to New York "state affairs," he said. But the presence in Atlanta of more than one influential southern demo-

Woman Pedestrian Killed at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, 38, was killed today when struck by an automobile which, officers said, was driven by Quinn T. Foster.

Foster was taken into custody, but released on bond of $1,000 pending investigation. No charges were preferred and officers said the result of the investigation would determine if any would be made. Mrs. Bailey was struck down while walking along an avenue near her home.

Besides her husband, who lives at Trion, Ga., she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Anna Mann, of Columbus; her mother, Mrs. Viola Reese, of Columbus, and four sisters and one brother.

OFFICIALS NAMED IN EXTORTION RING

Sixty-Five Accused in Huge Conspiracy To Violate Prohibition Laws.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—(UP)—An alleged liquor extortion ring, operating as an "anti-narcotic crusade," which reached from the treasury department at Washington into public offices in Pennsylvania was disclosed today in two indictments returned by a federal grand jury here.

The first indictment named 49 persons. It accused them of conspiracy to give and receive money for alleged protection in violation of the prohibition laws and of conspiracy to violate the law itself.

The second indictment accused 16 persons, among them James T. Ford, alias Thomas J. O'Dowd, of Ohio.

The indictments touched Washington in naming John F. Downes, a "government employe," as "promising" to provide and as "providing" stationery, official letterheads and messages intended, according to the jury, to give the extortion scheme the semblance of authenticity.

With Ford and Downes, leading operators of the alleged conspiracy were named, including:

John J. Hefferon, member of the Pennsylvania house of representatives from Luzerne county.

John Vance, chief of police of Chester, Pa.

Abe Morgan, chief of police of Mt. Carmel, Pa.

William T. Ramsey, former mayor of Chester.

William W. Schultz, federal prohibition agent at Pittsburgh, Pa.

David Gould, federal prohibition agent in Virginia and a former deputy United States marshal.

Clarence O. Stout, a department of justice agent who reportedly assisted in the Al Capone investigation, directed the work which led to the indictments.

The plan, he said, was modeled on one in which Ford allegedly participated in Ohio and Michigan.

Public officials were induced in each section to introduce Ford as a government representative, according to Stout. Credentials were exhibited

Destitute Mother, 3 Children Facing Cheerless Christmas

BY ROY ROBERT.

Suffering and hunger, toil and despair—and wan-faced little children to whom the meaning of Christmas will be lost unless Atlanta responds to a call as serious as any demand of life.

Ten Opportunities, ten families in desperate need of the bare essentials of existence, are yours. Never have you had a greater opportunity for service to mankind than you will have during the next 10 days.

Opportunity No. 1 is yours today. Alongside this column you will find a story of adversity and ill fortune that will prompt your finer nature to give. Here is related life in its most terrible aspect, wringing from helpless people their last vestige of hope and lowering a weight of heartache too tragic to bear.

Winter Brings Suffering.

Following two days of bitter weather, no better time could be found to present the first Opportunity. The wind and sleet and rain whistled into houses Tuesday and Wednesday, swirled around the cold feet of the destitute and added one more trial to their existence, already filled with difficulty. That is only part of the story.

Hunger walks abroad and unashamed of his cruel grip. Hunger de-

Opportunity No. 1

He doesn't care about hard luck for himself, does Mr. B.—but when misfortune strikes him down, leaving his wife and three small children destitute of food, shelter and even the most ordinary comforts—then he cares!

Mr. B. was able to get along somehow until his health gave way. There were days when he was puzzled to know how he could earn money for the brood at home, but he always managed until he began to cough and his strength grew less and less, day by day.

Tuberculosis, the grey monster, looked through the window one morning and crushed the bit of hope he held.

There have been better days for Mr. B. and his family. Once he had a good job as truck driver. His earnings weren't large, but every Saturday night he could go home knowing that next week would find food in the larder and coal in the bin.

The business depression caught him as it did millions of others and he was laid off. He felt uneasy but he knew they could get along somehow. He could feel that way as long as he had strength to work. He began to peddle vegetables. Sitting up late at night he would shell peas and beans for the next day's trade. But his earnings were low—too low for plenty of good food for the children, his wife and himself. Lack of nourishment soon took a toll. The day came when hospitalization was necessary.

Three small children . . . a mother whose heart breaks because there seems to be no chance for them . . . a father too ill with a terrible disease to work . . . despair, hunger, cold and bitter want.

There is your opportunity, a family which $35 a month will rehabilitate. It isn't much, yet it is a lot to them. Only $420 for one year will provide milk and substantial food for the family.

Will you give?

8 Lost as Trawler Sinks in Quicksand

CAPE HATTERAS, N. C., Dec. 9. (UP)—An unidentified ship, believed to be one of three Gloucester trawlers which left Hatteras this morning, foundered on Diamond shoals today and dropped from sight in a deep quicksand bed.

Captain E. L. Newman, of Hatteras coast guard station, said tonight the ship, which had been in sinking condition when last seen by three lifesaving crews, which failed to reach her, unquestionably has been swallowed up by the sea and quicksand.

A trawler usually carries a crew of eight or nine men, he said.

PEACE PLAN WAITS JAPAN'S APPROVAL

League Expects Acceptance by Tokyo; Fresh Action Reported.

By The Associated Press.

Formal approval of the League of Nations' Manchurian peace program was held up last night because the Japanese delegate at Paris had not received instructions from his government.

The plan, calling for an international commission of inquiry, was presented at the first public council meeting in 18 days.

Although there was some possibility of upset, it was believed the Japanese would agree to the program at today's meeting, thereby winding up the present phase of the League's efforts to bring peace to Manchuria.

Meanwhile, action and reports of impending action came from the Manchurian battlefront.

Peiping announced two Chinese villages had been bombed by Japanese airmen.

Shanghai reported Japan had determined to force the issue at Chinchow and push the Chinese army south of the Great Wall.

Tokyo, on the other hand, declared the Chinese were preparing a drive to the east from Chinchow.

London heard that a group of 100 bandits attacked Japanese police who were escorting five foreign newspaper correspondents to Kungtaipu, 20 miles west of Mukden.

LEAGUE-AMERICAN PLAN FOR PEACE IS OFFERED

BY P. I. LIPSEY JR.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The council of the League of Nations came out into the open tonight after 18 days of secret negotiations and planked down the League-American compromise plan for peaceful adjustment of the Manchurian conflict.

The Japanese representative, who was "still without instructions from Tokyo," alone withheld approval of the peace program. Another open session will be held tomorrow, at which

London Paper Thinks U.S. Worse Off Than Britain

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover's message was given extensive first-page space in London newspapers today, but the Telegraph was the only one to comment upon it.

"Even when all the important factors of national difference are taken into account," the Telegraph said, "it is clear that the federal treasury is in a far worse position than the British exchequer."

DEMOCRATS TURN ORATORICAL GUNS ON HOOVER PLANS

Bankhead Promises His Party Will Offer Legislative Program Superior to President's.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—House democrats pulled President Hoover's legislative recommendations to pieces today, told the country what they thought of the fragments and heard themselves accused of sponsoring a dole.

Oratory pent up behind the walls of a nine-month congressional recess was unloosed in a forensic outburst that ranged from soft-spoken pleading to the shouted responses of heated debate.

The democrats started it by calling the president's message, up for discussion, while the house awaited completion of committee organizations. Huddleston, of Alabama, a democratic independent, was the first to speak and it was his remarks that brought out the dole charge.

Bankhead, of Alabama, a regular democratic spokesman, came back at his republican opponents later with a scorching speech in which he claimed the G. O. P. was responsible for the economic slump and said his party would soon have a carefully prepared legislative program to present.

Huddleston assailed President Hoover with charges he had failed to care for the unemployed. He advocated passage of his $100,000,000 relief bill introduced in the last congress. Huddleston said the president would lend money to railroads, banks and building companies but would not help needy people.

Quick to seize the opening, three New England republicans, Beedy, of Maine, and Luce and Underhill, of Massachusetts, charged the democrats sanctioned the dole.

Beedy asked the democrats if any of them opposed Huddleston's stand. Only one, Lamneck, a new member from Ohio, said "no." Bristling, Representative Oliver, democrat, Alabama, charged Beedy had asked a "cheap demagogic question that is unfair."

"You can't saddle the dole on us by our silence," Oliver shouted to Beedy. Oliver asserted Huddleston was speaking his individual views and not the party's policy.

Underhill leaped into the fray with a charge that "the democratic party

LeCraw Re-elected C. of C. President

Roy LeCraw was re-elected president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce for the coming year at a meeting of the board of directors Wednesday afternoon, it was announced. Four new members also were named to serve on the board, J. C. Robinson, secretary, said.

Sigmond Montag, president of Montag Brothers, Inc., and Arthur S. Bird, head of Roger's, Inc., were chosen to fill the positions on the board of directors made vacant by the resignations of William Candler and Milton Bell. Alvin Cates, president of the Adams-Cates Company, and John M. Slaton Jr., manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau, were named to the board to serve for the year of 1932.

Financial reports for 1931 and 1932 were read before the joint meeting of the directors.

WHITE HOUSE PLAN PROVOKES ATTACK FROM OPPOSITION

BURDEN TO FALL ON 1,700,000 MORE

Democrats Will Begin To Formulate Revenue Program Later This Week, Party Spokesmen Say.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Confronted with a Hoover-Mellon plan for hew and heavier taxation, congressional democrats were determined tonight to devise their own plan for replenishing the treasury.

Members of both parties gave a close and doubting scrutiny to the proposals for fractional advances on small income levies, steeper ones on big incomes and miscellaneous taxes such as those on tobaccos, automobile and radio sales, amusement tickets and telephone and telegraph messages.

The administration program would reach practically the whole public beginning the first of next month President Hoover and Secretary Mellon agreed it was imperative.

On Capitol Hill there was little challenge of the need. Next year's federal budget was submitted calling for slightly less than $4,000,000,000. If more money is not obtained, the president warned, the goverament a year from next June will be $4,442,000,000 behind.

Harrison Displeased.

One feature of the plan already certain to be stoutly contested is that which would make the higher scales apply on 1931 incomes. Senator Harrison, a democratic spokesman on revenue legislation, termed it "unfair."

The senate-house policy committee of the democrats will begin to formulate that party's revenue proposition later this week.

While republicans did not comment so uniformly, Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, expressed doubt that the plan would bring in sufficient cash, in view of further demands on the treasury at this session.

Secretary Mellon estimated 1,700,000 more people would have to pay on their incomes, if the lowered exemptions asked are granted.

He said the law suggested would add $2,230,000,000 to government revenues between January 1 and June, 1934, when the administration wants it terminated.

Essence of Program.

The essence of the administration program follows:

Individual net incomes up to $4,000, now taxed 1 1-2 per cent, would pay 2 per cent.

Second $4,000, net, now 3 per cent, jumped to 4 per cent.

Net incomes above $8,000, now 5 per cent, advanced to 6.

Surtaxes would start at 1 per cent for more than $10,000 net income, gradually increase to 37 per cent for between $100,000 and $200,000, and reach 40 per cent on incomes of more than $500,000.

Personal exemption levels would drop from $1,500 to $1,000 for single persons and from $3,500 to $2,500 for heads of families.

Exemption for each dependent would be $400.

Corporation income tax would be

Jane Addams and Dr. Butler Share Nobel Group's Peace Prize for 1931

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(UP)—Miss Jane Addams and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler have won the Nobel peace prize for 1931.

The award of $46,350 will be divided between them in recognition of their lifelong efforts in behalf of world peace.

Announcement of the award was made in New York tonight by W. De Munthe Morgenstierne, consul general of Norway. Through the United Press Morganstierne released a cable which he had received from Oslo saying that Professor Stang, president of the Nobel committee of the Norwegian parliament, had announced the award today at a meeting of the Nobel institute in Oslo.

Previous American winners of the peace prize include Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Elihu Root, Charles G. Dawes and Frank B. Kellogg.

Miss Addams, founder of Chicago's famous social service center, Hull House, was in Baltimore undergoing treatment at Johns Hopkins hospital when the award was announced.

Dr. Butler, president of Columbia University, was in New York.

Although the peace prize was worth $46,350 in 1930, it is estimated that because of the present exchange rate, the award this year will be slightly less, computed in dollars.

The award is made from interest accumulating on a trust fund of $9,000,000 bequeathed by the Swedish scientist, Alfred B. Nobel, inventor of dynamite. His will specified that prizes should be awarded annually to those who had most contributed to the benefit of mankind during the preceding year. Prizes of the same size as the peace award are given yearly to leaders in the fields of physics, chemistry, medicine and literature.

Culbertson and Lenz Confident, Unworried by Bridge 'Opinions'

BY H. ALLEN SMITH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(UP)—Several million contract bridge players and fanatics today ventured several million opinions on the first 10 rubbers of that epochal game of cards—Sidney S. Lenz versus Ely Culbertson.

To hear the experts, the quasi-experts and the pseudo-experts, the play so far in the battle of bidding system has proved everything and nothing, according to which side is talking.

But it is generally agreed that neither the team of Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, playing the official or 1-2-3 method, nor the Culbertsons, Ely and Josephine, have been entirely up to snuff.

Another point in the affair—the lead of 2,075 points acquired by Lenz and Jacoby—meets with universal agreement. Everybody agrees that 2,075 points in a match of 150 rubbers is nothing whatever to get excited about.

The Culbertsons, in the event of a grand slam bid, doubled and made, could wipe out the Lenz lead in one fell swoop, and have plenty of points to spare. By the same token, Lenz and Jacoby could bolster their present score with such a hand. It need not be said that fevers will run high when the first grand slam is bid and doubled.

Culbertson, whose cockiness in seeming adversity may be compared to that of Jack Sharkey, was the very essence of cheerfulness today. He and his wife scoff at the idea that they are being trimmed. They blame it all on the cards and insist that Lenz and Jacoby, even with good cards, have not realized nearly so much profit as they would "had they not been handicapped by their bidding system."

Lenz and Jacoby are equally serene about everything and maintain

CHRISTMAS CLUBS RELEASE $906,000

Big Holiday Season Over State Expected as Result of Savings.

A million-dollar boost to Georgia's holiday business is promised from Christmas savings clubs.

Nine Georgia cities alone reported Christmas savings of more than $906,000. This fund, most of which is primarily laid aside for the purchase of Christmas presents, the advent of cooler weather and the usual increase in buying for Christmas was expected by merchants to bring about a big holiday season.

Banking authorities estimated that savings in Georgia cities not listed among the nine reporting would bring the total well over a million dollars.

Savannah led the list in Christmas savings club funds with $350,000. Columbus came next with $205,000, while Phenix City, Ala., just across the state line, reported $30,000 additional. Atlanta's savings in clubs totaled $166,000.

Griffin had a total of $60,000; Augusta, more than $50,000; Waycross, $35,000; Macon, $20,000 and Valdosta and Brunswick, $10,000 each.

Bankers pointed out that depositors in many cities do not follow the Christmas savings club plan to any extent.

Santa Tangles in Tree After Parachute Leap

HARTFORD, Wis., Dec. 9.—(AP) Over this community Santa Claus did something never before credited to the genial old gentleman. He jumped out of an airplane and his parachute let him down on a big tree. His whiskers tangled in the branches, he was helpless until Carl Rhodes, proprietor of a greenhouse, raised a ladder. St. Nick climbed down and went to a Christmas party the Lions Club had arranged for children.

MORE MONEY SOUGHT BY RELIEF COMMISSION

Vigorous drive for additional funds and materials with which to carry on the work of the woman's department of the emergency relief commission was begun Wednesday by Mrs. M. H. Margeson, director.

Mrs. Margeson released a report showing that 542 children of Atlanta have been equipped to attend school through the clothing the department has supplied, and that many others have received partial help. The organization began functioning only a month ago. Fifty children at Formwalt Street school were given clothing Wednesday, it was said.

Students of the Atlanta Opportunity school who are taking sewing will begin working today to assist in the movement, and their efforts will be under the direction of Mrs. Margeson and her assistants.

Wednesday 18 members of the woman's auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, division No. 21, were at work at departmental headquarters on the seventh floor of the city hall.

"The largest contribution received by the woman's department has been $500 from the Sunday motion picture show," Mrs. Margeson said. "Other contributions have been in smaller amounts.

"Three yards of material will make a dress for a little girl; one and one-half yards of woolen will make a pair of pants for a small boy, two yards of cloth will make him a shirt. Put these little boys and girls on your Christmas list.

"Bargain counters of all the stores have sweaters priced very cheaply. Buy one for a little boy or girl. Send it to the woman's department of the emergency relief on the seventh floor of city hall.

"Address all donations to the woman's department of the mayor's emergency relief committee, seventh floor, city hall, Atlanta, Ga.

"There has never been the urgent need of immediate assistance which is now apparent. We know Atlantans will respond to this call."

At the invitation of Colonel J. C. Woodward, commandant of Georgia Military Academy, Lillian Newsome Crawford will present the West Side Harmonizers in a program of negro folk songs and spirituals in the assembly hall of the academy at 7 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Crawford also will present several vocal numbers, playing her own accompaniment.

Colonel Woodward invited the spiritual singers to the academy as part of the regular musical educational program of the cadets. The Harmonizers, a quintet, have appeared at numerous local functions, as well as over the radio, led by Annie Bell Hunnicutt, noted negro contralto.

Lovers of South's Picturesque Folk-Lore Assemble To Honor Joel Chandler Harris

BY ROY ROBERT.

They could not have been the grown-ups they appeared to be—those 50 people who gathered Wednesday at the Georgian Terrace hotel, heard stories of Bre'r Rabbit and Sis Cow, and laughed as only children can laugh at the lovable idiosyncrasies of Bre'r Fox.

They gathered to pay honor to the greatest writer of picturesque lore the world has ever known, Joel Chandler Harris, whose birthday anniversary it was. The luncheon meeting was given by the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, and assembled from all parts of Georgia those who love southern literature.

There were present children and relatives of Uncle Remus, relatives of Frank L. Stanton and Henry W. Grady, and those who cherish the memory of Robert E. Loveman. There were educators and ministers, writers and just plain everyday people who love the philosophy and quaint wisdom expressed in the delightful tales of the Little Boy and Uncle Remus.

Their eyes were knitted with crows feet and their heads were whiter than the blond locks of the Little Boy, many of them. They would tell you their ages ran from 40 to 77 years, most of them—but they couldn't be anything but children when their eyes lighted like that, in appreciation of lore.

Celebrated Throughout Nation.

The birthday anniversary of Joel Chandler Harris was celebrated throughout the nation by schools and literary organizations, but it is doubtful if any other gathering responded to the sentiment of the day in the manner of the Atlanta gathering. The abiding humanity of the writer and philosopher was told in words, halted now and then by a tear that sprang to eyes, which a moment before were sparkling with mirth at the pert actions of Bre'r Rabbit.

Intended as a double ceremony, to begin with the luncheon and end with the laying of four marble stepping stones in the new "Authors' Walk" at the Wren's Nest, old home place of Mr. Harris, the observance was marred by the unfavorable weather. Because of lowering clouds and drizzing rain—a day to sit by a log fire and hear Uncle Remus stories—the laying of the stones to memorialize Henry W. Grady, Frank L. Stanton, Robert Loveman and Mr. Harris was indefinitely postponed.

Colonel Paxon Presides.

Colonel Fred Paxon, for years chairman of the advisory board of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, presided as master of ceremonies and explained the purpose of the gathering. Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, life president of the association, gave the invocation and the assemblage sat down to hear new things of the influence of Joel Chandler Harris in world literature.

Sitting near the toastmaster and president were Lucien and Julian Harris, sons of the author; Mrs. Lucien Harris, Julia Collier Harris, author of "Joel Chandler Harris, Editor and Essayist," a new book, and Mrs. Eugene R. Black Sr., daughter of Henry W. Grady.

Following the introduction of notables in southern literature, Mrs. Olive Herty Lucas, of Milledgeville, gave readings of some of Uncle Remus' most delightful tales. Then came the revelation that lovers of Uncle Remus never grow up.

Memorial Sought.

Colonel Paxon related the early efforts of Atlantans, to erect a memorial to Mr. Harris soon after his death 23 years ago.

"We discovered that while we had been toiling along material lines to erect the memorial," he said, "we were forced to turn to that which pervaded Mr. Harris' writing—spiritual things." He then paid high tribute to the work of Mrs. Wilson and credited her with being the spirit behind the preservation of the Wren's Nest.

Mrs. Wilson described her 22 years' service to the work and related how $20,000 was raised to create the memorial. She paid tribute to her associates and Colonel Paxon and to the work of Mr. Harris.

"He is better known today just 23 years following his death than is Shakespeare 200 years after his death," she said.

Dr. Knight Speaks.

Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second Baptist church, and a newcomer to Georgia, was introduced as the principal speaker. He said he had long admired Georgia and Georgia traditions and had become familiar with the work the Memorial Association had done.

"Joel Chandler Harris was a teller of delightful stories," he said, "and we all become children again when we hear them. He means to us just what he means to children all over the world."

Dr. Knight then touched on the less discussed quality of Uncle Remus lore—the philosophic and spiritual angles.

"He was a portrayer of a picturesque period," he thoughtfully explained, "and developed some of the finest types in both master and slave that literature has revealed. He stands high above all other historians of plantation days and was a leader in constructive thought in the life of the south."

Paying tribute to Julia Collier Harris, biographer of Joel Chandler Harris, Dr. Knight said that her recent volume adequately revealed new phases of her father-in-law's genius.

Outdoor Ceremony Postponed.

The exercises at the Wren's Nest were indefinitely postponed and those visitors present will be notified at a later date when the stepping stones will be laid. During the luncheon it was announced that a joint program of the Atlanta Woman's Club and the Uncle Remus Memorial Association will be held Monday to pay special honor to Mrs. Wilson for her service in the memorial work.

Preceding the luncheon an election of officers was held—a mere formality because the work of each one permits no contest—and Mrs. Wilson once again was affirmed as life president. Others elected were Mrs. Hal Hentz, first vice president; Mrs. H. G. Hastings, second vice president; Mrs. Warren White, third vice president; Mrs. Brevard Montgomery, recording secretary; Mrs. Spencer Atkinson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, treasurer; Mrs. T. T. Stevens, assistant treasurer; Mrs. J. S. Nicholes, auditor; Mrs. Robert Blackburn, assistant auditor.

Out-of-town visitors present to participate in the stepping stone exercises were Mrs. Walter Lamar, Macon, president of the Sidney Lanier Society, and Mrs. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Terrell and Mrs. Crawford, Dalton.

CITY HEADS FACING MONEY PROBLEMS

Wells Likely Successor to Murphy; Bankers in Conference.

Mayor James L. Key and other city officials Wednesday turned their attention toward solution of the immediate fiscal problems facing the city government, and conferred with local banking officials.

It was predicted in city hall circles that Alderman J. Charlie Murphy will be succeeded in the 1932 council as chairman of the finance committee by Councilman James Leech Wells. Murphy is unopposed for the post of mayor pro tem., and for many years this honor has been construed to bar appointment to any major committee post. It is not contemplated that he is being relieved because of the financial difficulties in which Atlanta finds itself, because of his strong stand for economies wherever possible.

B. Graham West, city comptroller, said the meeting with the bankers Wednesday afternoon failed to produce any definite, concrete results, but that John K. Ottley, president of the First National bank; H. Lane Young, vice president and executive manager of the Citizens & Southern National bank, and W. B. Spann, vice president of the Citizens & Southern, are disposed to help the city in any way possible, but that they must confer with legal advisers before committing themselves to any plan.

The city owes the banks about $700,000 at the present time. If the amount is paid, the city will be unable to advance salaries of employes, estimated at $575,000, December 15, as has been the custom to aid in Christmas shopping activities. Under the law the amount must be repaid this year, and the banks cannot legally defer collections, it is believed. They could, however, accept tax fi. fas. held by the city in payment and the city could redeem them when it had the money.

Wells' selection as chairman of the tax committee appeared Wednesday to be a foregone conclusion in city hall circles. He has been a close advocate of administration polices during the year, and is known to be acceptable to the money interests of Atlanta, on whom it is expected the city will be forced to lean rather heavily within the next 12 months. The city will emerge from 1931 with a deficit of more than $1,000,000, it is expected, and will face 1932 with a prospect of having another $1,000,000 slashed from its revenues. This will mean that $2,000,000 must be absorbed.

Several suggestions already have been promulgated to effect this. One is to reduce personnel of various departments, bar public improvements and curtail expenses in any other way possible. A general culling of allocations to various departments is expected in the 1932 finance sheet. Schools, which draw a major portion of the receipts of the city, will be allocated all the money which they can expect for the entire year in the first finance draft, it was said, and must live within that amount no matter what it happens to be. Under the law the city must set up a minimum of 26 per cent of the gross receipts for schools.

Powers Blames 'Two Others' In Multiple Murder Plot

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 9. (AP)—Sitting in the center of a brilliantly lighted stage with the eyes of 1,200 spectators upon him, Harry P. Powers today broke down and wept as he told of an unhappy married life and blamed two mysterious strangers for the murder he is charged with committing and for which he is on trial.

His marital difficulties extended over four years, he said, and led him to join a matrimonial bureau, to send his picture and impassioned love letters to many women, and finally to call on some of his mail order sweethearts.

Both state and defense rested their cases during the day, and it was considered probable the jury would retire late tomorrow to decide whether the small town Casanova should be sent to the gallows for the first of the five killings he is charged with perpetrating in the subterranean death chambers of his windowless garage—that of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, divorcee, of Northboro, Mass.

Powers laid the responsibility on the shoulders of "two other fellows" whom he named as Cecil Johnson and Charles Rogers.

Rogers had a key and free access, the defendant claimed, to the so-called death house near the ditch where the bodies were disinterred.

He accused Johnson of stealing Mrs. Lemke from him in Uniontown, Pa. He never saw the divorcee after that, he said with a slight sob.

He had met Rogers near Canton, Ohio, in 1925, he explained, and he was "such a nice fellow," that the unhappy Powers told him the story of his marital difficulties.

The defendant, who pictures himself as a dashing cavalier in the love letters he sent around the country, told how Rogers showed him a matrimonial bureau list bearing the names of Mrs. Lemke and Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., who was also slain and buried near the Quiet Dell garage, along with her three children.

He said Mrs. Lemke had asked him to take her on a vacation trip to Paris, Ill., to visit some friends, with a stop in West Virginia en route.

HER STORY FALSE, WOMAN ASSERTS

an out all the afternoon when she should have been in the county jail. They have kept her out all night and late into the night. I believe her testimony, which she gave this afternoon at Lakewood Heights, is the truth."

Approached by Woman.

In her sworn statement late Wednesday night the Gann woman related that she had been approached by Helen Davis, who told her she was a sister-in-law of Lee, and that the Davis woman told her that "Dailey was the man who killed Lichtenstein. I asked her how she knew and she said Dailey was a police pimp and that he was a buddy of Sturdivant's and had put Lee on the spot so that Sturdivant could get him."

"Helen said, 'Do you know what I would do if Dailey didn't know me?' And I asked her what she would do, and she said that she would frame him (Dailey). She then asked me if I would frame him."

The method in which the alleged "framing" of Dailey was accomplished then is described in the affidavit.

Affidavit in Full.

The affidavit, in full, follows:

"Atlanta, Georgia.

"Wednesday, December 9, 1931, 7:50 p. m.

"Voluntary statement of Mrs. Lucille Gann. Mrs. Gann states that this statement is made of her own free will and accord. She also states that she has not been mistreated in any way or promised anything in order to get this statement.

"On either Sunday or Monday night of November 15 or 16 (Mrs. Gann isn't positive which one of these days is correct), Helen Davis approached me in my room, No. 24, at the Lakemont hotel, at 172 Spring street. Helen and I were talking about the Litchtenstein murder case and Helen told me that Lee was her brother-in-law, she having married Lee Bunch. Helen also stated that she married Bunch at the chain gang camp where he is serving a sentence for robbery of a poker game at the Robert Fulton hotel. Helen also stated to me that Lee Bunch was the brother of J. D. Lee, alias S. H. Compton, who has been sentenced to the electric chair for the murder of Lichtenstein.

"During the discussion of the case, Helen said that Lee wasn't any more guilty than I was. And I asked her who she believed was guilty, and she said that Dailey was the man who killed Lichtenstein. I asked her how she knew and she said that Dailey was a police pimp and that he was a buddy of Sturdivant's and had put Lee on the spot so that Sturdivant could get him. She also said that Dailey killed his own brother and that a man who would do that would do anything.

"Helen said: 'Do you know what I would do if Dailey didn't know me?' I asked her what she would do and she said that she would frame him (Dailey). She then asked me if I would frame him. I asked her how? And she told me to tell Mr. Powell that I met Dailey on the night of the murder (and tell him that Dailey and I went to ride and that we went out Spring street and bought a pint of whisky (on some street between Spring and Techwood drive) and then went on to the schoolhouse on Spring street, where we stopped and stayed about half an hour. I was supposed to have met him between 10 and 11 o'clock p. m., and that we then came back up Spring street and Dailey pointed a gun at me and took $3 away from me and told me that he was going out on Ponce de Leon avenue to rob a rich man. And that he asked me if I wanted to go along with him, that he was going to rob him if it took blood to do it. Helen also told me to tell that I saw a gun in car and that it was the big one. (She told me that there would be two guns in court and that I would be expected to identify the one that I saw in the car). Helen told me that if I would do this, that I would be well taken care of. That Lee and Lee Bunch both had money and that they would see that I was taken care of, provided that Lee did not go to the chair.

"Helen tried to get in touch with Mr. Powell and was unable to reach him. She then called Mr. Russell (who was one of Lee's attorneys) and asked him to come to the hotel at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, the 17th of November. I made the statement to him, as stated above. Mr. Russell then asked me to come to his office in the morning at 9 o'clock. I went to the Hurt building, where Mr. Russell has his office and he started taking my statement and decided that he did not feel well enough. So he asked me to come back the next morning and let his stenographer take it.

"I didn't go back. Helen was with me when I went to Mr. Russell's office. Mr. Russell told Helen to take me over to the courthouse and show Dailey to me so that I would be sure and recognize him. After we left Mr. Russell's office we went to the courthouse and Helen asked some man to point out Dailey to her and he did and she in turn pointed him out to me. She told me to be sure and take a good look at him for I would have to identify him in court.

"On Monday morning about noon, December 7, Mr. Jim Sibley, a newspaper reporter for the Georgian, came to my hotel and called for me and the porter came up and told me that some man wanted to see me. I went down there and met Mr. Sibley (I had never met him before), and he told me that he wanted to talk to me privately. I said all right, let's go to a little restaurant where I usually eat, at 174 Spring street. We went down there, and when we got there Helen was already there, so we went over to her table and sat down. Helen said to me that Mr. Powell wanted to see me, and I told her that I didn't want to go up there, and she said: 'Well, you know about it,' and I said 'Yes.' Mr. Sibley then spoke up and said that if you get into any trouble we will get you out. I told Helen again that I did not want to get mixed up in this thing. She said 'You know,' and gave me a wink.

"I wasn't fully dressed at the time we were talking and I went back to the hotel to dress, and when I came out Sibley and Helen were in a cab waiting for me. I got in and we went to the Citizens & Southern Bank building, to Mr. Powell's office on the sixteenth floor.

"Mr. Sibley told me to give him the statement that I had given to Mr. Russell.

"I told Mr. Sibley just what I have told you in this statement, or as near as I could remember.

"Mr. Sibley and I came on down on the elevator together. When we got to the front door Mr. Sibley realized that he had forgotten his coat and turned and went back for it. I went on to my hotel. Helen stayed in Mr. Powell's office.

"I did not hear any more about the case until this morning when Mr. Powell came to my room at the hotel and told me that he wanted me to go with him. I got up and dressed and went downstairs and got into a car with Mr. Powell, Mr. Sibley and another man. After the car started Mr. Powell handed me a subpena and carried me to Lakewood Heights to a justice of peace's court where Dailey was being tried.

"I testified in the case. I made the statement just as I have made it here as near as I can remember.

"My testimony in court, as well as my statement which was taken by Mr. Sibley is absolutely false.

"I wish to state again that this statement is made of my own accord, without any promise or anything.

(Signed) "MRS. LUCILLE GANN."

Sworn and subscribed to before me this, the 9th day of December, year 1931.

"H. L. PERRYMAN,

"Notary Public, State at Large."

Learned of Statement Monday.

Powell, counsel for Lee, in commenting upon the sudden developments of the case late Wednesday night, said he had not been aware that the Gann woman had made a statement to his associate, Marvin Russell. The first intimation he had of such a statement, he said, was upon his return to his offices Monday after a trip made to Canton, Ga., Sunday with Jim Sibley, a reporter of The Atlanta Georgian.

In Canton, Powell said, he had talked with Lee A. Bunch, in a Canton hospital as the result of injuries while serving a chain gang sentence for holding up a dice game in the Robert Fulton hotel. Buch, Powell said, informed him that "a woman named Dorothy" in Atlanta could give them information about Dailey.

Back in Atlanta, the attorney continued, they finally traced the Gann woman through Helen Davis, and she then informed him that she had made a statement to his associate, Russell—the first knowledge, Powell asserted, he had that such a statement had been made. Dailey had been arrested previously as the result of discrepancies in his testimony as principal witness in the Lee trial.

Kosnofsky Changes Story.

Kosnofsky's testimony Wednesday afternoon before the justice of the peace hearing also was sensational, and partly responsible for the binding over of Dailey. Kosnofsky changed his previous versions of his activities on the night Lichtenstein was murdered and said that he and Lee had been "sent" by Dailey and A. W. Peak to deliver six pints of liquor to Lichtenstein at midnight on the night of the murder. It was in Peak's home that Lee had lived during his brief residence in Atlanta.

Kosnofsky said that he walked into the apartment building where Lichtenstein lived, but did not go into the apartment. Instead, he said, as he was about to ring the doorbell he heard sounds of a struggle in the apartment and a shot was fired. He dropped the liquor, he testified, and he and Lee sped away from the scene.

The next day, according to Kosnofsky's latest statement, he drove Dailey to the home of Peak. Dailey was carrying a pasteboard shoe box in which two revolvers were concealed, and at the Peak home, Kosnofsky said, Dailey got out, went around to the rear of the house and returned to the car without the shoe box or the revolvers. He had "planted" them, Kosnofsky testified, so they would implicate Lee when they were found.

Dailey was charged with perjury in a number of instances in connection with his testimony for the prosecution when Lee was on trial for the murder of the grocer.

Three Instances Cited.

Three specific instances were cited by Powell to the justice court:

1—That Dailey testified he had been held up several weeks before the murder and that his automobile, his revolver, $275 in cash and a stickpin had been stolen, whereas Powell cited proof that Dailey had sold his car.

2—That Dailey, on the witness stand at the trial, testified he had no police record, whereas he was then under bond of $1,500 in a federal prohibition case in south Georgia.

3—That Dailey, on the stand at Lee's trial, denied that he had "tipped" Lieutenant Sturdivant on where Lee would be located, whereas Sturdivant had said that Dailey informed him he had a rendezvous with Lee on the corner of Courtland street and Forrest avenue a few days after Lichtenstein was killed.

Lawyer Corroborates Transactions.

Marvin Russell, associated with Powell in Lee's defense, late Wednesday night said that the Gann woman's affidavit, in so far as it described her transactions with his office, was correct, with the exception that she did not talk to him over the telephone, but that she talked to another associate, Julius W. Setz.

Solicitor-General John A. Boykin Wednesday night said that his office would give the latest developments in the case due consideration, and that it would be put before the grand jury if investigation of the facts warranted such action.

Mary of Lamb Fame Is Dead in England

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Hughes, who claimed she was the immortal Mary of the immortal little lamb that went to school, died at Worthing, England, today.

The London Express said she was 91 years old.

Her often repeated story of the writing of the famous verses by the wife of Senator Horatio Hale was that a lamb followed her to school when she was 8 years old. At that time, she said, Mrs. Hale, then Miss Sarah Buel, and her sisters were staying with the Hughes family at Ty Issa farm in Vale Llanggollen, North Wales.

Miss Buel was so amused at Mary's adventure with the expelled lamb that she promptly embodied the incident in verse.

Kingsford-Smith Flies To Rescue Yule Mail

Kingsford-Smith picked up the mail at Alorstar, Malaya, sent from Australia in the Christmas mail plane, Southern Sun, which crashed at Alorstar with indications that the mail would be stranded.

DARIEN OCEAN CANAL PLAN IS DISAPPROVED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Declaring existing waterways to be "adequate for much larger commerce than now exists," the war department in a report to congress today disapproved construction of a proposed channel to the sea from Darien, Ga.

The proposed route would be by way of Doboy sound, Sapelo sound or Altamaha sound and Brunswick harbor, the report stated.

Just ONE Question..

"HOW GOOD ARE THEY?"—THAT'S WHAT SMOKERS WANT TO KNOW ABOUT CIGARETTES

SMOKERS, nowadays, aren't taking things for granted. They're shopping around . . . asking questions.

Old man habit has been discarded . . . forgotten. "How good is it?" . . . that's what they want to know about any cigarette they smoke.

"HOW good is it?" Brother, you put your finger right on it!

You want a cigarette that's milder. You want a cigarette that tastes better. You want a pure cigarette. And above all, you want cigarettes that satisfy.

Now when you say that, you're talking Chesterfield's language—none other!

IT STARTS with fine tobacco. Chesterfield buyers are experts in the art of judging quality leaf. They can spot the finest tobacco in any country... and they won't take anything else.

You'll find the same painstaking care . . . the same skillful handling . . . in the curing, the blending, and the cross-blending.

Blended and cross-blended . . . that's Chesterfield! And what a difference it makes in the way it smokes and tastes!

JOHNSON TO FIGHT HOOVER DEBT PLAN

Californian Calls for Data on Foreign Investments as First Step.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—While a contest against President Hoover's moratorium proposal brewed today in the senate, the chief executive put the finishing strokes upon a special message asking its ratification which he will submit tomorrow.

The senate contest took the form of a request by Senator Johnson, republican, California, for an immediate inquiry into the extent of foreign bond and security purchases in this country. He is opposed to the intergovernmental debt holiday.

It was the understanding on Capitol Hill that the president's special message, dealing with foreign relations in general, will center particularly upon the moratorium. Mr. Hoover feels that the economic situation in Germany is of primary importance in the settlement of American economic problems. He was reported ready to urge that all reasonable and possible aid be lent that country.

The message as a whole will encompass the relations of the United States with much of the rest of the world. It was reported in one reliable quarter, however, that the Manchurian situation will be dealt with only in passing, because of the pending League of Nations' council discussions in Paris.

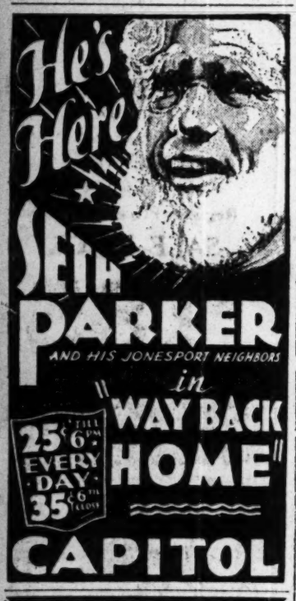

Estimated Yield Under New Taxes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The administration tax increases proposed to congress today would raise $390,000,000 in the remaining six months of this fiscal year and $920,000,000 next year. It was estimated these amounts would be obtained in this fashion:

	This Year	Next Year
Income tax increases	$ 83,000,000	$185,000,000
Corporation income tax	27,000,000	60,000,000
Miscellaneous taxes	205,000,000	514,000,000
Estate supertax.	None	11,000,000
Postal rate increase	75,000,000	150,000,000
Total	$390,000,000	$920,000,000

No estimate was made as to the amount which would be raised in the 1934 fiscal year, but the amount is expected to be more than that estimated for the 1933 fiscal year.

The increased taxes are therefore expected to bring the government at least $2,230,000,000 in the 30 months of its operation.

Hoover-Mellon Tax Scheme Analyzed by Levy Expert

In this article Secretary Mellon's program for increased taxation is analyzed by Professor E. R. A. Seligman, distinguished authority on taxation, who has served as expert adviser on various tax commissions. He is emeritus McVickar professor of political economy in residence at Columbia University.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—From the president's message we learn that the total expenditures, including the postoffice, will be approximately $5,000,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1932, and about $4,500,000,000 in 1933. We learn further that the deficit for 1931 will be about $1,000,000,000, that the expected deficit will be about $2,000,000,000 in 1932 and $1,500,000,000 in 1933 or about $4,500,000,000 for the three years.

This, however, does not include any possible readjustment of the allied debts which, if carried out, will swell the total deficit for the three years to about $5,000,000,000.

From Secretary Mellon's report we learn that the additional revenue to be expected from his tax proposals will reduce the deficit to somewhat less than $1,500,000,000 in 1932 and to about $500,000,000 in 1933. These, when added to the existing deficit of about $1,000,000,000 in 1931, bring the total expected deficit for the three years to $3,000,000,000 instead of $4,500,000,000, or, including the readjustment of allied debts, to $3,500,000,000. If the additional taxes yield, as estimated, about $1,333,333,333 for this period it will mean that the remainder of the deficit of $2,000,000,000 will have to come from loans.

This outlook is perhaps to be criticized in that too much is expected from taxes and too little from loans. During the war the ratio of taxes to loans was about one to five. It is at least questionable whether a similar proportion ought not to be followed now.

Open to Question.

At all events it is seriously open to question whether it is proper to continue the policy of retiring about $500,000,000 of bonds annually as the United States is doing at present.

It is, of course, true that this is technically required by the sinking fund law, but Americans must not forget that during the prosperous years of the last decade much more of the debt was retired than was called for by the sinking fund law. Is it wise to observe the letter of the law at a time when such excessive burdens are to be imposed on the community?

Let us not forget the history of the Civil War sinking fund. There also the law required an annual amortization of the debt and also during the prosperous years succeeding the war much more of the debt was retired than was called for by the sinking fund law.

When, however, the crisis of 1873 occurred, the various secretaries of the treasury, with the consent of the president and with the approbation of the congressional committees, decided to consider the provisions of the sinking fund law as advisory rather than compulsory, and, during the lean years after 1873, they simply stopped paying off the debt.

They also observed the spirit rather than the letter of the law and the consequence was that on the whole the debt was retired more rapidly than had been originally contemplated. Why should not the plan which approved itself in America's last great crisis be followed now? Why would it not be better to tax less and to borrow more?

Coming then to the revenue proposals of Secretary Mellon, they may be summarized under four heads:

The income tax, the miscellaneous taxes, the inheritance tax, postal revenues.

So far as the postal revenues are concerned, there ought to be no objection at all to the suggestion that the prospective deficit of $150,000,000 ought to be wiped out. An increase on letter postage to 3 cents would easily take care of this situation.

Coming then to the income tax, the change in the rate of the corporation tax from 12 to 12 1-2 per cent is so insignificant as scarcely to evoke discussion. On the other hand, the great increase in the rates of the personal income tax which are now made go back to the figures of 1924 seem to be unexceptionable. Most of the burden is put in the higher brackets and only a comparatively small sacrifice is called for in the lower brackets. Other graduations of rates might possibly be suggested, but in the main, the recommendations are sound so far as they go.

The only point that deserves serious questioning is the reduction of the minimum of exemption to $1,000 for unmarried and $2,500 for married persons. Much, of course, may be said for the theory that in an emergency like this everyone ought to do his share, but it must not be forgotten that it is precisely in a crisis like the present that incomes have been seriously reduced. Wages have fallen to such an extent and unemployment has become so rife that hundreds of thousands, nay millions, of American citizens have been reduced in their incomes to a figure ranging between $1,000 and $2,000.

To ask these unfortunates to suffer an additional burden seems to be unfair, especially when, as we shall see a little later, it could be avoided by a change in the general scheme of taxation.

Coming in the next place to the miscellaneous taxes, it must be said that on the whole they have been chosen with relative discrimination. Unless indirect taxes of some kind are utilized the rates on the direct taxes would have to be excessive. Moreover, the taxes that have been chosen are generally far better than the so-called nuisance taxes or taxes on consumption that were levied during the World War.

The suggestions, it will be remembered, are that additional revenues should be raised from tobacco taxes, from taxes on automobiles, from stamp duty on realty, from additional taxes on capital stock and on theater admissions, as well as from taxes on telegraph, telephone and radio messages.

The first point that strikes one here is that if prohibition were not in force, the taxes on liquor would have rendered unnecessary not only all these miscellaneous taxes, but all the other tax proposals of Secretary Mellon. The United States has voluntarily abandoned what is the greatest fiscal resource of virtually every country in the world.

Mellon Fights Estate.

We come finally to the inheritance or the estate tax. Here we meet with the inveterate and ingrained opposition of Secretary Mellon. It is well known that he has always been fundamentally opposed in principle to the inheritance tax, differing in this respect, it will be remembered, from Mr. Carnegie, who much preferred the inheritance tax to the income tax. Secretary Mellon is now willing to make a small concession and recommends that the rate of the inheritance tax be increased to a maximum of 25 per cent.

When it is recalled that the law of 1924 imposed a maximum tax of 40 per cent and that the rates of inheritance taxes abroad have now for a long time risen to a maximum of 50 per cent, 60 per cent, 75 per cent and even as in France to 98 per cent, it will be seen how moderate are the suggestions of Secretary Mellon.

Summing up the entire matter it may be said that the proposals of Secretary Mellon, while in the main admirable, are to be criticized in the following four points:

First, more ought to be raised from loans and less from taxes.

Second, far more ought to be raised from the estate duty.

Third, there should be eliminated at least the proposed taxes on telegrams, telephone and radio messages, on checks and even on theater admissions.

Fourth, there should be eliminated the proposed reduction of the income tax exemption.

U. S. DEFENSE BUDGET REDUCED $51,000,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover thinks national defense next fiscal year should cost $644,650,000, or $51,000,000 less than this year.

That is the figure his budget message to congress today recommended for the army, navy and marine corps.

Excluding items of a non-military nature, the war department's estimates totaled $302,944,000—some $34,000,000 less than at present. Those of the navy amounted to $342,606,000—more than $17,000,000 under the current year sum. The marine corps comes under the navy budget.

No enlisted personnel would be cut in either army or navy, but marine corps personnel would be cut from 17,500 men to 15,343.

The navy's decreases included $15,000,000 for ordinary expenses, $8,000,000 on short projects and $7,000,000 in construction of new ships and minor items.

The $15,000,000 savings on operation was offset, however, by a requested increase of $15,000,000 for modernization of the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho.

Aviation estimates for both the army and navy were decreased sharply as compared with 1932 appropriations.

Hoover Sees Tax Increase as Essential to Maintenance of Public Confidence in Government.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Sighting a $4,442,000,000 deficit for the government in three years of operation, President Hoover today recommended higher taxes to congress.

In his third annual budget measure he said:

"We cannot maintain public confidence nor stability of the federal government without undertaking some temporary tax increases."

For the 1933 fiscal year, beginning next July, he estimated $3,942,754,614 will be needed to run the government. Appropriations for this year were $52,271,920 more than that.

The president concluded with an emphatic warning against either congressional, private or organization activities toward an increase "in the drain upon public finances."

Protection of the financial integrity of the Washington government, he called "a necessary factor in the rebuilding of a sound national prosperity."

Treasury Deficit.

The tremendous deficit figure he used was arrived at by adding the $902,000,000 unfavorable balance for the last year to a $2,123,000,000 one expected this year, and an estimated $1,417,000,000 deficit in 1933. He left it to Secretary Mellon to outline the administration tax plan.

Balancing the budget for the present year being out of the question, Mr. Hoover wrote:

"We should endeavor by increase of taxes and rigid curtailment of expenditures to balance the budget for the next fiscal year except to the extent of the amount required for statutory debt retirements. We should assure its balance, including statutory debt retirements, for the fiscal year following.

"I recommend that congress provide for an increase in taxation for a definite limited period and upon the general plan of taxation which existed under the revenue act of 1924 with such changes as may be appropriate in the light of altered conditions. . . .

"It is proposed that this increase shall be definitely terminated in two years from next July. This plan, it is estimated, will realize $920,000,000 next year and thus meet the above conditions of balancing the budget for the fiscal year 1933 except for the statutory debt retirement. It would balance the budget including debt retirement in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933. It would provide about $390,000,000 for the current year, leaving us with the necessity of borrowing an amount which will represent a net increase in the public debt by about $1,320,000,000.

Nation's Experience.

"The plan of approximately re-enacting the revenue act of 1924 has the great advantage that the government is equipped by experience with similar legislation for its systematic and economical collection. The public has paid such taxes in the past and has found them not intolerable and has found that they do not prevent increased prosperity. By providing a definite date for termination of the temporary increase it will allow taxpayers to look forward to definite relief.

"I further recommend that congress inquire into the economic effect of the provisions of the present law relating to capital gains and losses."

Under the 1924 revenue act, a head of a family had only $2,500 exemption and a single person $1,000, instead of $3,500 and $2,500 as now. There was no 25 per cent credit provision for the tax on earned income.

If the presidential suggestion is adopted, normal income tax rates will be 2 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income, 4 per cent on the next $4,000 and 6 per cent on the amount in excess of $8,000, with surtaxes running from 1 per cent on net income of from $10,000 to $14,000 to 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000.

Existing Schedules.

The present normal rate of taxation on net income is 1 1-2 on the first $4,000, 3 per cent on the next $4,000 and 5 per cent on all above $8,000 with surtaxes of 20 per cent on all net income of over $100,000.

Corporations would be assessed 12 1-2 per cent on their income instead of 12 per cent and estate taxes will run from 1 per cent to 40 per cent. Admissions to any public entertainment will be taxed 10 cents on a dollar, except where the charge is less than 50 cents.

Estimates for the 1933 fiscal year carry $155,000,000 for construction, of which $120,000,000 is for the public building program being carried out by the treasury but which includes no new projects.

The president called for $644,650,000 for national defense, a decrease of $51,000,000, $60,000,000 for rivers and harbors; $11,369,500 for prohibition enforcement; and $1,072,000,000 for the veterans' administration.

Estimated appropriations for the shipping board showed a decrease of $36,972,000. For the farm board $1,880,000 was asked, a decrease of $100,020,000 as compared with appropriations this year.

The department of justice was allotted $53,900,000, an increase of $2,671,163 over current appropriations. The treasury would get $293,735,857, an increase of $24,000,000. All other departments showed decreases as compared with present year appropriations.

Three Factors Noted.

In conclusion, Mr. Hoover said:

"The welfare of the country demands that the financial integrity of the federal government be maintained. This is a necessary factor in the rebuilding of a sound national prosperity. This budget, with its recommended reductions in appropriations and increases in revenues, presents a definite program to this end involving three steps—first, a material reduction in the anticipated deficit for the current fiscal year; second, a relation between receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year 1933 which will avoid a further increase in the public debt during that year; and third, a balanced budget for 1934.

"To carry out this program, it is important to emphasize the fact that we are now in a period where federal finances will not permit of the assumption of any obligations which will enlarge the expenditures to be met from the ordinary receipts of the government.

"I am confident that the congress realizes this situation and will give it full consideration in passing upon matters which may contemplate any such additions to our spending program. To those individuals or groups who normally would importune the congress to enact measures in which they are interested, I wish to say that the most patriotic duty which they can perform at this time is to themselves refrain and to discourage others from seeking any increase in the drain upon public finances."

The president disclosed that for the present fiscal year, receipts originally estimated at $3,956,000,000 are expected to drop $1,717,000,000 below that, due to decreases of $1,140,000,000 in income tax collections and $202,000,000 in customs receipts among other factors.

The year's moratorium on intergovernmental debts withholds $247,000,000.

Expenditures for the year are expected to total $437,000,000 more than the original estimates, due in part to added benefits to World War veterans of $135,000,000 and speeding up public works to aid unemployment to the extent of $160,000,000.

In asking for the appropriations for 1933, the president said that every department had trimmed to the minimum

Mellon Figures Show Proposed New Taxes Hit Almost Everyone in Higher Brackets.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The administration tax increase plan With $1,310,000,000 to be raised by apply on this year's incomes.

Secretary Mellon forwarded it to congress today, calling for increased rates on personal and corporation incomes, inheritances, tobacco and capital stock sales.

New levies would be imposed on automobiles, radios, telephone, telegraph and cable messages, amusement tickets, checks and drafts and realty sales. Postal charges would be boosted.

Exemptions from income taxes would be lowered to include 1,700,000 new individuals within the scope of the federal levy.

The secretary of the treasury—backed by President Hoover—recommended the plan to take effect next month and terminate in June, 1934. With $1,300,000,000 to be raised by it in the coming 18 months, he termed the legislation necessary to meet "a real emergency."

"It must not be forgotten," Mellon wrote, "that the very ability of the government to borrow depends upon the conviction on the part of purchasers and holders of government obligations that the proper relationship between expenditures and receipts will be maintained. I am confident that increased taxation, clearly necessitated by emergency conditions, will meet the supporting response of our citizens to the needs of the government."

Intergovernmental Debts.

Secretary Mellon disclosed he soon will submit a bill for approval of the Hoover moratorium on intergovernmental debts. Among other recommendations in his annual report was one that, in accordance with the president's idea, congress allow the treasury $100,000,000 for further subscriptions to the federal land banks.

He renewed the administration suggestion that trade-area branch banking be adopted for national banks as "a solution, in a large measure, of our present banking difficulties," He challenged arguments that banking should be confined to political "or other existing artificial boundaries rather than to its natural economic lines."

The added taxes would begin on passage of the bill. As to incomes, the following scale would be in force for payments next March:

Now 1 1-2 per cent on net income up to $4,000, up to 2 per cent.

Now paying 3 per cent on the second $4,000, up to 4 per cent.

Paying 5 per cent on net income above $8,000, up to 6 per cent.

Scale of Surtaxes.

Surtaxes would start at 1 per cent on incomes between $100,000 and $200,000 and reach 40 per cent on incomes in excess of $500,000.

"Personal exemption for heads of families would be decreased $1,000, becoming $2,500. The single person exemption would be reduced $500, becoming $1,000. For each dependent $400 exemption would be allowed.

The earned income provision of present law, under which 25 per cent of the tax is credited, would be continued.

A half per cent would be added to the 12 per cent corporation levy of now, and the $3,000 exemption provision eliminated. It was estimated this would bring in $87,000,000 by the end of next fiscal year.

The recommendations on miscellaneous taxes were: "An increase of one-sixth in the present rates on tobacco manufactures and products except cigars; an increase of 1 cent in the existing stamp tax upon sales or transfers of capital stock; extension of the present tax on admissions through the reduction of the present exemption to 10 cents; a tax on manufacturers' sales of automobiles, trucks and accessories at 5, 3 and 2 1-2 per cent, respectively; a stamp tax on conveyances of realty of 50 cents for each $500 of value in excess of $100; a tax of 5 per cent on manufacturers' sales of radio and phonograph equipment and accessories; a stamp tax of 2 cents on each check and draft; and a tax on telephone, telegraph, cable and radio messages of 5 cents for charges in the amount in excess of 50 cents."

The secretary estimated the 1931-33 period, under present circumstances, would see a $4,440,000,000 deficit and the public debt lifted $3,250,000,000.

Objectives Outlined.

He set up these three objectives for the legislation:

Substantially to reduce this fiscal year's deficit.

Provision of adequate revenue to meet current expenses next year.

To balance the budget for the 1934 fiscal period.

No specific postal rate increase was proposed. Mr. Mellon only asked that it be sufficient to return $150,000,000 more annually, to offset the postoffice deficit.

At the same time he seconded President Hoover's warning against increased federal obligations, in these words:

"Additional expenditures for objects in themselves most meritorious should be judged in the light of the further burd n which they would place upon the economy of the nation and upon the public credit at a time of unusual difficulty.

"The taxpayer is asked to assume a large additional burden. He is entitled to know that the government on its part is so conducting its business as not to demand of him anything more than is actually necessary. The government is not an entity apart from the life of the people and it has no money to spend except what it gets from the pockets of the people. The treasury can not of itself create funds. Whatever it spends must be obtained either through taxation or through the sale of government securities, and the securities in the end must be redeemed by taxes. There is a limit to the extent to which the government, under our social and economic structure, may wisely divert funds from private employment to governmental use. When we take into consideration the mounting burden of state and local taxes, it is no exaggeration to say that we are approaching that limit."

Proposed Tax Changes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The amount of income tax a married person with one dependent will pay on 1931 income under the increases proposed by the administration is shown in the following table in which it is assumed that all income under $10,000 is earned and half of all income between $10,000 and $30,000 is earned:

Net Income	Present	Proposed	Increase
$ 3,000	$.....	$ 1.50	$ 1.50
4,000	11.13	16.50	5.37
5,000	12.38	31.50	19.12

GEORGIA LAWMAKERS PRESENT NEW BILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Georgia's representatives in the two branches of congress did their share of putting bills in the legislative hopper Tuesday as the nation's lawmakers prepared to get down to business.

Neither branch was ready to act on the measures, the house having no committees to which to refer the bills and the senate at that time unorganized.

The bills introduced, and their authors, included:

Representatives Vinson and Crisp, democrats, Georgia, would abolish the federal farm board.

Senator George, democrat, Georgia, offered a bill providing federal inspection and grading of tobacco.

Representative Tarver, democrat, Georgia, to provide paving of the Glass Mill road between Chickamauga, Ga., and Stephen Gap.

Representative Crisp and Representative Reilly, democrat, Wisconsin, to prohibit the use of public funds for the purchase of oleomargarine.

Representative Lankford, democrat, Georgia, to provide for the inspection and grading of tobacco by the department of agriculture.

Among other measures introduced were:

Representative Fulmer, democrat, South Carolina, to establish pecan experiment station near Orangeburg, S. C., and transfer the administration of affairs of the federal intermediate credit banks to the farm board.

Representative Steagall, democrat, Alabama, to increase the capital of the federal land banks by $100,000,000 to prevent foreclosure of farm mortgages.

Senator Black, democrat, Alabama, to extend the time of payments to federal land banks on farm mortgages and enable farmers to recover property foreclosed in the last year.

MRS. OWEN OFFERS BILL FOR EVERGLADES PARK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A bill to create a 2,000-square-mile national park in the Everglades of Dade, Monroe and Collier counties, was introduced today by Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida.

DEMOCRATS PLAN PROGRAM ON TAXES

increased from 12 to 12 1-2 per cent and the $3,000 exemption eliminated.

Miscellaneous tax recommendations:

Increase of one-sixth in present rates on tobaccos, except cigars.

Increase of 1 cent in stamp tax on sales or transfers of capital stock.

Extension of the present tax on admissions through reduction of the present exemption to 10 cents.

Tax on manufacturers' sales of automobiles, trucks and accessories at 5, 3 and 2 1-2 per cent, respectively.

A stamp tax on conveyances of realty of 50 cents for each $500 of value in excess of $100.

A tax of 5 per cent on manufacturers' sales of radio and phonograph equipment and accessories.

A stamp tax of 2 cents on each check and draft.

A tax on telephone, telegraph, cable and radio messages of 5 cents for charges of 14 to 50 cents and 10 cents for charges over 50 cents.

Secretary Mellon also recommended a super-tax on inheritances to bring in $11,000,000 for the last half of the 1933 fiscal year and an increase in postal rates to provide $150,000,000 a year.

Republican independents in the senate refused to accept portions of the plan. Senator Borah said he wants "some radical changes" before it gets his vote.

Late in the day Representative Hawley, republican chairman of the ways and means committee in the last congress, explained the income tax proposals to the house. He said these would affect 3,600,000 persons, of whom less than 300,000 would pay 2 per cent of the taxes.

The ways and means committee may get under way next week on putting the legislation into bill form. Protracted hearings are likely.

The democratic chairman of that committee, Representative Collier, declared himself against lowering the income tax exemptions to the 1924 basis and also to wide sales taxes.

Representative Rainey — majority leader in the democratic-controlled house—also objected to a sales tax as well as to raising the imposts on small incomes.

GRIM DEADLOCK HOLDS IN SENATE

Independents Firm in Refusal To Vote for Moses But Frown on Pittman.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A tinge of grimness attached itself today to the senate deadlock arising from the silent, unyielding opposition of western republican independents to the re-election of Senator Moses as president pro tempore.

The smiles of apparent cordiality which yesterday wreathed the faces of the principals in this deep-seated personal row faded as four more ballots failed to produce a majority for any candidate.

Not a word of debate was uttered. The independents, whom Moses called "sons of the wild jackass" when they joined the democrats in a tariff coalition, spoke only with votes. From their leaders word came tonight that tomorrow would see no change in the lineup.

Senator Watson, the republican leader, announced that if the deadlock continues through another day, he will ask the senate to adjourn until Monday and attempt to solve the problem by conferences.

Senator Moses himself maintained his rigid silence although some friends have implored him to tell the senate that he made no threat against the independents to oust them from their chairmanship if they took away his title of president pro tem. That is the basis of the fight.

Until the Moses row is settled the senate is tied up in a legislative way. This contest is the unfinished business. Unless there is an election Moses continues in office. So his foes are going to force a showdown and will try to compel either Moses to retire or the republican regulars to replace him.

ALIBI IS DEFENSE IN WILLIAMS TRIAL

Fate of Minister, Accused of Killing Son, to Jury by Friday.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Testimony by which the defense attempted to show J. M. Williams was not with or near his son the night the youth was slain near here was presented today in the trial of the former south Georgia minister.

Presentation of defense evidence started after the state had completed its case late in the day with the testimony of Maurice O'Neil, superintendent of identification of the New Orleans police department, that the bullet that killed Raiford Grady Williams was fired from the same gun the state alleged was in the possession of the boy's father about August 5 when the youthful sailor was slain.

The defense questioned the science of ballistics and asked O'Neil to make a test in the courtroom with bullets submitted to him. The ballistics expert refused to do so unless the defense paid him his usual fee. Judge A. L. Franklin upheld him in his contention and ruled the test could not be forced by the defense without payment.

The state rested and defense attorneys called H. H. Brown, Augusta attorney, who said the night before Williams' body was found in a mill yard near here he saw a young man transfer from one bus to another near Augusta and heard one bus driver tell the other the passenger was "going north." Young Williams, a sailor, was en route to join his ship at an eastern point after a furlough, when he was killed.

Brown said after veiwing Williams' body the bus passenger was "very much like" the slain youth.

J. O. Turner and A. A. Canady, Augusta policemen, said they saw a youth they later identified as Williams after seeing his body, in a restaurant here with two men about 3:30 a. m. the day he was killed.

Joe Lee, Cordele filling station operator, said the elder Williams was in his place of business about 10:30 p. m., "around August 1." He said he believed it was on Tuesday, August 4, but would not testify positively as to the date.

In Williams' first trial, which resulted in a mistrial, the defense sought to show he was so far away from Augusta on the previous night that he could not have been at the scene of the slaying.

W. H. Bland, of Mendes, Ga., testified that on August 4 he was returning home from Atlanta and that he passed an automobile near Macon. He said the same car passed him when he stopped between Vienna and Pinehurst and later he saw it in Cordele. He said, Williams, whom he had known for some time, was in the car at Cordele.

Court adjourned at 8 p. m., E. S. T., until tomorrow. Court attaches said it probably would be Friday before the case reaches the jury.

Other witnesses today included E. B. Skelly, of Norwood, Ga., and George Harris.

OPERATOR OF TRUCK KILLED ON HIGHWAY

CORDELE, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—J. F. Morgan, 45, who operated a motor truck out of Sycamore, Ga., was fatally injured today on the National highway 4 miles south of this city.

Morgan was en route from Tifton, Ga., northward, with a load of sweet potatoes, when the driver of the car, a man from Tift county, is said to have lost control of the machine. The truck left the highway, turned over in a ditch and pinned Morgan's body under it. His skull was crushed.

Morgan is survived by his widow and one child, who reside at Sycamore.

Centennial of Sumter County Draws Throngs of Celebrants

BY JACK TROY.
Staff Correspondent.

AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 9.—The 100th anniversary of Sumter county was celebrated with pomp and ceremony here today, despite overcast skies and showers that lasted through the morning.

General heavy rains throughout this section of Georgia making travel over the clay roads extremely hazardous, prevented many old residents and citizens of adjoining cities from attending, but the elements failed to spoil the spirit of the occasion and hundreds were here to celebrate the centennial.

The streets were gaily decorated with bunting and flags, and in the store windows there were valuable relics and antiques handed down for generations.

Although skies were overcast there was little rain in the afternoon and hundreds of people thronged the streets to see the wonderful exhibits on display in the store windows.

Beginning at 10 o'clock this morning with a band concert, a program of speeches and a barbecue, the program lasted far into the night.

Football Game.

A large parade featured the early afternoon program, followed by a football game between Bowdon State College and Norman Park Bears. Norman Park won, 12 to 6.

A pageant was held during the evening, lasting four hours, and a big dance at the country club ended the day's well-planned program.

Following a concert by the American Legion band, officially opening the program, celebrants went to the Rylander theater for several short addresses. Mayor James A. Fort welcomed former residents and outlined the history of Americus and Sumter county. Frank A. Hooper, Atlanta attorney and former Americus resident, delivered the principal address, reviewing Americus and Sumter county, past and present. He was introduced by Professor J. E. Mathis, superintendent of Americus schools. Rev. James B. Lawrence, rector of the Calvary Episcopal church, acted as master of ceremonies. Rev. Lawrence first suggested that Americus and Sumter county celebrate the centennial.

There was an address by Mrs. Marie Louise Myrick, of Savannah; another former resident, and Mrs. Carl Glover Jr. sang several numbers.

George Stanfield, dressed in a suit of red, white and blue, led the "parade of progress" through the downtown section. Floats depicting, step by step, the progress of the community from the day the first tree was felled in the forest to the present day passed in review.

There were ancient ox teams, commemorating the early days. A belle of the 60's rode gracefully upon a side saddle, accompanied by a modern miss, sitting astride her mount. There followed a scout of the early days riding a prancing steed. The automobile parade followed in line.

A wonderful spirit of civic co-operation was manifested. The American Legion Drum and Bugle corps, Boy Scouts and practically every business house in Americus were represented in this colorful parade.

A relic that attracted much attention and comment during the day was the court dress worn by William H. Crawford, ante-bellum candidate for president of the United States, when he was American ambassador to the court of Napoleon. It was exhibited by Mrs. W. H. C. Dudley, Americus.

The story is told here that Napoleon said of Ambassador Crawford's appearance before him, "He is the only proper person to whom I feel I should bow."

There were many other precious and interesting exhibits, including ancient candelabra, more than 100 years old; a handmade spread more than 150 years old, and a communion set of the American Presbyterian church which was kept in the Dudley home for many years and buried during Sherman's march.

Mrs. H. O. Jones directed the "Pageant of Progress," with a cast of 200 residents, and a large crowd packed the theater to see the interesting historical depictions across the span of a century, which began at 7 o'clock and lasted until nearly midnight.

A dance at Rylander hall was the closing feature of the celebration. Approximately 200 couples attended.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, of which J. O. Barnes is president, and the Americus chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, of which Mrs. Ernest L. Carswell is president, were sponsors of the centennial celebration.

SHOOTING DRY AGENT CHARGED TO GEORGIAN

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP) A man booked as "Buddy" Ware has been arrested here in the shooting of H. V. Colley, federal prohibition agent, in a fight at a still near here.

Ware was arrested by Sheriff Otis Coleman and placed in the Emanuel county jail. A negro known as Bill Hooks also was detained. Sheriff Coleman said the negro had been identified as one of those present when the officers attempted to raid the still.

Colley was accompanied on the raid by another federal agent, Jack Hicks. A bullet entered his cheek and lodged against the temple. It was removed yesterday and hospital attaches said he probably will recover.

ROOSEVELT PREPARES FOR RETURN TO N. Y.

BY BEN F. MEYER.
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Political conferences at the cottage of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt here today gave way largely to preparation for departure back to New York.

The governor and party plans to leave tomorrow morning after a two-week vacation in the pine woods here.

James A. Farley, chairman of the New York state democratic committee, who arrived Sunday for conferences with the governor, will join the party at Atlanta, where he planned to confer with Major John S. Cohen, national democratic committeeman of Georgia and editor and president of the Atlanta Journal, and Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. Farley said he desired to talk with the editors while in this section.

The governor received assurances of the support of Tennessee for the presidential nomination today, however, from James Trent, former mayor of Knoxville and "Uncle Bob" Smith, president of the Knox County Roosevelt-for-President Club.

Both men predicted that the normally republican east Tennessee would "go strong" for the New Yorker. They talked with the governor at his cottage here.

ALABAMA KIDNAPING IS LAID TO GEORGIAN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 9.—(AP) Ralph New, 19, of Lawrenceville, Ga., was held today in connection with the kidnaping and robbery November 30 of three men and a young woman.

New was returned by Birmingham detectives from Atlanta, where he was arrested following a traffic accident in which an automobile belonging to one of the victims figured. Two other occupants of the machine escaped.

The youth is charged with the robbery of C. R. Rushton, Miss Ethel Howard and Clyde Aderholt, drug store employes, and Bill Thomas, companion of Miss Howard.

The four were cornered after closing the drug store for the night and forced at the point of pistols and a sawed-off shotgun to drive Thomas' automobile to a point on the Leeds highway where they were dumped out and robbed of $43.

New claimed he was forced by his two companions to go through with the robbery against his will. He said they made him drive the automobile to Atlanta following the robbery.

Arrested Here Monday.

Ralph New was arrested here Monday by Detective George Barrett. He was held Monday night at Fulton tower and Tuesday was transferred to the police station, where he was turned over to Birmingham police.

FORMER BIBB DEPUTY INDICTED FOR ASSAULT

MACON, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—W. R. Moseley, former deputy sheriff of Bibb county, today was indicted by Bibb county grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to murder Clifford Cheatham, tenant farmer on his place, October 26.

The shooting occurred early in the morning, it was said, after some words between the two men. Moseley said that Cheatham was advancing on him with an ax handle when he fired, wounding Cheatham in the leg. Mrs. Moseley rushed the wounded man to a Macon hospital, and he was discharged a day or so later.

Cheatham was charged in a warrant sworn to by Moseley with assault and battery. Both men are under bond.

Twin Sisters, Aged 74, Together in Hospital

MACON, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Inseparable throughout their 74 years of life, the Misses Emma and Evva Woodruff today lay side by side on cots in the Oglethorpe private infirmary, each more solicitious of the other's welfare than of her own condition.

Miss Emma and Miss Evva are twins, and for many years they have operated the Home for the Friendless here. Last week Miss Evva, feeling low in health, took to her bed. Immediately Miss Emma developed similar symptoms. Now both are in the hospital.

"We want to be in the same room," Miss Emma told attendants, so two cots were placed in a room for them.

Since infancy the twins have never spent a night apart, she told nurses.

JUVENILE HOME HEAD AT MACON FOUND DEAD

MACON, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Jack A. Knox, 61, for the last six years superintendent of the juvenile court's detention home, was found dead in bed at his residence this morning.

The discovery was made by his wife when she called him for breakfast and received no response. Physicians summoned said death had occurred about 4 a. m., of an acute heart attack while he slept. He had been in poor health for several days.

He was born in Lincoln county, September 28, 1870, and had lived here 45 years. He was a member of Vineville Baptist church, and of the Masonic lodge.

Survivors include his widow, formerly Miss Rosa Anderson, of Macon; daughter, Mrs. G. B. Etheridge, and grandson, Jack A. Etheridge, of Macon; brother, W. B. Knox, Titusville, Fla.; three sisters, Mrs. H. D. Everett, Macon; Mrs. Cleo Roberts, Miami, and Mrs. L. J. Horton, Macon.

AGNES SCOTT TEAM DEBATES WESLEYAN

MACON, Ga., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Representatives of Agnes Scott College, Atlanta, tonight debated students of Wesleyan College in the Wesleyan assembly hall on the subject "Resolved, That American Civilization Is a Greater Menace to the World Than Is Russian Civilization." This was the first forensic tilt which has taken place between these two women's colleges for many years.

Miss Nell Brown, Savannah, and Miss Porter Cole, Lexington, N. C., upheld the affirmative side of the question for Agnes Scott, Miss Brown being the first speaker, while Miss Roberta Cason, Jewel, and Miss Cora Couch, Marietta, students of Wesleyan, argued on the negative.

GEORGIANS MURDERED, FLORIDA JURY DECIDES

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP) The charred bodies of J. R. Dickson, 35, and W. B. Quinn, 25, the latter with a bullet through his head, were found by neighbors following a fire which destroyed their home near Alachua early today. They were said to have come here from Savannah, Ga., five weeks ago.

Authorities first thought robbery was the motive for the indicated foul play, but later adopted the theory the men had been killed for revenge. They did not elaborate on what caused them to change their theory. Dixon's body was hardly recognizable from the burns.

Relatives at Savannah have been notified.

A coroner's jury tonight decided the two men had been murdered by unknown parties. H. L. Rockwood, foreman of the jury, reported no motive for the double murder had been established, however.

The bodies were charred beyond recognition. Rockwood reported, but tentative identity was established by teeth in the skulls, and bits of clothing found unburned under the bodies. However, Rockwood said "we would not stake our lives on the identity being correct."

Dickson and Quinn came here November 6, from Savannah, and rented a small house about two miles from Alachua, while they worked at construction on a house inside the city. Authorities reported they had paid for the lot, and building supply dealers said they had paid for lumber and other material as they received it.

Neighbors discovered fire in the house the two men occupied about 1 o'clock this morning and rushed to the scene. They reported a heavy odor of gasoline fumes about the place. Efforts to rescue the two men were futile.

Coroner J. T. Dykes and Chief J. Tyner, of Alachua city police, who were on the scene shortly after the fire was discovered, also reported smelling the gasoline fumes. Near the house they found a small bottle about three-fourths filled with chloroform.

ALABAMAN JAILED IN TROUP SLAYING

Man Held as Suspect in Mystery Drowning of Girl Last April.

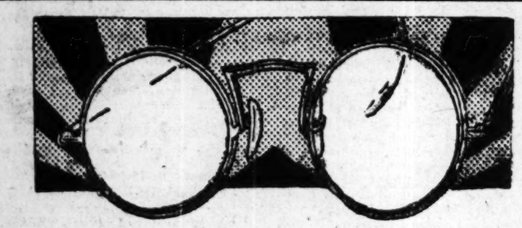

LAGRANGE, Ga., Dec. 9.—John Gay, 40, of Lee county, Alabama, was placed in jail here on a warrant sworn out by Lem Hornsby, of Roanoke, Ala., father of Miss Dovie Hornsby, who was found drowned in a fish pond near here last April. Hornsby says he has evidence that connects Gay with the woman's death.

The drowning of Miss Hornsby has remained a mystery since her body was found by Will Newsome in his fishpond. The body, fully clothed and bearing no marks of violence other than a tiny bruise on the head, had been in the water several days when the farmer discovered it. A coroner's jury at the time was unable to come to a conclusion as to how the young woman came to her death.

The young woman went to Lanett, Ala., spent the night with relatives there, and returned as far as a street near her home on a bus, and hadn't been seen from the time she left the bus until her body was found in the lake.

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 10, 1931.

COUNTY SCHOOL BONDS.

Petitions are now being circulated among the voters of Fulton county outside the city of Atlanta to authorize the holding of a bond election to secure funds for the erection of new school buildings in the rural sections of the county.

Reports already received indicate that these petitions receive many more than the necessary signatures to insure the holding of the election, which is proposed for the same date as the primary for county officers.

An election for the same purpose was held on May 23 of this year, the bonds failing by only 171 to receive the constitutional number of votes necessary. The desire of the people was clearly indicated at that time by the ratio of nearly five to one in favor of bonds, the vote being 4,615 for and 971 against.

Notwithstanding the severe handicap of inadequate, broken-down buildings the Fulton county school system ranks high in efficiency, its capable teaching personnel rendering splendid service under the skillful direction of Superintendent Wells and the county board of education.

But many of the buildings of the system are veritable fire-traps, with sanitary conditions threatening the health of every child attending school in them. The situation has become so intolerable that the school board has, at the suggestion of the September grand jury, decided to again put up to the patrons of the system the voting of a bond election of $700,000 to replace the old and antequated buildings with modern and efficient structures in which the health of the pupils can be guarded and their teaching properly directed.

The need for the bond issue has become even more pressing with the addition of Campbell and Milton counties. Double sessions are now necessary in some schools and others are badly over-crowded.

There is no possible doubt of the wisdom of voting these bonds and as soon as sufficient signatures are received to authorize the calling of an election there should be instituted a systematic and intense campaign to pledge every voter in the county to go to the polls and vote on the date set.

The stay-at-home voters defeated the authorizing of these bonds last May, and no stone should be left unturned to arouse the people of the county to the dangers their children are now being subjected to, so there will be such an outpouring of voters as will assure the passage of the bonds.

AMERICUS CELEBRATES.

The celebration by the hustling little city of Americus of the one hundredth anniversary of her founding was marked not only by the home-coming of many of her former residents, but by the friendly interest of the people of her sister cities in Georgia.

Few Georgia municipalities have had a more interesting history, nor retained more of the ideals and customs of the old south, than Americus. Born when the now fully developed section in which it is located was still a wilderness, it became the center of commerce and culture during ante-bellum days.

During the past half century it has steadily progressed until now it is a thriving, prosperous and happy community of 10,000 people, with splendid government, modern public buildings and up-to-date commercial concerns.

Georgia would be the richer if it had more municipalities like Americus, which with a history rich with business, political and cultural attainment, keeps step actively with every forward-looking development of modern times.

A TIMELY WARNING.

It is to be hoped that the autoists of Atlanta will pay strict heed to the warning of Lieutenant Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic squad, that unless the traffic ordinances are rigidly observed between now and the Christmas holidays there is certain to be a regrettable and inexcusable increase in accidents on the streets of the city.

Under normal conditions, the application of brakes or the sudden switching of a car may avoid an accident made imminent by the disregard of the traffic regulations. The inclement weather to be expected during the next three weeks and the crowded condition of the streets incident to the holiday shopping will lessen the possibility of avoiding such accidents.

More than ever, therefore, it behooves the careful driver to be on the watch-out for danger from violators of the various safety regulations.

And those not so mindful of the rights and safety of others should ponder whether, at this time of joy and happiness, they are willing to run the risk of bringing sorrow and deprivation to firesides around which eager preparation is being made for the coming holiday season.

A glaring headlight, an extinguished tail light or an ignored traffic signal is just as likely to bring about a serious accident as is speeding, and our autoists should rigorously observe ALL the ordinances during this, the most dangerous, traffic period of the year.

If they do not, Lieutenant Malcom and his squad have the proper remedy in the launching of an intensive campaign against those guilty of improper driving of any nature.

DAWES COMES THROUGH.

Proof of the diplomatic ability and wisdom of Ambassador Dawes is to be found in the remarkable change in the deliberations and decisions of the League of Nations, in the consideration of the Manchurian controversy, since the American representative at the Court of St. James showed up on the scene.

While not participating in the sessions of the league, Ambassador Dawes has been busily engaged in conferences with groups of its members, the results of which have been a marked clarifying of the situation and steady progress towards the reaching of a basis upon which Japan and China could get together to thrash out their troubles.

At the first sessions of the league, which were not attended by Ambassador Dawes, Japan's violation of its league obligations was rebuked and she was ordered to immediately evacuate the territory her troops had occupied. The unwisdom of this snap action, evidently taken without proper consideration of underlying conditions in Manchuria, has since been amply demonstrated.

With China unable to offer protection from the many thousands of bandits roaming the country, Japan naturally declined to place the lives and property of her nationals at their tender mercy.

Now with the league called back into session, and with Ambassador Dawes in the background, more intelligent recognition is being given to the fact that consideration of international relations in the far east, with its lack of stable government in many countries, cannot be put on the same basis as with nations where conditions of law and order are more permanent.

By driving straight at the fundamental facts in the situation Ambassador Dawes has cut short the round-about methods by which the average European statesman reaches a basis of agreement—and has conclusively demonstrated that in diplomacy, as well as bridge, the direct approach can be used to advantage.

Cuman-na-gaedheal, the government party in Ireland, was victorious in the recent elections, the vote for fianna fail, the republican party, being as much shorter as is its name.

Atlantans should let their Christmas lights so shine this year as to leave no doubt of their belief in the resurrection of good times.

Those bridge nerves in New York are being held in order—but just wait until the long grind of the "battle of the century" nears its end.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Petain Satisfied.

Marshal Petain told me before he set out for the Yorktown celebrations in America that he was going to make a protest in the United States against rumors circulated there that France was a vindictive military nation, the last remaining barrier to world peace and stability. He was going to trace the originators of these rumors, and ask the friends of France in America to take measures to stop this "evil propaganda" against his country.

The marshal did not need to travel that far away to find the men who are telling the world about France's militaristic inclinations. They are Frenchmen, and they live right in Paris. One of them, Monsieur Daladier, leader of one of the most influential political parties in France, declared in the marshal's absence that "France is the only country that has not disarmed by so much as a single man in the last 10 years," and Victor Margueritte, the famous novelist, who is also the son of a famous general, wrote above his own signature that France is the chief obstacle to disarmament.

Marshal Petain expressed himself as satisfied about his American visit. The source of the rumors wasn't in the United States, as he expected.

Eli Hameen Husseini.

The gentleman in Jerusalem who is calling a world Moslem congress together in that city is an old acquaintance. He is the grand mufti of the holy city, whom I visited several times in his gorgeous office overlooking the garden of the mosque of Omar. It was in September, 1929, that I paid my first call on the mufti. The Arabs had just murdered a score of helpless old men and women in Hebron and Safed and the first thing the mufti asked me was: "Whom do people hold responsible for that massacre?"

I answered him that in view of the inciting messages reported sent out by himself, everybody, including the British authorities, saddled himself with a good deal of the responsibility.

At this he jumped up and showed me his hands, saying in French: "There is no blood on these hands!"

It was a very dramatic gesture. And I had occasion to size the mufti up. He has marvelous blue eyes, like the saucers of Saxon porcelain. His beard is very blond and almost a silken red. His silken robes are of the finest and the coffee and cigarets he offered were ne plus ultra. He is only a boy, one might say, and there are others behind the scenes who manipulate the strings in Palestine.

Still if the grand mufti ever lost his job, of which there is no more likelihood than that I should become lord mayor of London, he ought to do well in Hollywood. He is a first-class actor and visitors who stopped with him in a Cairo hotel, where he walked on the roofs at dawn to say his prayers, eyes cast to heaven, told me that he looked like a modern Messiah.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 9.—It's quite the thing in Hollywood these days to explain whether you're talking about the stage presentation or the moving picture version of a new play. In fact, the movies are producing most of the latest stage hits so soon after their eastern premieres that it more or less kills interest in the play by the time it gets out "to the coast."

For instance, "Tonight or Never," with Gloria Swanson as the lead, was presented at a local moving picture palace before the stage version, with Helen Gahagan leading a New York cast, was through its run in a downtown theater.

Quite the reverse occurred with Edward Everett Horton's production of "Private Lives," which began a fifth week at the Hollywood playhouse before the celluloid edition, with Norma Shearer and Bob Montgomery was released in Hollywood. But then, Horton is so popular around here that he would probably have had a successful run with the play even had it come after the movie.

The next big attraction to break, both in the motion pictures and as a play, will be "Grand Hotel." The stage version is due later this month and will without doubt precede the film version, now under way at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Eddie Goulding as director, by some months.

At any rate, it's rather a thrill for those who don't get a chance to do "the season" in the east each year, to know that the days of waiting two or three years to see a current New York hit are over, and that the eastern producers have to send a company to the coast "pronto" if they don't want their play old stuff by the time it arrives.

And while we're on the subject of plays, Carl Laemmle Jr. is planning to produce "Left Bank," authored by Elmer Rice, and Luigi Pirandello's "Marriage Interlude."

Universal also owns "Laughing Boy," the Oliver La Farge story that should make an excellent vehicle for the screen. The world premiere of the dramatization of this novel, in which all the characters but two are Navajo Indians, will be held next month at Le Petit Theater De Vieux Carre, in New Orleans.

Lemist Esler, who recently left Hollywood, will stage the production.

At the same time that the latest and most sophisticated plays are being made in Hollywood, it is announced that Norma Shearer's next will be "Smilin' Through," which served as one of Norma Talmadge's most popular silent pictures.

It may be that Irving Thalberg and Louis B. Mayer, who know their pictures according to Wall Street financiers, sense a return to the sweet old-fashioned stories, and then again, it may be that they are wise enough not to allow Norma Shearer to be associated entirely with the type of ultra-smart roles that she has played in her last two or three pictures.

Culbertson Butler Watches Play From Enviable Position 'On Spot'

Editor's Note — Charles Natcett, euphemistically called William for euphony, is the bridge-playing butler to the Ely Culbertsons, who will resume their 150-rubber challenge match with Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby tonight. As butler, he occupies at the moment an enviable position in the bridge world—from which, while changing ash trays and performing sundry duties, he can see as they are played the hands held in the bridge "battle of the century" and observe the players. With special permission from his employers, he has written the following story for the Associated Press.

BY CHARLES (WILLIAM) NATCETT.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Not meaning to be disrespectful to Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby, but from what I have been able to see in this bridge match, Mr. Culbertson is by far and away the best card player.

I'd say that even if I wasn't the Culbertson butler, and I'd only say it a little more discreetly if I was the Lenz butler. Mr. Culbertson takes more chances in the bridge play than anybody else, and yet he is always safe. He is deliberate and he takes every point to his account.

Next to him is Mrs. Culbertson. There's not another lady in the land could stand the gaff of such a big match. Ordinarily I don't subscribe to the view that a lady can come up to a man at cards.

Captain Ernest Brown—he's head man of the hotel service and is helping me out during all this commotion—disagrees with me on that point. He believes a lady, and especially Mrs. Culbertson, can stand toe to toe with any man that'll flip a card. I tell him time will tell if a woman can keep up to snuff through the long period.

Ernest is considerably smaller than I am—I'm six feet in stocking feet—and he takes a different view on most everything, so it isn't especially significant.

So far as the hotel service is concerned, the captain is the most important of all the many reporters and experts covering the match. As soon as a deal is over, Ernest whispers the result to one of his waiters in the hall. The waiter takes it to the nearest bellhop and the bellhop rushes it to the elevator boy. Within a few seconds, Ernest tells me, the news is down in the boiler room.

There's one thing Ernest and I agree on perfectly. We don't believe good bridge can be played when there's any drinking going on, and I'm glad to say I've never been called upon to carry a drink to a bridge table since I've been the Culbertson butler.

I rather like Mr. Jacoby as a bridge player. He is quick and he plays his cards safe, and, while I still don't want to be disrespectful to Mr. Lenz, he seems to me a little erratic and uncertain in the play.

I'd like to place a bet on the outcome, but I can't get Ernest to take the Lenz end of it, even with odds, and Ernest says he can't raise a wager anywhere in the hotel. Everybody wants to bet on Mr. Culbertson.

So far, of course, Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby are a little in the lead—it doesn't mean a thing.

an attempt will be made to obtain Japan's support.

The heart of the plan worked out by representatives of the United States government and League authorities is an international commission of inquiry of five "big men"—including an American—to examine fully into all circumstances which may be at the bottom of the Sino-Japanese trouble.

The negative features of this scheme, which is embodied in a resolution and an accompanying declaration, are:

1. It leaves the Japanese military occupying most of Manchuria;

2. It declines to put the stamp of approval upon Japan's "right" to take military action against bandits; and

3. It fails to organize a no-man's land between the Chinese and Japanese armies.

It was understood that Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's delegate, would approve the program but would insist upon making a declaration setting forth the Japanese claim to the right to take anti-bandit measures.

TWO CHINESE VILLAGES BOMBED BY JAPANESE

PIEPING, China, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The bombing by the Japanese of two Chinese villages was reported today by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's headquarters.

Twenty-one bombs were dropped this morning on Chung Chia-tun, southwest of the Tawa station on a branch railway between Kaopangtze and Yingkow, the communique said, and seven bombs were released over Tawa, where the airmen also used their machine guns.

JAPS PLAN TO PUSH CHINESE SOUTHWARD

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Reports that Japan has decided to force the issue at Chinchow and push the Chinese army south of the Great Wall were circulated here today.

They came from the official Koumin News Agency and they predicted Japanese occupation of the area within two weeks. The agency reported Chinese military headquarters at Chinchow had been officially informed of this plan.

DRIVE EAST OF CHINCHOW REPORTED IN PROGRESS

BY JAMES P. HOWE.

TOKYO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A Chinese drive to the east from Chinchow was reported in preparation today by the Rango (Japanese) News Agency.

In an unconfirmed dispatch from Mukden, the agency declared the drive had been ordered by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed Manchurian governor.

The Japanese military intelligence department said Marshal Chang was encouraging irregular troops to continue sorties toward Mukden and into the south Manchurian railway zone.

BANDIT BAND REPORTED IN ATTACK ON JAPANESE

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Reuters News Agency reported from Mukden today that a group of 100 bandits attacked a party of Japanese police who were escorting five foreign newspaper correspondents to Kungtaipu, 20 miles west of Mukden.

The bandits were repulsed, the Reuters dispatch said, after sharp fighting, and there were no casualties.

TENNESSEEAN SLAYS DEPUTY, KILLS SELF

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Dec. 9. (AP)—Garfield Hoss, 48, former Carter county deputy sheriff, was shot and killed and Henry Perry, 38, died several hours later from what officers described as self-inflicted wounds following an argument today at Perry's home, 22 miles east of here near Shell creek on the North Carolina line.

Sisters of Mercy Plan To Celebrate 100th Anniversary

The one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Sisters of Mercy will be celebrated here Saturday by the Catholics of the city. Exercises will be held throughout the day at St. Joseph infirmary, it was announced.

The Sisters of Mercy, one of the best known organizations of its kind in the world, was founded in Dublin, Ireland, in 1831 by Mother Catherine McAuley. From the start the sisters have been noted for their kindness to humanity, regardless of religious belief.

The organization has grown until it is represented in every nation in the world. Its anniversary will be celebrated universally by its members and friends.

At St. Joseph's there will be an all-day program of devotion. High mass will be sung at 9 o'clock Saturday morning by the Rev. M. J. Cotter, S. M., and exposition of blessed sacrament will be held throughout the day. Solemn benediction will be observed at 5:30 in the afternoon.

Friends of St. Joseph's infirmary and of the Sisters of Mercy are cordially invited to be present at the devotional exercises.

BARTON IS CHOSEN DRY GROUP CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Dr. Arthur J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., today was elected president of the national conference of organizations supporting the 18th amendment.

The group, representing 33 dry associations, named Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Des Moines, and Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, vice presidents; Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, of Washington, secretary; Dr. Renwick H. Martin, of Pittsburgh, treasurer, and Ernest H. Cherrington, of Washington, chairman of the board of strategy.

Correcting an earlier announcement from an executive meeting that Mrs. Smith had been elected president of the conference, it was announced she was named head of the national temperance council.

Other officers elected by the council were Mrs. Ella A. Boole, F. Scott McBride, Ira Landreth, of Boston; Eugene L. Crawford, of Washington, and Dinwiddie, vice presidents; Colvin, secretary, and Boyd P. Doty, of Westerville, Ohio, treasurer.

The conference unanimously adopted findings reasserting the Anti-Saloon League warning that a vote by a member of congress to submit the 18th amendment to a referendum would be considered a wet vote.

'UNARMED' ROBBER LOOTS JEWELRY SHOP

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A robber who never showed a weapon stole jewelry valued at $17,000 today from the shop of the Clayton Jewelers, Inc., in upper Broadway, after locking up one of the partners and a window cleaner in the rear of the store.

'Shiner Choses Prison To Peaceful Existence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The lure of fist fighting proved stronger than a desire for freedom in the case of A. E. (Bud) Driver, 60, moonshiner of the Van Buren county hills.

Brought before Federal Prohibition Officer Al Reed today Driver was told he would be paroled on his four-month sentence for liquor making if he would pledge himself not to violate the law during the probationary period.

"Can I fight?" asked the veteran of many battles with the "revenoors." He was told he could not.

"I'll quit making likker for six months," Driver said shaking his head, "but I'll be danged if I quit fighting."

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THTE DOCS AND THE ORTHODOX.

September 22 we printed a note in this column to this effect: I shall be glad to give the formula to any medical colleague who asks for it AND INCLOSES a STAMPED ENVELOPE BEARING HIS ADDRESS. I cannot give the technic of the ambulant treatment for hernia—the only way a doctor can get that, I believe, is by taking personal clinical instruction from a colleague who is skilled in the method.

That offer let us in for a lot of gratuitous work.

In the first place, a lot of near-doctors, drugless healers, quacks of various types, had the gall to ask for the formula. They had short shrift. When I say medical colleague I don't mean trick healer or shortcut "doctor." I mean a regular physician. When I say colleague I don't mean any quack or obscure or shady practitioner; I mean a doctor of medicine of good professional standing.

Incidentally I believe it would be for the good of the order if many of the orthodox would cut down their cigar bills and subscribe to one or two good medical journals and look them over now and then and learn what's going on in medicine. This applies especially to the orthodox who have such rackets as "clinics" to help them bamboozle the grand old public, the wisacre public.

In the same talk, September 22, I said I am not yet prepared to give correspondents the names of physicians who are using the ambulant or injection treatment for hernia, but that I expected to have a list of names before very long.

Well, my list at present is not by any means complete, but I do know of a good man here and there about the country who is qualified to give this treatment, and I shall be glad to name the nearest physician I know for correspondents who seek this treatment.

Any doctor who is capable of giving the sclerosing or obliterating injections for varicose veins can give this injection treatment for hernia in his office, without detaining the patient from his regular occupation.

Once more I must warn laymen against quacks or incompetent physicians who employ any secret or semi-secret formula or nostrum or proprietary preparation for these injections, for the very fact that a doctor uses a semi-secret nostrum is sufficient evidence that he is not worthy of your confidence.

DEMOCRATS TURN ORATORICAL GUNS ON HOOVER PLANS

has abandoned the entire principles of Thomas Jefferson for the principles of Karl Marx."

Luce shouted he hoped his republican colleagues would tell the country, "the keynote speech of the democratic party delivered by the gentleman from Alabama (Huddleston) advocated the dole. The democratic leader knew what he was going to speak about and indorsed the speech." Turning on the trio, Huddleston denied the democrats knew what he intended to discuss, adding:

"They attack me as a demagog because their mental poverty keeps them from arguing my ideas," Huddleston said. "They talk about Karl Marx—why, some of them don't know the difference between socialism and rheumatism."

Defending Hoover, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, former republican leader, said the proceedings were an "unusual exhibition and one which will not bring much encouragement to the country as to what to expect from the party now in control of the house."

Coming to the rescue of the democrats, Bankhead declared Huddleston did not attempt to commit the party to the dole, but was merely trying to point out "the suffering that has been caused as a result of 10 years of republican control."

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ended the debate by calling Hoover's proposals constructive and appealed to the members to unite in support of a program.

LEADERS PREDICT ROOSEVELT DRIVE EARLY IN JANUARY

erat, not all Georgians, was generally interpreted as intended for the purpose of smoothing out things below the Potomac before definitely starting something above it.

Difficulty Not Anticipated.

Ardent supporters of the New York governor anticipate none of the difficulties that beset the Smith preconvention campaign, difficulties which contributed heavily to democratic defeat in 1928. For one thing, they point out, there is no anti-Roosevelt bloc forming in congress and there is no serious alarm over the possibility of one forming later. There is only—and that very restricted—a little chatter about "heading Roosevelt off."

Political custom would dicate the naming of Farley as the head man for the pre-convention campaign. This is neither improbable nor assured. Many details remain to be worked out, one of which is for some one to obtain an admission from Roosevelt that he wants to be president. Another month probably will see the machinery for nominating a presidential candidate in full motion.

BRIDGE EXPERTS NOT PERTURBED

that the present score simply indicates the way the battle is going and will continue to go.

The third session, beginning with the eleventh rubber of the match, will get started tomorrow night in Culbertson's apartment at 7 o'clock. The principals, however, did not spend today resting, as might be supposed. Lenz had to scurry down to his office (he's vice president of a weekly magazine and writes on bridge). Jacoby, who is an actuary, had plenty of business matters to get cleared up, and the Culbertsons celebrated a day of leisure by going to Staten island to lecture on contract.

It was considered a good thing that the players had a day off from the duel. It gave them an opportunity to get the newspapers and read what they had been writing about. Their daily articles concerning the contest, all widely syndicated, are written by "ghosts" and, after all, a person should check up on such things at frequent intervals.

Lieutenant Alfred M. Gruenther, chief referee of the match, is not disposed to comment on the relative performances of the two teams, thought he confessed today that the players have shown no great wizardry to date.

All four contestants have exhibited signs of caution in their bidding. The number of overtrick hands is sufficient, in itself, to indicate that neither the official nor the Culbertson approach-forcing system can be considered as having worked smoothly so far.

Any Land Must Fare Ill While Two Rogues Can Outvote the Wisest of Men

By Robert Quillen

In the sea and in the jungle, the creatures that dominate are the ones best equipped by nature to conquer and to survive.

The form of government instituted by nature is an aristocracy—literally, the rule of the best. It is the logical and reasonable way, and therefore the one that must ultimately survive.

There are three kinds of aristocracy, but only one is reasonable and genuine.

The aristocracy of birth cannot endure, for it is based on the false assumption that genius will reproduce itself.

In the beginning it was a true aristocracy, for its founders were superior men who fought their way to leadership. And it might have remained true if law or custom had required superior men to find superior mates. But so long as the choice of mates is left to individual fancy, the advantage held by one generation will be lost by the next. The aristocracy of birth has no claim to power except the superiority of ancestors from whom it degenerated. Any normal child from the slums, given equal training, might equal its finest specimens.

The aristocracy of money is equally unsound, for it is based on an assumption equally false. In a world where money is the goal of every man's striving, the assumption is that possession of money affords proof of superiority. But fools inherit money, the fortunate find it and knaves steal it. Great wealth is possessed by men who are superior only in their ability to evade the law, while men truly great die poor because their lives were devoted to unselfish service.

The one aristocracy based on reason and justice is that of achievement.

Napoleon founded one, but promptly prostituted it to win the support of mediocre men necessary to his schemes of empire. His Legion of Honor now includes men who qualify only as a legion.

But the idea is sound. The rule of the superior is right. The glory of Greece was the genius of a few men surrounded by nonentities and half-breed slaves. The national history of any generation is the biography of a superior man.

The best governed of small nations gives an extra vote to university graduates. Is it right that a stupid and shiftless bum should have a voice in government equal to that of an Edison?

Superior men will rule in any case. Why not recognize the truth, and give every man incentive to win power by proving his right to it?

GERMANY FEELS DICTATOR'S GRIP

Chancellor and "Price Czar" Absolute in Nation's Business.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP)—German business realized today that its independence was gone.

Twenty-four hours of meditation on the drastic emergency decree issued last night by President Von Hindenburg brought home the fact that two men now rule Germany, economically as well as politically.

These men are Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Dr. Carl Goerdeler, "price" dictator, who has absolute control over all business, from the most mighty to most minute.

Dr. Goerdeler indicated his course of action by declaring in an interview he would take immediate drastic steps to meet and conquer the nation's ills.

One of his first moves, he disclosed, will be to cut the prices of industrial products. Next will come freight rates and the prices of standard articles.

Government circles interpreted Chancellor Bruening's dramatic radio speech last night and the new emergency decree as marking the end of the first public encounter between the nation's two leading political personalities—the cultured and ascetic appearing chancellor, and Adolf Hitler, energetic leader of the country's fascists.

By bringing the long backstage struggle into the open the chancellor pushed Herr Hitler off the front pages so far as domestic discussions are concerned.

Already the effects of the sweeping emergency decree are being felt. A considerable number of political meetings that had been scheduled for the next few days have been cancelled.

Shortly after the decree was announced a hundred Hitler followers at Wuppertal in the Rhineland were arrested for ostentatiously wearing the banned nazi uniform.

The Reichsbank as well as Berlin banks have reduced interest rates. Provincial banks are expected to follow suit.

The national socialist journal Attack and the communist organ Red Flag were forbidden by the police to publish for one week because of their violent attacks on the emergency decree and on the chancellor's speech.

Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich, who also is vice chancellor, followed up the Bruening broadcast tonight by defending the emergency decree over the radio and forecasting the ultimate success of its drastic provision.

"Normal measures are of no avail in abnormal times," Herr Dietrich declared.

ONE COMMUNIST KILLED DURING RIOTING IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP)—One communist was killed and several persons were stabbed today in fights between communists and national socialist supporters of Adolf Hitler, German fascist leader, on the first day of the political "Christmas peace" proclaimed by Chancellor Bruening's emergency decree.

Republican reichsbannermen protested the ban against the wearing of political uniforms in public.

"It is inconceivable that the government is eliminating one of the most powerful factors contributing to its support and the Hitler phychosis," the reichsbanner organization said in a statement.

The reichsbanner numerically is Germany's largest political defense organization. Its members wear khaki jackets and blue caps.

The "steel-helmet" organization made a similar protest to President Von Hindenburg yesterday.

BERLIN PAPERS WITHHOLD HOOVER MESSAGE COMMENT

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—(Thursday.)—(AP)—German newspapers published only short excerpts of President Hoover's message to congress and did not comment on it in their editions this morning.

"Hoover Also Applies Tax Screw" was the headline over the report of the president's message in the nationalist organ, Der Tag.

lights to crush the spirit of those weakened by pain and exhaustion.

Other children of adversity throng into shacks and shelters where unfortunates hover together for warmth and the restless sleep could people endure. Tuberculosis threatens many. Pellagra, the result of undernourishment and unbalanced diet, hides in a corner. Anemia waits until red blood begins to turn white from lack of sustenance—and then he springs.

Vicious and greedy, these enemies of normal existence crowd the city.

Cowards, they are! Only the magic of food and care is needed to put them to rout. Only the color of silver coins and green bills is needed to start a panic among these forces of evil.

Put Enemies to Rout.

Your gift to go to the support of a family will be one thrust into the side of these enemies. Your dollar, your five or ten-dollar bill or your larger donation will help end suffering for someone, man, child or woman.

Select the family you want to aid. Perhaps some especially bitter trial will appeal to you more than others these people bear. Perhaps you once experienced suffering similar to the ills of one mentioned—and that might stir you to a keener realization of hardships they bear every day.

Here's your family—call it YOUR OPPORTUNITY—and be happy in knowing you have helped to make life more tolerable for someone who feels, lives and loves just like you do, but who has faltered before the onslaught of misfortune.

Send your money to The Constitution and every penny of it will be applied to the fund created especially for that family.

RHODES AWARDS TO BE MADE TODAY

Four Students in South Will Be Selected From 12 Interviewed.

Announcement of the awards of Rhodes scholarships to four college students from six southeastern states is expected to be made today by the regional committee which Wednesday began interviewing 12 young men between the ages of 18 and 24 who had been selected by their respective state scholarship committees.

Award of the scholarships, which carry a provision of 400 pounds sterling a year for a two or three-year course of study at Oxford University, England, will be made on the committee's judgment of the records of the students, as well as their impression of the aspirants' personalities. The interviews were begun at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel Wednesday, and each lasted approximately one hour.

The regional committee is composed of Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution, chairman; William A. Stuart, Abingdon, Va., secretary; Dean R. P. Brooks, University of Georgia; O. C. Carmichael president of Alabama College, and Henry Allen Moe, New York, N. Y.

The 12 aspirants, from among whom four will be given Rhodes scholarships, are:

Georgia, Richard N. Clark Jr., Atlanta, a student at Harvard, and John E. Wilson, of Camilla, an Emory University student.

Florida, Charles E. Bennett, Tampa, University of Florida, and Hugh L. McKeen, Orlando, Rollins College.

South Carolina, William S. Bethea, Latta, Wofford College, and F. Carlyle Roberts, Columbia, University of South Carolina.

North Carolina, William C. Sunn, Kinston, Harvard, and R. M. Albright Jr., University of North Carolina.

Tennessee, Clayton L. Burwell, Charlotte, University of the South, and Don Krasher Price, Middleboro, Ky., Vanderbilt University.

Virginia, John W. Pendleton, Lexington, Johns Hopkins, and Robert B. Breenough, Keawick, Amherst.

Two students were selected from a group of eligible aspirants by each of the six states comprising the southeastern region. The Georgia state committee last Saturday chose Clark and Wilson from among a group of 14 university and college students. It was explained that students living in a particular state or going to college in that state were eligible for selection by the respective state committees for consideration by the regional committee.

and protection promised in return for payment of a certain sum, to be given as a donation to "an anti-narcotic crusade" which Ford was reportedly conducting.

The scheme worked readily, according to the first indictment which listed 33 persons as "contributors."

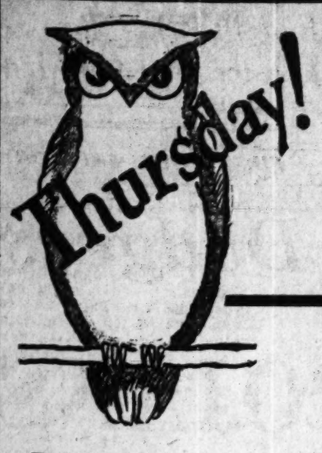

The "protection" promised included "advance information" of proposed raids by legitimate dry agents and assurances of intercession with federal judges to "go easy" with the defendants in event of arrest for liquor law violations.

Cards Seek To Use Hack Wilson in Deals With Reds, Dodgers

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

BULLDOGS DRILL AGAINST OFFENSE OF TROJANS

REDBIRDS OFFER EX-HOMER KING IN NEW DEALS

Champions Seek Frederick From Brooklyn or Crabtree From Reds.

By Paul Mickelson,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Chicago's Cubs solved two of their most perplexing baseball riddles today by trading Hack Wilson and Pitcher Arthur "Bud" Teachout to the world's championship St. Louis Cardinals for Burleigh Grimes.

The deal, a straight trade with no cash involved, turned the big major league player mart into a lively one as the Cardinals immediately offered Wilson to either the Brooklyn Robins or the Cincinnati Reds.

In trading their dethroned home run champion, the Cubs' chiefs satisfied Owner William Wrigley Jr.'s ultimatum that Wilson must go. In obtaining Grimes, they obtained the one pitcher who has ruined more baseball games for them than probably any two pitchers in the National league.

As far as the Cardinals were concerned, Wilson will never play a game for the Redbirds, but will be used as bait for a deal with either Brooklyn or Cincinnati. The Cardinals admitted they were willing to trade Wilson and either Outfielder George Watkins or Outfielder Ernest Orsatti to the Reds for Outfielder Estel Crabtree or to Brooklyn for Johnny Frederick.

HORNSBY BETS.

Manager Hornsby, who attempted to use Wilson in a deal with those Cubs, knew what the Reds and Robins wanted, however, and wagered a new hat with President Sam Breadon of the Cards that Wilson would be on the Redbird pay roll when the 1932 campaign opened.

The Cardinals were certain they would keep Teachout, however, as they regard the 27-year-old southpaw as one of the best pitching prospects in the majors.

When Grimes dons the Cub regimentals next spring, he will have seen service on six National and One American league clubs. His first major league service was with the Detroit Tigers in 1913, after which he pitched for Pittsburgh, Brooklyn, New York Giants and Boston Braves and the Cardinals. He is 39 years old, and one of the four remaining "spit ball" hurlers.

GRIMES LAUDED.

"We didn't trade Grimes because we thought he was through by any means," said President Breadon. "He proved his greatness as a pitcher in the world series of 1930 and '31. We must cut our pitching staff of the veterans now, as we have too many good youngsters coming up."

Several deals were still on the fire tonight as the club owners of both leagues continued their business sessions. Cincinnati attempted a big deal by offering Jersey Joe Stripp and Pitcher Larry Benton to Brooklyn for Frederick, Dazzy Vance, Catcher Ernest Lombardi and Outfielder Ike Boone.

Detroit attempted to gain Joe Judge from Washington for a catcher or a pitcher, while several clubs were flickering for Outfielder Ralph Kress, of the St. Louis Browns.

LAZZERI ON BLOCK.

The New York Yankees admitted they were ready to peddle Tony Lazzeri, and John McGraw, of the Giants, was looking for at least one good pitcher.

The Boston Braves bought Third Baseman Fritz Knothe from Seattle of the Pacific Coast league for cash and players to be named later. Knothe, a brother of Philadelphia's shortstop recruit from New Orleans, George Knothe, batted .320 last year and was voted by Pacific coast sports writers as the outstanding third baseman of the league.

There will be no change in the sacrifice fly rule or any reductions in the umpiring staffs of the majors next year, it was learned from an authoritative source. President John Heydler, of the National league, also announced that his circuit would continue with the 1931 baseball.

The two leagues will hold their annual joint session tomorrow.

The Braves also announced the sale of First Baseman Earl Sheely and Catcher Bill Cronin to the Los Angeles club, of the Pacific Coast league, at a reported price of $7,500 each.

The American league voted to make no change in its official baseball, and decided to hold its scheduled meeting in New York February 22.

Pa Still Working On Miami Program

"Pa" Stribling, stopping over in Atlanta last night while en route to Chicago, stated that he was working on plans for a winter bout in Miami but thus far had failed to sign the principals sought.

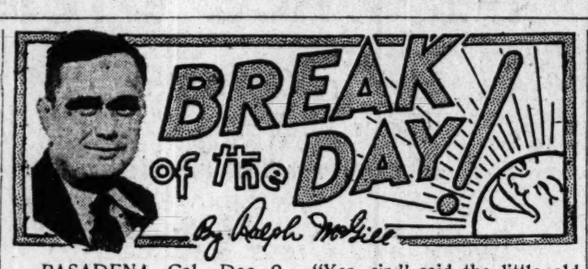

"Pa" is going to Chicago to work in the corner of Clyde Chastain, his boy who boxes in the light-heavyweight tourney there December 11. Battling Bozo fights the following week and W. L. will be on hand to act as second for him.

Chastain and Bozo are "Pa's" candidates for Rosenbloom's vacated light-heavy crown.

New Bowling Record Set by Miss Bangert

A new record for a single game for women bowlers was recorded Wednesday night at the Atlanta Bowling Alleys, when Miss Babe Bangert, captain of the Atlanta Paper team in the Atlanta Ladies' League, rolled a total of 138 pins.

Miss Bangert is one of the most improved bowlers in the city. She has changed her style since the beginning of the season and now ranks as the most consistent high scorer in any of the women's leagues.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 9.—"Yes, sir," said the little old gentleman with the whiskers, "I have always wanted to meet a lot of people from Georgia. I always wanted to see if I could find another man like Doc Holliday."

This, of course, provoked some inquiry from the men from Georgia, who are out here to attend to a football game with the University of Southern California on Saturday. So they asked Mr. Tom Gentry, who is an old man with a nice and well-trimmed set of whiskers, whyever in the world he was interested in looking at a lot of Georgians. The Georgians were very glad to have someone look at them with admiration, as most of the looks out here have been the sort one sees in the eyes of the man at the stock yards when he is appraising the weight of the lambs about to be led to the slaughter.

"Well, sir, I will tell you," said the little man with the whiskers, "I have been with the railroad here for 42 years. And I have been all over the west in that time. I knew Roy Bean, the law west of the Pecos. Many is the time I see Roy Bean find a dead man and confiscate what he had on him. I knew all the tough boys and the two-gun men in the west. They were all tops when I was a young man on top of the freight trains or handling passengers.

"And the toughest and the hardest boiled and the meanest and the hardest, straightest-shooting hombre I ever knew in the old days was from Georgia. Yes, sir, name of Doc Holliday. I know that Jesse James and Wild Bill Hickok and all them boys got their names in the papers and books. But they were all sisters compared with this Georgia man named Doc Holliday.

"He would have made Jesse James jump out of his skin. Many is the time I have seen him spin up a quarter and shoot out the eagle's eye. He could shoot like nobody else. And when he got in his cups, as the boys say, why the tough boys all went home and hid under the bed.

"And so, while I have never been there, I am always curious about Georgia and Georgia people. I guess no one back there ever heard of Doc Holliday. But he was a great man to stay away from unless he was your pal. And I keep thinking maybe I will see someone who looked like him or something. Anyhow, I have been interested in Georgia people ever since I knew Doc Holliday.

"And I will tell you this," he concluded, "If you boys from Georgia can play football like Doc Holliday could shoot and fight, you will make the Trojans jump right out of the stadium."

TED COX PUNCH DRUNK.

Ted Cox, the new head coach at Tulane University, who is here to scout the Trojans for their Rose Bowl game on January 1, is about punch drunk. He's been reading the papers and listening to the coast football writers and the usual "friends" who flock around at a time like this, and they have him groggy.

I encountered Mr. Ted Cox at lunch today. He came in with a sad look on his face and he was very pale looking. His hand shook as he took his chair.

"I guess I'll have to wire Bernie to call it off," he said. "There can't be any use coming out here to play the game. Why, I have it on good authority from everyone out here that Tulane will lose by four touchdowns and Georgia by five. I don't see why we should come at all unless it is just to give the boys a ride."

This distress is always experienced by any football coach or writer on his first visit to the coast. After that, he knows that the coast boys talk only in terms wherein either the word great, greater or greatest can be applied to something from the coast.

The winning coast team is always the greatest team in the world every year.

A BOX OF CAKES.

After eating more than he should and after gorging accompanying newspapermen, your correspondent has finally emptied a huge box of assorted cakes presented by Milton O. Varner, of Houston, Texas, but formerly of Indian Springs, Ga.

Mr. Varner met the train when it came through. "I subscribe to The Constitution out here and I like your sports page," he said, "and so I brought this."

It was a big box of assorted cakes packed by Mr. Varner, who is employed by the National Biscuit Company at Houston. And they were the finest cakes ever. A dozen people can testify to that. It's great to meet this Georgian.

Vols Always Manage To Produce Fine Back

With McEver, Dodd and Hackman Passed Over Hill, Tennessee Looks Next to Feathers.

By Dillon Graham,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Backfield men come and go, but Tennessee always has one of the best ball carriers in Dixie.

For the past three years the Volunteers have placed at least one of their backs on the Associated Press All-Southern team. In 1929 and 1930 the University of Tennessee had two of the four backs.

Bobby Dodd, quarterback, and Gene McEver, halfback, were on the 1929 team. Dodd and Buddy Hackman, halfback, were on the 1930 team, and McEver made the 1931 eleven.

Now indications are that Beattie Feathers, called by many experts the best sophomore back in the Southern conference this year, may make the honor squad in 1932.

Gene McEver, the wild bull, will be gone, but in Knoxville there are fans who think Feathers as good as Gene. He can run, kick and pass. Breezy Wynne is another newcomer who will fit into the 1932 Volunteer quartet, along with Deke Brackett, quarterback.

Three former Southern conference head football mentors on the same coaching staff—that's the prospect for Vanderbilt next season. If Russ Cohen leaves Louisiana State and comes to Vanderbilt as backfield coach, the Commodores will have Josh Cody, former Clemson mentor, as line instructor, and Dan McGugin, the dean of all Dixie coaches, as the senior and head coach.

In addition to some probable change in eligibility rules, and action on the proposed "Big Ten," several coaching changes may be announced at the Southern conference meeting starting in New Orleans December 18.

Most of the conference coaches are set for another year, but there has been talk of new gridiron bosses at several schools where the list of victories was small this season.

SMITHIES LEAVE THIS MORNING FOR GAFFNEY

Win Over Carolinians Would Mean Southeastern Title; Team in Shape.

With the southeastern prep championship as their reward for victory, Tech High's football team will leave the city at 11 o'clock this morning for Gaffney, S. C., to play Gaffney High school Friday afternoon in a post-season game.

Tech High won the city championship, but waived its right to play for the state title, choosing the Gaffney game instead. Only one defeat mars the Smithie record of 10 victories and no ties. That defeat came from Lanier High, of Macon, and a protest, filed by Tech High, is in the hands of the G. I. A. A. for settlement.

FULL SQUAD.

A full squad of 29 players, together with Coaches Gabe Tolbert and Tom Alexander and a corps of managers, will make the trip to Gaffney.

A workout is planned for late this afternoon at some favorable field along the route, probably at Spartanburg, S. C. Definite plans for the workout have not been completed and much depends upon weather conditions.

Wednesday's session was held in the school gymnasium, due to a cold rain all afternoon. The practice consisted of a long blackboard diagram, a lecture on special plays that will be used against Gaffney and a signal drill.

Except for Boyd's knee injury, which is not entirely well, the team is in good physical condition. Tolve's leg injury has completely healed, and other minor hurts have come around in good shape.

VARSITY TO START.

Coach Tolbert stated Wednesday that the regular varsity lineup, barring injuries in today's workout, will start against Gaffney Friday. It will consist of Hadley and Gibson, ends; Tolve and Heard, tackles; Bradfield and Bloodworth, guards, and Bender at center, with Boyd, Hurst, Street and Doyal in the backfield.

Other players to make the trip are McGahee, Kinsler, Tomlin, McNamara, Ellis, Beard, Baldwin, Cronis, Perry, Hinson, Bonner, Smith, Holcomb, Reeves, Flatau, Coursey, Barrow and Hughes.

Cadets Prepare For Lanier Test.

Facing the most important game of the season, that with Lanier High, Saturday afternoon in Macon, for the G. I. A. A. championship, G. M. A.'s football team held one of its longest workouts of the past two weeks Wednesday afternoon at College Park.

It was the first workout that the Cadets have held this year in the rain and mud, and was far from satisfactory to Coach Paget. The heavy field, ankle-deep in mud, probably accounts for the team not measuring up to Monday's form.

It is very likely that similar weather conditions will prevail Saturday afternoon in Macon. Reports from the Central City indicate a heavy field. The rain has been harder in that section than here and it will take several days of sunshine to put the field in good playing condition.

A full squad of 29 players, together with Coaches Paget, McQuarrie and Burbage, will make the trip. The Cadet band and many of the students will be on hand to cheer the Cadets in Saturday's battle for a G. I. A. A. title.

Carroll To Meet Calman at Emory

George "Christmas" Carroll, Emory lightweight champion, will meet "Clouting" Calman, the socking sophomore, in a no-decision bout, as the feature match of a boxing and wrestling card, starting at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the basketball stadium at Emory.

Carroll's Emory lightweight crown will not be at stake, since Calman will weigh in over the limit. Carroll will scale 135. Carroll is a crafty, fast punching, tricky boxer, while Calman is the slugger type.

The complete program:

xBob Ansley, 139, vs. Bill McKinney, 135.
xMelvin Weinnam, 124, vs. Theron Gardner, 132.
Gus Bonnett, 118, vs. Melvin Bookhold, 115.
Joe Blass, 139, vs. Bill McCay, 143.
George Carroll, 135, vs. Innis Calman, 148.
xWrestling matches.

Jackets Engage In Light Drill

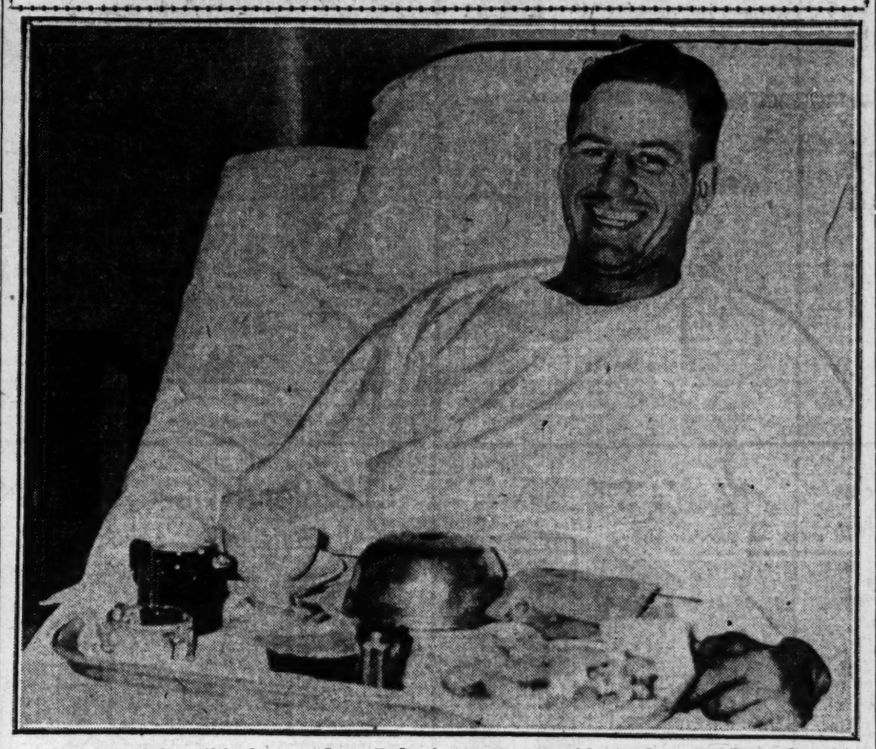

Yesterday was another light one for the Tech Yellow Jackets with the weather still gloomy and foreboding.

Coach W. A. Alexander did not meet his boys on the field, but they ran signals and did group work under the direction of Jack Cannon and Bobby Dodd. Kid Clay, Ken Thrash, Mack Tharpe and Tom Jones are helping also, as all the freshmen are out, getting acquainted with fundamentals.

The weather is making it hard on the coaches in preparing the team for California. The two teams are working on a non-scouting pact and all the Jacket coaches can do is acquaint their men with Bill Ingram's system as much as possible.

When football is over Bobby Dodd, backfield coach, probably will have charge of freshman basketball.

Does He Look Like an Invalid?

"Just a swell rest" is the way Jerry Dalrymple, All-America Tulane end and hero of southern football fans, speaks of his confinement in a New Orleans hospital. Dalrymple, who suffered a kidney injury while blocking "Turk" Edwards, giant Washington State tackle, in the game December 5 is shown just after partaking of a hearty meal. There is plenty of sympathy for Jerry and hopes for a speedy recovery, but he certainly doesn't look like a sick man. Photo by Associated Press.

CRACKERS MEET DODGERS HERE

Exhibition Game Reported Closed; Ex-Atlanta Stars on Roster.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 9.—It was learned from a reliable source today that the Brooklyn Dodgers will again perform against the Atlanta Crackers in an exhibition game at the Southern league team's park this spring.

It has been two years since the Dodgers appeared in Atlanta, and, with several former Crackers in their lineup, Max Carey's team should be more than welcome in the Georgia metropolis.

The Dodgers have more former Crackers than any other big league club. Al Lopez, Wally Gilbert, Babe Herman, Max Rosenfeld and Bob Parham used to wear Atlanta uniforms. Otto Miller, the Dodgers' coach, managed the Crackers some years ago.

Atlanta fans will get an opportunity to see what sort of a team Max Carey will have in his first term as new manager for the Flatbush Fusileers.

Rosenfeld and Parham starred in the Eastern league during the past season. The former Georgia Tech athlete improved in his hitting and fielding, and was recalled by the Brooklyn club. Rosenfeld may stick with the Dodgers this time because he is a hustling ball player and can fit in the outfield and at second base.

Several former Sally leaguers are likely to help Brooklyn in their battle for the National league pennant in 1932. They are Phil Gallivan, Earl Mattingly, Al Cohen and Bob Reis.

The Dodgers will also perform in several other Southern league cities this spring. They will play in New Orleans, Birmingham, Chattanooga and Memphis.

Brooklyn will spend a few days in Macon, where they will meet Cincinnati, the Boston Red Sox and their farm hands, the Hartford Senators, who will train in the heart of Georgia.

Stevens Renamed To Coach at Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 9.—(AP) Mal Stevens, who brought to Yale this season its first "Big Three" championship in four years, was reappointed head football coach today by the Yale athletic board of control.

The appointment, which is for one year, will bring Stevens back in 1932 for his fifth consecutive year as head coach.

Benny Friedman, former Michigan passing ace, who served as a part-time coach this year and as guest coach the year before, was not included in the appointments announced. Officials made no comment on this action.

The board also reappointed Adam Walsh, former Notre Dame star, as line coach, and Charles Comerford as end coach.

Albie Booth, captain of the 1931 eleven, who was taken to a sanitarium before the end of the season, was named a junior varsity coach in line with a Yale policy of having the retiring captain return as coach the following season.

FIVE BRACES WORK.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 9.—(AP) Five braces of dogs worked here today in the derby competition of the Pointer Club of America, after rain had delayed the start of the concluding event of the club's annual meet here. The remaining 18 dogs will course tomorrow.

Signature Seekers Besiege Bulldogs

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 9.—Celebrities who visit New York may think that autograph hunters concentrate their activities there, but it is a nationwide guild with devotees, just as ardent and just as numerous, proportionately, here on the Pacific coast as in the metropolis of the east.

The Georgia Bulldogs, working out here this afternoon for their game with Southern California Saturday, found themselves besieged by folk of all ages and sexes demanding specimens of their signatures. In most cases, the requests were granted. Harry Mehre and Catfish Smith seemed to be most in demand by the sideline visitors.

CORNELL VICTOR IN ROUND ROBIN

Columbia Beats Princeton in Rainstorm Charity Battles.

By Alan Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP) In a pouring rainstorm, four of the east's football old guard battled for an hour in the mud today, with Columbia and Cornell gaining the honors.

Because of the weather and playing conditions that were the worst of the eastern season, the round-robin charity program originally carded was cut to a double-header, with each game consisting of two 15-minute periods.

Columbia furnished the only scoring thrills of the affair by skidding to victory over Princeton, 13 to 0, in the first game. The contest was opened by a sensational 80-yard run back of the kick-off for a touchdown by Manuel Rivero.

Cornell and Pennsylvania, renewing their Thanksgiving Day duel, waged a scoreless mud battle, but Cornell was declared the winner by the judges.

No official figures were announced, but Reynolds Benson, Columbia's graduate manager, estimated 8,000 spectators braved the miserable weather to huddle beneath the covered stands of the ball park. The receipts, for the benefit of the unemployed, were estimated at $15,000, less than a fourth of the amount anticipated before the weather struck its disastrous blow.

Despite conditions, there was remarkably little fumbling. Columbia showed the best running attack of the afternoon against the battered Princeton Tigers, who absorbed their eighth straight defeat of the season.

Rivero's opening 80-yard gallop through the mire for a touchdown from kick-off was the feature of the double-header. Princeton never threatened and Columbia tallied again, in the second period, on Captain Ralph Hewitt's 23-yard dash off tackle for a touchdown.

Cornell, playing without either of its backfield aces, Johnny Ferraro and Bart Viviano, was unable to get beyond Pennsylvania's 30-yard line, but the Ithacans out-rushed, out-kicked and out-skidded their rivals by a narrow margin to gain the judges' verdict. Penn never threatened and was not once in Cornell territory in the 30 minutes of play.

JERRY TO LEAVE HOSPITAL SOON

Friday Day Set; Further Examination Shows No Serious Injury.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Further X-ray examination of Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane football captain, in a hospital here with a kidney injury, today confirmed earlier reports by physicians that the injury is apparently not serious.

Dr. Edmond L. Faust, his physician, said in a bulletin that "Dalrymple's condition improved still further today, the second X-ray examination also being negative. He will remain at the hospital until Friday, but will be kept completely quiet and at rest at his home for three or four days after that."

Dalrymple insists the injury will not keep him out of the Tulane-Southern California game in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day, and Dr. Faust has indicated he will probably be able to play.

The All-American end has been under observation in the hospital since Monday after becoming ill in McComb, Miss., Sunday from an injury suffered in Saturday's game with Washington State.

McDuffie Grapples On East Point Card

Sun Almand, of Center Hill, and Jimmy McDuffie, of East Point, both light-heavyweights, will headline an all-star wrestling card at 8 o'clock tonight at East Point. It will be a two-hour limit match, with best two falls out of three.

In the semi-final, a one-hour limit affair, with two out of three falls deciding the winner, Billy Cowan, of Atlanta, and Jack McAdams, of Center Hill, will meet.

Johnny Richards, of Dallas, Texas, and Eddie Powell, of Atlanta, will meet in a 30-minute preliminary.

Vols Choose Aitken As Captain for 1932

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP) Malcolm Aitken, of Memphis, 195-pound University of Tennessee tackle, was elected captain of the 1932 football team at the annual banquet last night.

He succeeds Eugene "Skeet" Mayer, of Chattanooga, who led the Vols this season. Aitken is a junior.

MEHRE STATES DOWNES UNABLE TO START GAME

Homer Key Out for Drill. U. S. C. Boasts Powerful Attack.

By Ralph McGill.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 9.—Georgia went to work in earnest here this afternoon in the chill air which a frivolous sun never quite warmed up.

It was not raining, however, and the entire squad was out and had its first look at the offense which Southern California will use Saturday afternoon in the big stadium in Los Angeles when the two teams meet.

Austie Downes, the limping quarterback, was out, but did no great amount of running around. Homer Key was also out, but he, too, was restrained to comparatively mild tasks. Harry Mehre still says that he sees no chance to play Downes.

Downes, on the other hand, insists that he will play, that nothing will stop him. He limps, but he thinks the ankle will be well.

CRIPPLES "IN."

The injured players were in as the coaches began their defensive set for the game. The Trojan offense looked very tough, sort of like the guy you don't care to meet on a dark night, or in the daytime either for that matter, unless there is a copper around, and there will be no coppers around to stop the tough work Saturday.

The Trojan offense is power plus. This sounds very much like an ad for a new motor, but it is true. The Trojans can attack that line with steam-roller power. And, if stopped there, they can go around those ends with lateral passes and reverses.

The Trojans have the greatest power offense inside end; one might say inside tackle, since most of the power offense consists of spin plays inside tackle.

BONE-CRUSHER.

Straight ahead the Trojan is a bone-crushing giant. Their straight-ahead attack is not a pleasant thing at all for the defense, say the boys who have watched and studied the attack. They have Williamson, Baker and Stevens, Tay Brown, Ernie Smith, Arbelbide and Sparling in there to make things tough.

And then we come to Pinckert. One always does in writing about this Southern California eleven. Pinckert, they say, likes to mix and mingle when the going is rough. His specialty is blocking tackles and they say that when Pinckert blocks them they stay blocked.

Against this Georgia can throw four good guards, two at a time, of course, but still four guards, and the Georgia tackles, while a mite better at offense than defense, are fair tackles.

WAVE'S POWER PLAY.

No team has made any ground against Georgia in the line except Tulane, which used a power play between Scafide and Schroeder to help put the ball in position for one touchdown.

Georgia should be able to halt the power attack. The coast experts think so, too. They readily admit it can and has been done. But it is at this point that the coast experts laugh very uncouthly and coarsely. That, they say, is the trick.

Any team must concentrate everything it has on halting the power game, say the master minds. And when they do that then the turkey is ready for the ax, the lamb for the slaughter.

On wide plays, off-tackle and around end, the Trojans have not been so powerful. They are not as fast as they might be. But they have used this style. They pound away at the line until the defense pulls in all it has to stop that. And then they shift into a double wingback, and from it pull a double reverse play or a wide lateral pass.

BEAT THE IRISH.

This beat Notre Dame, and helped win all the tough ones. That is, it helped put over touchdowns early. There were no real tough ones after the Trojans got going.

That's what the boys say, and from it they predict a three, four or five-touchdown victory for Southern California.

It is pretty difficult for the home nine boys. With Downes limping, Smith out of work for more than a week and Key's knee not sound, it is pretty difficult to get out on a limb.

I do think the Bulldogs have a chance. The Trojans can't be the greatest team football ever saw.

They are about ripe for a kicking around, and if you ask me why I think Georgia has a chance it is because of her long passes and her speed.

The Georgians do not seem to be cast down. This means they have not been reading the papers. People who read the papers here are very

N. Y. U. Paper Opposes Meehan's Retention

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(UP)—The Daily News, an undergraduate publication at New York University, today demanded the removal of John F. "Chick" Meehan, present head coach of football.

An editorial, entitled "Time to Retire," and addressed to the athletic board of control, asked that Meehan retire on the grounds that he "stands for university policy of 'big time' football with all its corollary evils—recruiting of players, lavish entertainment of prospects, subsidization of athletes, athletic scholarships, and a general drafting of students for the sole purpose of playing football."

The board is to meet Saturday to select a coach for 1932. Meehan's contract expires late this month.

Meehan, president of the National Association of Football Coaches, refused to comment on the editorial, as did New York University athletic officials.

Last-Quarter Drive Brings Norman Park 12-6 Win Over Bowdon

ALLEN PROMISES A STRONG CLUB AT KNOXVILLE

"We Are Here To Stay," Says New Owner Confidently.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP) Knoxville is now a full-fledged member of the Southern Baseball association and Bob Allen, white-haired owner of the club, says "We are here to stay."

Thus all has ended happily for the much mooted about Mobile club of 1930—a team that embarked at Mobile and ended the season in a favorable showoff before Knoxville fans.

"Southern association directors are a bit dubious about Knoxville as a baseball town, but we intend to show them they're wrong," says Allen, who successfully operated the Little Rock club of the Southern association for 16 years.

Although getting into the field a wee late, Allen and his son, Edgar, secretary of the club, plan to build a strong team from the nucleus of players they acquired through the purchase of the Mobile franchise.

To begin with they have engaged as manager "Hustling" Joe Schepner, who won a pennant for Knoxville in the South Atlantic league in 1928. Schepner will be a bench manager.

He was a former third baseman for Louisville in the American association and played three years with Birmingham in the Southern loop. He was manager of the Vicksburg (Miss.) club last year.

The Knoxville Smokies—the name of the new club—now consists of 12 players. They are Roy Hudson and Joe Bonowitz, outfielders; Herman Jones and Chilly McDaniels, first basemen; Howard Friegau, third baseman; Stanley Benton, shortstop; Ralph McAdams, catcher; Dick Brown, rookie outfielder, and Dennis Burns, Tiny Owens, Red Oldham and Al Holhauser, pitchers.

The Allens recently traded Alex McColl, pitcher, to the Chattanooga Lookouts for Holhauser.

Other players are now being sought by the Allens.

The home of the Smokies will be at Smithson stadium, a $25,000 baseball plant erected a year ago by the city.

SMITH LEADING IN OPEN PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—With a par-shattering 68, Horton Smith, of Springfield, Mo., took the lead in today's first 18 of the 36-hole qualifying trials for the second annual $7,500 national open match play golf championships.

The blonde youngster toured the difficult Lake Merced course four strokes under par and set a new tournament record in doing so. His 36 for the outgoing nine was one stroke under standard figures, and he trimmed three strokes off par on the incoming stretch with a 32. He missed an 8-foot putt on the 18th for an easy par four.

Gene Sarazen, of Great Neck, L. I., a former national open champion, followed Smith by one stroke with a 69.

Al Espinosa, of Chicago, turned in a 36-35—71 for a sub-par round while Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, each went over with 73's.

In the 74-stroke class were Harry Cooper, New York, and four San Franciscans, Romie Espinosa, Larry Brazil, John Black Sr., and A. G. Sato, Japanese amateur who won medal honors in the 1931 national public links championship.

Aubrey Boomer, of England, posted a 77. H. Chandler Egan, Medford, Ore., former national amateur titleholder, turned in a 78.

cast down indeed—that is if they come from the south.

Trojans Hold Hard Workout.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Coach Howard Jones put the University of Southern California Trojans through a long, hard workout today, specializing on the players' assignments in their game here Saturday with Georgia.

Little was done yesterday because of the rain, so the Trojan mentor made up for lost time this afternoon. Johnny Baker was in uniform but did not work much. Tom Mallory, blocking half, also was out. Gordon Clark, sub half, did not appear on the field.

Tulane's Loss Is Minnesota's Gain---Bierman Signs

ARMY-NAVY TILT HAS OLD GLAMOR

Rival Service Elevens Have Hard Time to "Point" for Battle.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—This thirty-second football clash between Army and Navy on Saturday ought to be a bit more like the 30 they played before the famous "break" of 1927.

Their charity engagement here a year ago was fought under somewhat artificial conditions, and at least a part of the glamor that used to surround Army-Navy duels was lacking.

It should be different this time. The two service academies by no means have patched up their differences over eligibility standards and their coming battle was arranged solely in the interests of charity, yet it should be much like the spectacular games of other years.

Last year the game was arranged late in the season as a sort of afterthought, but this time the rival coaches have known since early October that a game would be played. That gave each a chance to "point" for the other and there has been strong evidence that Navy at least, has been doing just that. The Tars, away to a slow start, have been improving steadily and reached top form for the season last week when they toppled Penn, 6-0.

Army, on the other hand, played its best football against Notre Dame November 28 and there appears to be some doubt whether the Cadets again can flash so brilliant a game.

So far 73,000 tickets for the clash have been sold with cash in hand amounting to about $370,000. If the remaining 10,000 tickets, now on public sale, are disposed of the "gate" will pass the $400,000 mark.

Minnesota Delighted To Have Bernie Back

Alumni Hail Move As Mighty Stroke For School's Return to Gridiron Power.

By Jimmy Jones.

The University of Minnesota and its alumni will receive Bernie Bierman with open arms and a pat on the back when Bernie "comes home." The appointment of Tulane's iron-grey tactician as head coach is being hailed throughout the midwest as the first step toward a new era in Gopher athletics.

The "M" Club, composed largely of those who run the athletic system at the university, are rejoicing over Bierman's coming. The alumni are doing somersaults and back-flips over the announcement, and even the president of Minnesota is smiling broadly.

They're all glad to have the tall, silent man come back home and run their football program for them. In a statement to Minneapolis papers, Dr. Erling S. Plautau, prominent physician and president of the "M" Club, makes the following expression of good will toward the change:

"The appointment of Bernie Bierman as head football coach at the University of Minnesota marks a new era in athletics at our school. We now have an ideal setup with Bierman as coach and Fritz Crisler for athletic director."

Members of the club paid tribute to both Crisler and Tad Wieman, the line coach, declaring them to be men of high type and hoping that both would remain to work with Bierman.

UPS AND DOWNS.

Minnesota, one of the pioneers of midwestern football, has been having her ups and downs lately. The school sprang into national notice on the gridiron during the period between 1900 and 1922, when Dr. Henry L. Williams coached the Gophers and originated his famous shift.

William H. Spaulding, of Wabash, succeeded him and coached from 1923 to 1924, resigning to become director of athletics at University of California. Dr. Clarence W. (Doc) Spears then took up the helm and coached from 1924 to 1929. Spears was a Dartmouth man.

Then came Crisler, who was a high-class young fellow and a good organizer. He was obtained as athletic director, but the need of a coach like Bierman was seen. The latter was approached on a proposition—a very fine one—and accepted.

BIERMAN'S RECORD.

Commenting on Bierman's amazing record at Tulane, George A. Barton, of the Minneapolis Tribune, writes thusly:

"In Bierman, Minnesota has obtained one of the greatest coaches of the present day. His amazing success at Tulane, where his teams have been undefeated and untied in three years during which they won the championship in 1929 and 1931 and tied for it in 1930, has gained Bierman widespread fame. His coming back to his alma mater places Minnesota in the spotlight from a standpoint of national interest."

Bierman, who played halfback on the Minnesota teams of 1913, 1914 and 1915, is the first Minnesota man ever to become head coach of his alma mater. It has developed that he was the choice of the "M" club when Doc Spears resigned in 1929.

It is reported that Bierman will appoint either Earl Martineau, former Minnesota star, as his backfield coach or "Red" Dawson, his quarterback at Tulane.

"Bierman has been received joyously by everybody connected with athletics at Minnesota," says another newspaper.

During his regime at Tulane, Bierman's teams won a total of 36 games and amassed 855 points to the opposing teams' 90.

Gar Wood Ready For Record Trial

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Gar Wood and his Miss America IX speedboat are ready for an assault on the British-held world's speedboat record, the veteran race driver announced today after tests of the vessel.

Wood piloted the Miss America IX for two runs along the measured nautical mile course on Indian creek here today to test a new propellor shaft installed after a shaft was bent in Monday's trial.

When he came ashore, Wood was smiling broadly but declined to tell the speed of the vessel on the two runs.

He said tonight he will make his official assault on the record as soon as electric timing machines arrive here from Indianapolis. Odis Porter, official timer of the A. A. A., will come here to clock the official run, Wood said. He indicated it would be made in three or four days, but said a definite date could not be set today.

TREADAWAY ACE OF BEAR ATTACK IN GREAT GAME

Good Crowd Witnesses Feature of Sumter County Centennial.

By Jack Troy.

Staff Correspondent.

AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 9.—On a field made slick by heavy rainfall, Ike Cowart's Norman Park Bears plunged to a last-quarter victory over the Bowdon College Bulldogs, 12 to 6, here this afternoon.

There were only 4 minutes left of the game, with the score tied 6 and 6, when Norman Park, led by Treadaway, pounded over the winning touchdown.

The deciding points were the result of perfectly executed spin plays by Treadaway, who race around right end for the winning score. Just when it seemed that the game was destined to end in a tie, Norman Park inaugurated a drive from Bowdon's 40-yard line that culminated in victory.

This afternoon's game, played on the municipal playground field, was a feature of the centennial celebration of Sumter county.

GOOD CROWD.

Although the anticipated number of visitors and returning old residents was diminished by the general heavy rainfall, making travel over the clay roads leading into Americus treacherous, a goodly throng came in spite of that. More than 1,000 spectators didn't mind the gray skies as they lined both sides of the municipal field to witness the game fight waged by both teams across the muddy, slippery turf, which in places wasn't turf at all but pure red clay at its slickest.

Before the game there was a colorful parade, participated in by a large number of Americus residents, some of them representing families dating back 200 years. And before that there was a barbecue lunch, and before that a band concert and speeches. It was a gay occasion, despite the gray skies and ever-threatening rain.

It rained during the morning, but in the afternoon there was only an intermittent sprinkle. The skies remained overcast and the streets were wet, but spirits were high.

MANY RELICS.

In many store windows there were relics and antiques handed down from many generations. There was the suit of William Crawford, United Confederacy ambassador to France in 1813, worn at the court of Napoleon.

There were pictures of his descendants and family treasures. There were candelabras more than 100 years old, exhibited by Mrs. J. A. Hixon, and a hand-made spread 150 years old, exhibited by Mrs. T. H. Hudson.

There were exhibits representing the days of slavery. A communion set of the American Presbyterian church, kept in the Dudley family for many years and buried during Sherman's march, was in one of the windows.

In fact, in almost every part of town were to be found reminders of the long and colorful history made by Americus people and of Sumter county.

MEMORABLE DAY.

The junior and senior Chamber of Commerce jointly sponsored the event and the members left nothing undone to make it a memorable occasion. And there was, of course, the football game.

After a scoreless first quarter, Norman Park rang up the opening touchdown in the second period.

Ike Cowart's Bears took the ball in a steady drive from the Bowdon 40-yard line to score. Treadaway, a splendid back, scored on a 16-yard pass from H. Smith, a substitute for Devane. Two plays previously this same Smith had completed a 17-yard pass to the same Treadaway, a very potent combination indeed.

Coach Bud Harris' Bowdon Bulldogs evened the score in the third period, driving from their own 34-yard line to do it. Kintz, who was the offensive star for Bowdon, virtually single-handedly carried the ball almost to Norman Park's goal. An offside penalty was inflicted on Norman and Smith plunged through the line for the tying score.

KINTZ SMASHES.

Kintz actually carried the ball six times in that march and one of his offensive efforts was good for 16 yards on an off-tackle smash. Spier and Downing gave him valuable aid.

Downing, too, missed the try for extra point from placement, and the fight was on for fair. The battle continued fiercely and the game seemed a sure bet for a tie until Norman Park rallied. Then the powerful line plunges of Jeff Bolden, Oglethorpe reserve, and the speedy off-tackle and end-run rushes of Treadaway swept the Bears to a hard-earned and well-deserved victory.

Bowdon was unable to cope with that last quarter drive of the Bears. Bolden smashed the line with the tremendous power and Treadaway on those deceptive spinners was unstoppable.

SPINNER EFFECTIVE.

The spinner play was Norman Park's ace in the hole. They hadn't tried it before during the game, and the first time Treadaway attempted the play the left side of Bowdon's line was "sucked in" and he wheeled around his right end for a gain of 8 yards.

Bolden smashed through center for two yards, and Treadaway plunged to the 1-foot line. Then Treadaway tried the spinner again. For the second time Bowdon was drawn in, and Treadaway literally slid across the goal line on the seat of his pants for the deciding point. His attempted drop-kick was no good, but the point was not needed. The ball game was as good as won.

The juniors and the Daughters of the Confederacy were sponsors for this centennial.

Kintz stood out in the backfield for Bowdon, with Captain Bill Smith running him a race for honors.

OFFENSIVE STAR.

Treadaway, scoring both of Norman Park's touchdowns, was the offensive leader for the victorious Bears. His was a great exhibition. The guards of both teams played well. They were Sleepy Young, who formerly was a reserve for Oglethorpe, and Bowen, of Norman Park, and Martin and Miles of Bowdon.

Willie Bell Robinson, Norman tackle, who dropped back to give that marvelous exhibition of punting with a wet ball, shone both offensively and defensively.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce and the United Daughters of the Confederacy were sponsors of the gay centennial celebration. J. O. Barnes is president of the Junior Chamber, and Mrs. Ernest L. Carswell is president of the U. D. C.

Frank A. Hooper Sr., former Americus resident and a prominent Atlanta attorney, gave an address on this morning's program.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The final battle between Cornell and Columbia was wiped out at the Yankee stadium this afternoon in the second unemployment series by a driving rain and one of the worst fields in football history.

Columbia beat Princeton, 13-0, in the first two periods of 12 minutes each, with an attack that held up surprisingly well in the heavy going. The play of the Columbia backfield had too much speed for Princeton, and the Tiger line was also outplayed in the heavy going.

In the second battle Cornell had the edge over Pennsylvania, and while neither team was table to score, the big red team from Ithaca got 279 points against 206 for Pennsylvania.

Conditions were so bad that it was impossible to get any line on the comparative systems of the four teams. After about three minutes of play every man on the field looked like a seal or a deep sea diver. There were times when the players had to take out time to scrape the mud from eyes and ears. There were also times when the slippery ball, after a series of fumbles, bounced around like a Mexican jumping bean.

Near the finish, when Columbia and Princeton were fighting it out, two or three fumbles would take place on one play. The uniforms of the players within less than two minutes were covered with two or three inches of mud. This also applied to the officials.

Under such conditions the attendance fell to something like 4,000, although possibly a good many seats had been sold in advance, which would help.

There was no chance for any sort of high-class football and the wonder is that the four teams did as well under such conditions. Columbia's attack had more drive and variety than any other team was able to show. The Princeton defense was not nearly up to the standard of the other teams.

A Veteran Coach Suggests a Safer Game.

Just 28 years ago John W. Heisman, veteran coach, suggested the adoption of the forward pass to Walter Camp and the football rules committee. It was adopted three years later as a means of preventing injuries.

Today Mr. Heisman, now athletic director at the Downtown Athletic Club, New York, has another suggestion he believes will bring a big decrease in deaths and serious hurts. Mr. Heisman began coaching in 1892, and when he retired two years ago he had known a coaching experience of 37 years at Auburn, Clemson, Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania, W. & J. and Rice.

"After the game was opened up in 1906," Mr. Heisman said, "there was an immediate decrease in deaths and injuries. I had played and coached through the periods of flying wedges, V rushes, tackles and guards back and other forms of mass momentum which did so much of the damage then. Deaths and injuries are caused by collision, by impact after momentum.

"I have noticed recently a partial return to the old order in the form of massed interference thrown in front of the runner. In addition to the interfering halfbacks we have running guards and now and then an interfering tackle.

This means that four or five men, under full steam, can be thrown against a tackle or an end, and the defensive player, under this terrific impact, is often left groggy or badly hurt. And it is the groggy player who is usually the victim of a later thrust.

Briefly, we have gotten back in a slightly different form to massed flying interference thrown at a tackler.

Heisman's Cure.

"I know it will be impossible," Mr. Heisman continued, "to replace our football system with the English rugby idea, where no interference is allowed in front of the runner, who must depend upon skillful lateral and backward passing to carry the ball. But there are few serious injuries in rugby and it demands even more speed. I still believe in a certain form of interference.

"My idea is to stop guards and tackles or any forwards from leading or helping to lead the interference. Leave that to the other backs. Make it so only backfield men can ever keep ahead of the ball as interferers.

"How are we to make up for this loss of power on attack? By developing the lateral and backward passing game to a greater extent, as in rugby. There must be some reward for a backward pass completed beyond the line of scrimmage, such as the granting of a first down. The kick-off must either go or be reformed, as the impact here is harder than usual."

Mr. Heisman is former president of the Football Coaches' Association. He is one of the keenest students of football the sport has known, and one of the most advanced thinkers connected with the game. His suggestions for lessening injuries, offered here, are sure to receive full consideration from the next rules committee that meets to take up this important problem of curbing massed interference and lessening impact.

Baseball Trading.

I like these major league traders,
From outfield to infield to box;
They'll always trade you a bat boy
For a Cochrane, a Simmons and Foxx.

Singer Vs. Battalino.

Some of the mystery of Al Singer's teeterboard fortunes in the ring during 1931 should be cleared tomorrow night when the former lightweight champion and Connecticut's pride, Bat Battalino, trade punches in Madison Square Garden.

Battalino holds the featherweight crown and is pursuing Tony Canzoneri along the two-title trail. A triumph over Singer will set the stage for a Battalino-Canzoneri go.

From the high estate of a popular idol, Singer tobogganed abruptly after his three-round knockout by Jimmy McLarnin. This setback did not loom so vastly important at the time, for Singer had earned a quick victory over Sammy Mandell to win the crown and was riding the crest. But when he was so speedily battered down by Canzoneri some excuse had to be given for his falling off in effectiveness. Tony's whirlwind start still remains about the best reason, nevertheless.

As for Battalino, this unorthodox puncher brings all the confidence in the world from his Hartford training camp. He has made his best fights in New York and remembers vividly the sensational upset win over Kid Chocolate, when the Cuban was 2 to 1 favorite a year ago.

Bat has trouble getting results in anything but championship battles, but as this is an important semi-final to a title bout, maybe he will be on edge. Singer is active with the left and Bat carries his T. N. T. in the right. Whichever wins the bout, the tussle should continue the little men's reputation for the best current ring entertainment.

MAX IS SOUGHT AS SCHAAF FOE

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—(UP)—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, has been offered $150,000 or 40 per cent of the gate to meet Ernie Schaaf, fourth ranking heavyweight, in an outdoor bout here next June, Eddie Mack, Boston promoter, announced tonight.

In a telegram to Max's manager, Joe Jacobs, Mack offered to post $50,000 the day the match is signed, a like amount March 1, and the remaining $50,000 ninety-six hours before the contest.

Mack proposed to have the bout at Braves field, which can accommodate a fight crowd of 70,000.

Schaaf is scheduled to box Giacomo Bergomas at the Boston arena a week from tonight.

1932 SCHEDULES NOW ASSUMING TANGIBLE FORM

New Rivalries To Be Started, Old Ones Resumed Next Fall.

By The Associated Press.

With the current gridiron season nearing its end, the college schedule makers are busy mapping out the football program for 1932.

As usual the intersectional games are much in evidence, although several teams plan a strictly southern schedule. Georgia Tech, which has played Carnegie Tech and Pennsylvania for the past two years, expects to have a complete Southern conference lineup of about 10 games. However, the Engineers have a post-season intersectional charity game with California to be played, probably in Berkeley, next December.

North Carolina State will oppose Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh October 22. Alabama is to play George Washington University at Washington October 8, and will resume its rivalry with Georgia Tech. It also is understood that Alabama may play Georgia again next season if a date can be arranged.

Kentucky is among those teams on Georgia Tech's schedule, and the Wildcats have been mentioned as a probable opponent of Tulane next year. The Greenies will have their usual games with Georgia, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Auburn.

Duke has signed a two-year contract with Auburn with the first game to be played somewhere in Alabama on October 8, 1932. North Carolina and Tennessee also have agreed on a two-year contract, with next year's game set for Knoxville. The Volunteers will play Alabama, Vanderbilt, Kentucky and Duke among the conference elevens.

Florida will have Georgia Tech as its home-coming opponent at Gainesville November 17. The 'Gators, who played U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles this year, will entertain the Californians at Gainesville in December, 1932. Florida retains most of its Southern conference foes of this season for another year.

Another new game for next year finds Maryland meeting Duke. Centre, of Kentucky, is to meet Boston College and also is considering another eastern game with Brown, Pittsburgh or Villanova.

Loyola is to play Baylor in New Orleans October 7 and Rice Institute at Houston October 25.

HEAVY HITTER.

Although his big club was practically silent throughout the first three months of the season, Joe Hauser, of the Baltimore Orioles, again led the International league in home runs with 31. Last year he had twice as many.

AD VALOREM LOSSES INDICATED IN RETURNS

Although tax officials do not regard it as an infallible barometer of what the final check-up will be, state officialdom is apprehensive over a one-third decrease in the collection of ad valorem taxes this year as compared with both 1929 and 1930.

Collections for the period up to and including December 8 amounted to only 6 per cent of the total digest charges, as compared with collections of 9 per cent both in 1929 and in 1930. While there was a decrease in valuations both in 1930 as compared with 1929 and in 1931 as compared with 1930, the decrease in digest charges in 1931 was nearly $300,000 as compared with $83,000 the previous year.

Collections to date of general, poll and professional taxes, through the office of the comptroller general, amount to $358,725.76. On the same date last year they were $550,107.29. In 1929, also on the same date, they amounted to $539,530.03.

HARMONY IS SOUGHT ON UNION OF BAPTISTS

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The executive committee of the Northern Baptist convention voted today to "reply cordially" to a memorial of the District of Columbia Baptist Association suggesting union of the North and South Baptist churches, separated since the War Between the States.

It also requested Mattison B. Jones, of Los Angeles, president of the northern convention and chairman of the executive committee, to appoint a committee to survey "the entire situation and to confer on the subject matter of the memorial."

Dr. H. W. D. Millington, secretary of the District association, who presented the memorial, said he interpreted the action as "the opening wedge" in negotiations for union. He has submitted a similar proposal to the southern convention, he said.

"There are no real differences between the two conventions," he said, "and I don't see why a union should not come to pass."

A reunion would bring together 5,200,000 Baptists first separated by social and political issues of the war. Religious differences, a leader said, developed later.

Official announcement of the executive committee action referred to the matter as "suggesting consideration of the question whether or not the time has come for closer relations and co-operation between the Northern Baptist convention and the Southern Baptist convention."

Dr. Millington said his memorial proposed a "union."

$65,000 DAMAGE SUITS GROW OUT OF CRASH

Damage suits aggregating $65,000 were filed in superior court and city court of Atlanta Wednesday as the result of an automobile accident at Glen Iris drive and Forrest avenue Sunday, December 6, in which Dr. M. B. Copeloff, 38, Atlanta physician, was injured.

Dr. Copeloff entered a suit against R. W. Moore and P. L. Webb for $35,000, charging that the car in which they were riding struck his machine and turned it over and that he sustained a fractured skull and other major injuries. His wife entered suit for $10,000 against the two men, alleging that she sustained broken ribs and other injuries in the accident. The Copeloffs live at 797 Brookridge drive, N. E. Both suits were filed in city court of Atlanta by Walter A. Sims and Joseph E. Berman.

The third suit was filed in Fulton superior court by Paul L. Webb, who asks for $20,000 damages from Dr. Copeloff for injuries he received in the same accident. He alleges that he was a passenger in the car driven by Moore and, contrary to the other suits, that Moore's car was struck by Dr. Copeloff's. The third suit was filed by the law firm of Hewlett & Dennis.

Compass "Shows Up" Bridge Contestants

Contract bridge apparently has done what politicians have failed to achieve over a period of nearly a century in so far as sectionalism is concerned. The internationally-famous marathon contract contest between the Lenz forces and those of Ely Culbertson has brought out this point strongly, according to advices from New York, which revealed there was no north, no south, no east, no west.

When the third night's play began some wag brought in a compass, took bearings and discovered that Lenz, after all, is not playing true "north" as his position is given the public. Instead, Lenz is playing "north-by-east," which throws the whole bridge compass out of box, making Jacoby, Lenz's partner, "south-by-west," Mr. Culbertson "west-by-north," and Mrs. Culbertson "east-by-south."

ABSENT WILL WITNESS HOLDS UP PROBATION

Humphries Refuses To Admit Dean Testament Until Nurse Is Found.

Because a nurse in the Mayo hospital at Rochester, Minn., the fourth witness to a will, could not be located, Judge John D. Humphries Wednesday refused to admit to probate the will of the late Robert E. Deans, wealthy Atlanta broker. Notice of appeal was given by Paul S. Etheridge, counsel for the claimants.

Judge Humphries ruled that the appearance of the nurse, or the introduction of an affidavit from her, was necessary. Dr. Stuart H. Shippen, Atlanta physician who was at the hospital and witnessed the will, was present in court, while affidavits from two other witnesses were produced. The hearing was a move by W. O. Deans, executor of the estate, to set up a first will of Robert E. Deans, which is said to have been drafted in Rochester, Minn., a month prior to his death. The will was contested by Mrs. C. S. Lechtenberg, mother of Frank Deans, alleged heir of the deceased.

Under the terms of the first will, it is alleged that the major portion of the property was left to Miss Reba Lawrence, his ward, and that the remainder of the estate went to his mother and brothers. In a second will, it is alleged a lesser portion was left to Miss Lawrence. This will was contested by Frank Deans, who claimed to be the son and only heir. A court ruled in his favor.

Young Deans died last week in Detroit, leaving his mother as his only heir. It was asserted Wednesday that a settlement has been made with Miss Lawrence. It also was charged that an attempt is being made to set up the first will so that Mrs. Lechtenberg will be deprived of the estate left by her son and obtained under the second will. Mrs. Lechtenberg was represented by Horace Russell.

Study of Markets For Cotton Goods Will Be Conducted

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—More and better ways of marketing cotton goods will be sought in an intensive study of distributional facilities that began today under the auspices of Textile Foundation, in Washington.

The committee on distribution of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York has been enlarged into a special advisory committee so that "every advantage and facility" may be available for the proposed research.

Walter S. Brewster, of the Cotton Textile Merchants' Association, is chairman of the advisory body. Its members include three others from the same organization, Leavelle McCampbell, Robert T. Stevens and William E. Winchester; Harry L. Bailey and G. Edward Buxton, of the Cotton Textile Institute, Inc.; Fessenden S. Blanchard, of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers; George S. Harris, of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association; George Hussey, of the Textile Brokers' Association; Henry G. F. Lauten, of the Textile Converters' Association; W. L. Pierce, of the National Association of Finishers of Cotton Fabrics.

The original committee on distribution began last spring a preliminary survey of problems of textile distribution. The larger body, it was explained, "promises the full co-operation of all interests and insures a report of great value and wide application."

Dr. Melvin T. Copeland, professor of marketing of the Harvard University graduate school of business administration, will be in charge of the survey. He had been closely affiliated with textile marketing problems for years, both here and abroad.

In 1919, Dr. Copeland was secretary of the research committee of the National Council of Cotton Manufacturers. In 1920, he started a comparative study of the operating expenses of department stores, which has continued since. In 1926, he supervised a study of the distribution of textiles.

NEGRO'S TRIAL NEAR END IN BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The defense in the trial of Willie Peterson, negro, for the murder of Miss Augusta Williams, prominent society girl, completed its case today with the testimony of the defendant.

Peterson took the stand and denied the slaying of Miss Williams and her companion, Miss Jennie Wood, on a seldom-used Shades mountain trail, claiming he did not leave home on August 4, the date of the double slaying.

The negro's appearance on the stand precipitated a clash between opposing counsel. J. M. Long, assistant solicitor, charged while Peterson was testifying that defense attorneys were responsible for his being carried to and from the courtroom in a chair.

Upon direction of his attorneys, Peterson bared his emaciated arms and legs, in support of his claim that it would have been physically impossible for him to walk to the point on the mountain where the girls were shot.

The defendant was preceded on the stand by a score of character and alibi witnesses, the latter testifying they saw him at his home the afternoon and night the girls were shot.

WOMAN ESCAPES DEATH IN CHAIR

WOOSTER, Ohio, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 24, confessed killer of Mrs. Clara Smith, of Ashtabula, escaped death in the electric chair today when Common Pleas Judge George A. Starn returned a verdict of first degree murder, with mercy. The verdict requires a sentence of life imprisonment.

Judge Starn promptly sentenced Mrs. Lowther to life imprisonment in Marysville reformatory.

Before giving the verdict, Judge Starn spoke for 45 minutes. He reviewed Mrs. Lowther's past life, and pointed out the unfortunate environment of her early years. He declared the crime of killing Mrs. Smith had been planned by her husband, Tilby, rather than by Mrs. Lowther. Tilby Smith was electrocuted November 20 for his part in the crime.

Twinkling Lights on Living Trees To Carry Message of Good-Will

BY BEN COOPER.

The symbolism of light in connection with Christmas will be emphasized by many Atlantans during the 1931 Yuletide season when living trees on the lawns of this city are illuminated with colored globes.

Each twinkling light will bear through the frosty air of Christmas week the message of good will transmitted by a glowing star to the three wise men. The spirit of Christmas cheer will be carried to all passers-by.

In previous years, residents of Decatur have strongly supported the Light the Living Trees movement. This year Mrs. J. C. Gleason, of 553 Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, is among the first residents of Atlanta's neighboring city to announce tree lighting plans. Mrs. Gleason said that she will light two trees and some shrubbery in elaborate fashion.

The campaign to light living trees is sponsored annually by The Constitution and the Camp Fire Girls. Excellent results have been obtained in previous campaigns, and it appears from the response that this year's tree lighting will be even more successful.

All persons who are planning to light living trees are requested to call The Constitution, Walnut 6565, or the Camp Fire Girls, Walnut 3738. Those who have lighted trees in the last few Christmas seasons and plan to do so again are asked to turn in their names, as well as new converts to the movement.

The Fairburn Garden Club will sponsor the lighting of living trees in the parks of Fairburn, and members of the club will light trees in their yards, Mrs. W. H. Roberts, president, announced.

$100,000 Fire.

TROY, Ala., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin early today swept the three-story Folmar building, one of the largest in the business district, with a loss estimated by the owners at $100,000.

Bandit Keeps Promise And Returns to Death

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The last time Carl Hein, 27, robbed an insurance company office he promised the manager, William O'Rourke, that he would return to rob the place again.

Last night he kept his promise and was shot to death by Sergeant Martin J. McCarthy, one of two policemen stationed in the office to await Hein's return. A companion robber escaped.

Two men held up the office October 7, taking $1,400. They returned on November 3 and took $500 more.

SEWANEE TO REBUILD DAMAGED HOSPITAL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, chancellor of the University of the South and president of its board of trustees, said today that plans would be made at once for the rebuilding of the Emerald-Hodgson hospital, which was damaged by fire last night with an estimated loss of $125,000.

Patients were removed from the building and none was injured.

Miss Gilmore Weds Jack Hall At All Saints' Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Louise Gilmore and Jack Wellington Hall took place at an impressive ceremony last evening at 8:30 o'clock at All Saints' Episcopal church in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends. Dr. W. W. Memminger performed the ceremony and Joseph Ragin, church organist, directed the program of appropriate nuptial music. Cathedral candles and white chrysanthemums featured the decorations. Brass vases filled with white chrysanthemums were placed at intervals on the altar against a background of palms and cybodium fern. Brass candelabra holding lighted tapers interspersed the foliage.

Miss Grace Woolford, who acted as maid of honor, was gowned in eggshell taffeta made old-fashioned style with square neckline, puffed sleeves and sash finished in a bustle effect. Three ruffles bordered the skirt and she wore slippers and gloves in matching tones. She carried a bouquet of red templar roses tied with red satin ribbon.

The bridesmaids, who included Misses Anna Glass, Mildred Camp, Louise and Elizabeth Howard, of Wilmington, N. C., wore absinthe green taffeta gowns made exactly like that of the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

George Burt, of Macon, Ga., acted as best man and the groomsmen included Sid Williams, Fritz Roberts, John McKeever, of Tampa, Fla., and Irving Hitchcock. The ushers were R. S. Parker, R. H. Jones Jr., Frank A. Cundell and Edward L. Gilmore. The bride's younger brother, John Gilmore Jr., acted as junior groomsman.

Little Miss Frances Earle Cundell, cousin of the bride, who acted as junior bridesmaid, wore eggshell taffeta with a sash of green made on similar lines to the gowns of the bridesmaids and maid of honor. She carried a white prayer book showered with lilies of the valley.

Bride Enters.

The titian-haired bride, who was given in marriage by her father, John Gilmore, wore the gown worn by her mother in her wedding, fashioned on princess lines of ivory-tinted alencon lace and mousseline de soie. The décolletage was V-shaped and lace medallions on the shoulders formed tiny cape sleeves. A panel in the back of the gown widened to form the court train. Her veil was of illusion tulle made coronet effect with a chantilly lace cap. Her flowers were bride's roses, white sweet peas and valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore entertained the wedding party and a small group of friends at a reception at their home on Piedmont avenue. Mrs. Gilmore, was gowned in white satin trimmed with red chiffon velvet, featuring a large bow in the back. She wore templar roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Joseph Cundell, grandmother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in black net and lace and completing her costume were crystal beads and a shoulder spray of valley lilies. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Frank Cundell, Mrs. Aubrey Mott and Deaconess Katherine Wood. Mrs. R. S. Parker and Mrs. R. H. Jones Jr. served punch. Miss Dorothy White kept the bride's book.

Bride's Table.

Centering the bride's table was the wedding cake made heart-shaped with an old-fashioned bouquet in the center. Four white swans filled with pastel shaded flowers were at the corners of the table and silver candlesticks held white tapers. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. J. W. Wunschow and Dr. Otto Wunschow, of Chattanooga, Tenn., grandmother and uncle of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Howard, of Wilmington, N. C., and Misses Elizabeth and Louisa Howard, of Wilmington.

Mr. Hall and his bride left for a motor trip to Florida, after which they will reside in Murfreesboro, Tenn. Mrs. Hall's traveling costume was of brown wool crepe combined with beige flat crepe and worn with a brown coat trimmed with red fox. She wore brown accessories and a shoulder spray of bronze orchids.

Inman Park Church Plans Reception for Dr. and Mrs. Lipham

Complimentary to Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Lipham, the Inman Park Methodist church will give a reception at the church Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The entire membership will participate in the occasion, which will be in charge of the board of stewards and the missionary society.

Dr. Lipham was recently assigned as pastor to the Inman Park church, coming from Augusta, and has met his new congregation for two Sundays. He has had pastorates besides Augusta in Newnan, Dalton, Milledgeville and Atlanta. The church is making preparations for a program in the auditorium sponsored by the president of the missionary society, Mrs. Clarence Bell, in which many will take part. Refreshments will be served in the church dining rooms.

Dr. Lipham has traveled in 22 nations of the earth and has gathered much of human interest. He is also a writer of note, having written a column in southern newspapers for years known as "The Peacher's Letter." This column is now running in the Augusta Chronicle and other papers.

Lovely Miss Anne Wynn Fleming, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Fleming, who was formally presented to members of the younger contingent at the brilliant dance at which her grandmother, Mrs. James Osgood Wynn entertained last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. Miss Fleming was introduced to fashionable members of the married contingent at the reception at which her mother was hostess at the Driving Club Wednesday afternoon, November 18. Sketched by Cleo Mansfield, Constitution staff artist, from a photograph by Asasno, Japanese photographer.

Mrs. J. O. Wynn Presents Miss Fleming at Dance Featuring Old-Fashioned Motif at Driving Club

Quaint bygone days, suggestive of crinolines and hoop-skirts, were reflected at the brilliant dance at which Mrs. James Osgood Wynn formally presented her debutante granddaughter, Miss Anne Wynn Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Fleming, to members of the younger contingent last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. The old-fashioned motif was effectively carried out in a color scheme of pink, black and white, with gay balloons in those colops decorating the slender white columns. Two long tables were placed before the alcove at the end of the ballroom in front of a background of palms, ferns and ropes of smilax which were studded with tiny electric lights covered with pink flower-like shades.

Oval silhouettes of old-fashioned ladies and gentlemen, done in black, bordered the tablecovers of pink gauze. A five-tiered cake centered one table, each layer being decorated with black silhouettes. An exquisite figurine dressed as a debutante of the crinoline period topped this masterpiece of the chef's art, and was dressed in crisp pink tulle, carrying a miniature shower bouquet. Two smaller cakes were at either end of the table, placed on silver salvers and trimmed with fringes of pink rock candy. Tiny figures graced the top of each, representing couples dancing the minuet. Six old-fashioned bouquets in silver lacepaper holders formed the candlesticks and held lighted pink tapers.

Old-Fashioned Motif.

Massive silver services for coffee and tea were placed at either end of the other table, which was centered by a low mound in the form of an old-fashioned bouquet of vari-colored flowers. Punch was served in the loggia from bowls wreathed in smilax on tables having flat old-fashioned bouquets as the central decorations. Dance cards presented the guests as favors were artistically designed in pink with black silhouettes.

A feature of the evening was the figure from an old-fashioned cotillion led by Thomas B. Paine, dancing with Miss Fleming, in which all the debutantes and their escorts participated. This was followed by a lead-out danced by this group to the strains of "After All," the latest waltz composed by Miss Jaqulin Moore, lovely debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, who is not only a gifted pianist and harpist, but a talented composer of popular songs. Miss Adelaide Fleming, attractive sub-deb sister of the debutante, and Miss Florrie Adkins, schoolgirl niece of Judge and Mrs. E. E. Pomeroy, stood at the end of the ballroom to separate the couples during the cotillion figure. They were in striking contrast, the blonde beauty of Miss Fleming making an excellent foil for brunet Miss Adkins.

Charming Debutante.

Miss Anne Wynn Fleming made a charming picture in her gown of pink lace posed over pink satin, fashioned with a square neckline in front and back and with the flared skirt forming a short graceful train. The lines of the gown were closely moulded to her slender figure to the knees where the skirt gained fullness through wide godets. She wore a shoulder spray of pink orchids and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of vari-colored flowers in a lacepaper holder.

Mrs. Wynn wore a handsome gown of black chantilly lace combined with black chiffon and completing her costume was a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Fleming was gowned in blue lace trimmed in blue velvet and worn with a shoulder spray of lavender orchids.

Miss Adelaide Fleming wore a bouffant evening gown of blue taffeta and a corsage of pink rosebuds, valley lilies and forget-me-nots.

Miss Adkins wore yellow taffeta tightly fitted with a flaring skirt and a corsage of talisman roses.

Hadassah Chanukah Campaign Benefits Penny Luncheon Fund

Today when Chanukah is being celebrated by Jews all over the world, Jewish children in Sunday schools and Hebrew schools are thinking again about Palestine. They relive these glorious stories being taught to them and feel their attachment to Jewish children all over the world. The life of Jewish children in Palestine today appeals to them strongly.

In hundreds of schools all over the country, American Jewish children are helping to make it possible for Hadassah, the woman's Zionist organization, to continue the system of school luncheons by contributing to the penny luncheon fund. This great piece of work got its impetus from the late Dr. Maurice Harris, of Temple Israel, New York, because he realized the necessity of properly feeding children before they are taught.

During the year just ended luncheons have been provided by Hadassah in 13 Palestinian schools and 38 kindergartens and have been supervised in two additional schools. Mrs. Hyman Jacobs, president of the Atlanta chapter, brings this report from the national convention and further states that 3,100 children, including 100 at Meir Shfeyeh, have received luncheons daily at a cost of six cents each. But because of this year's reduced budget, about 900 children have had to be refused these luncheons. The luncheon consists of a glass of milk and a pot of gruel and in many cases is the only meal the child received during the entire day.

Mrs. J. J. Hellman, the southern regional chairman, reported a story told by Mrs. A. Lamport, the national school luncheons chairman, who attended the national convention held recently in Atlantic City, of an incident that occurred while she was in Palestine. A little girl was crying bitterly in the corridor of the school—but she was crying so bitterly as to awaken all one's compassion. So Mrs. Lamport investigated, thinking perhaps the punishment was too severe for such a sensitive tot—but the teacher said the little girl was crying because she was one of the 900 children to whom they could no longer afford to give a luncheon. This pathetic youngster surely needed the luncheon as badly as the others, but the reduced budget forced this unhappy occurrence.

The penny luncheon fund plays an important part in Palestine and it is one of the finest characteristics of Jewish life that children are taught to help themselves grow by helping others and their participation in the Hadassah Chanukah Gelt campaign is but another example.

WATER RATE CASE IS WON BY ATLANTA

The city of Atlanta won the water rate case being tried before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court Wednesday when the court ruled that no injunction would be granted to five property owners in the Oglethorpe University section. They were seeking to prevent the city from imposing a 25 per cent increase in water rates to pay for a special main laid last summer at the request of residents to alleviate a water shortage.

Those seeking the injunction were Roy Collier, G. Pope Huguley, E. D. Crane Jr., Forrest L. Fowler and H. E. Salter. They claimed any increase in rate was discriminatory. They were represented by T. B. Higdon. James L. Mayson, city attorney, for the city asserted that the petitioners paid no taxes, being outside of the city limits, and that if the rate were not charged taxpayers inside of the city limits would have to pay for the special main which cost approximately $13,000.

Kridel and the Irving Trust Company were named receivers. The petition was filed by the Harvey Brokerage Company, Inc., on a claim of $47,170.

The involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed by three minor creditors, Simon Manges & Son, Inc., claiming $320; Arthur Shiller & Son, $73, and Johnson & Faulkner, $700. They charged the corporation was insolvent and unable to meet obligations.

Atlanta U. D. C. Indorses Mrs. Kibler

At the December meeting of the executive board of the Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., held Tuesday Mrs. Forrest Kibler was unanimously indorsed as custodian general of crosses, following a motion read by Mrs. John A. Perdue.

The motion read as follows: "That Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., indorse Mrs. Forrest Kibler as custodian general of crosses, subject to the approval of the state executive board meeting in January, if it be conceded that the honor be awarded to Georgia by the general convention next November, and does not conflict with Georgia division's future plans for president general."

The ambition of Mrs. Kibler's friends to have her serve in a broader capacity is due to her outstanding work in the Atlanta chapter as treasurer, second vice president and recorder of crosses; a member of the state executive board for six years, and for two years has served as state recorder of crosses, where she did outstanding work, having won the cup both years for Georgia.

Culbertson on Contract

Using the Tools You Have.

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

In Bridge, as in war, victory does not always perch on the banner of the greatest army. Strategy plays an important part in the miniature battle of the pasteboards, as it does in that art, the practice of which gave it birth.

As I have pointed out, the four suits in a deck of cards represent four separate armies, and in partnership games the purpose of the partners is to so combine their forces as to accomplish strategic or tactical results; hence it is part of good card play to deceive the opponents as much as possible regarding the location of key cards. Frequently the success of a contract rests wholly upon the outcome of such maneuvers, as, for instance, in this hand:

Both sides vulnerable.
South—Dealer.

East was playing a contract of four spades, against which South had opened the diamond King. When the dummy was spread on the table, East could count his probable losers as two hearts, one diamond and one club—apparently a defeat of 1 trick unless by strategy he could turn one of his losers into a winner.

Winning the first trick with the Ace of diamonds in the Dummy, the Queens of clubs was led. Seeing all four hands, this willingness to sacrifice two honors of equal strength on an apparently losing trick seems rather inutile. However, it proved very effective, as North read the lead of the Queen of clubs as an attempt to establish a club in the Dummy. He placed the King of clubs in the South hand; otherwise, he reasoned, East would lead a low club.

Misled entirely by the Declarer's ruse, North played a small club, and East's singleton King won. Thus in a twinkling the entire picture was changed. Instead of four probable losers, East now had but two, both in the heart suit. Inability to get into Dummy would make impractical any attempt to further reduce these losers. East's correct following play, therefore, is to lead a low heart to the Ten spot after drawing the adverse trumps, and as the cards are distributed this play must win.

It is quite true that there is nothing certain about the success of the play outlined above, but if this course does not win, the Declarer must lose in any event.

The man on a desert island cannot pore over the comprehensive catalogue of one of our leading mail order houses and select the tool best fitted to his use. He must make use of the tools at hand. The same rule applies after the cards are dealt and the contract reached in Bridge.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is meant by triple valuation of a hand?

Answer: Any hand must be valued three ways:

1st. At its own bid.
2nd. At partner's bid.
3rd. At opponents' bid.

At own bid count honors and long suits. At partner's bid count honors, short suits and long suits. At opponents' bid count honors and trump tricks.

16-Year-Old Boy Confesses Slaying Woman in February

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A 16-page statement relating how he killed Mrs. Emma Cole last February in Fredericktown, Mo., when he lost his temper because she annoyed him, was in the hands of authorities today who arrested Amos N. Lewis, alias Theodore Dunn, kitchen boy.

Lewis was arrested yesterday on a minor charge. Police said he readily confessed to slaying Mrs. Cole as he was being questioned about the slaying of Miss Eugenia Vance, 55-year-old cleaning shop operator, whose body was found in a weedy field here Monday night. Lewis denied connection with the Vance killing, and later police said he had no part in it.

"I knew I had to have money to get away so I searched the body and found about $300, which I took," the statement said. It then related he threw Mrs. Cole's belongings into a mine shaft and drove to Flat River, Mo. He was traced to Memphis, Tenn., and thence to Sardis, Tenn. Lewis said he had wandered through Texas and "bummed" his way here, working in hotels when his money gave out.

Burgess Children's Stories

THE ADVANTAGE OF BEING SMALL.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The short may wish that they were tall,
Yet big folk sometimes envy small.
—Old Mother Nature.

Runty, the smallest of Unc' Billy Possum's 12 children, sometimes envied his brothers and sisters because they were bigger than he and grew faster. Like most children he was in a hurry to grow up, to be as big as father and mother. It seemed to him that nothing was quite so desirable as being big. But he didn't wish that this night. No, sir, he didn't wish that this night. For once he was glad he was small. It happened this way:

Unc' Billy had left him at the edge of the Green Forest to go over to Farmer Brown's henhouse, charging him to wait there until his return. Unknown to Unc' Billy, Runty had disobeyed. He had stolen along the Old Stone Wall behind Unc' Billy. He had seen Unc' Billy climb the wire fence of the henyard. Then he had stolen over and peeped through the fence and watched Unc' Billy rainly try to get into the henhouse through the little doorway made for the hens and which was partly closed by a sliding door. Finally curiosity got the better of Runty and he climbed that fence.

Unc' Billy was so busy trying to get into that henhouse that he didn't pay attention to anything else, and the first he knew of Runty's presence was when the latter piped up in a small voice, "Ah reckon Ah can get through that hole."

Unc' Billy opened his mouth to say no, then closed it without saying it. He wanted an egg. Yes, sir, he wanted an egg. Runty could get in there. Of this there was no question. How he might get an egg out to him Unc' Billy he didn't stop to consider.

"Yo' lend me yo' ears and listen close," said he. "Those hens are just big stupid birds and they will all be asleep up above yo' head. Don't pay any attention to them at all. Along one side yo' will find a lot of li'l places fo' nests. Yo' climb up and look in every one of them. If yo' find something big and smooth, that will be an aigg. The smooth part is a shell, and yo' can break it with yo' teeth. Inside is the real aigg. If yo' roll one off so that it drops to the flo' it will break; so be careful. Mah goodness, how Ah wish Ah could get in there! Look all around on the flo'. Sometimes there is an aigg on the flo' or in a box. Perhaps yo' can roll one where Ah can reach in and pull it out. Ah hope yo' can. Ah cert'ly hope yo' can."

So Runty squeezed through the narrow opening, and there he was inside the henhouse. Of course, it was dark in there, but Runty didn't mind this. He is used to the dark. He likes the dark. He had a funny feeling when he discovered all those hens on the roosts. He never had been near such big birds before. He wondered what they would do to him if they should discover him. But he soon got over this and began to climb in and out of the nest boxes.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

My wife often says that it is a husband's place to stay at home with his wife or to take her with him wherever he goes. It is a pleasure for me to stay at home with my wife and a pleasure to take her with me sometimes, but it is just as true that I like occasionally to get out and associate with my men friends. This pleasure is denied me, for my wife objects to my doing that. If I suggest that she go alone to the theater (I do not enjoy that pastime) she refuses. If I suggest that she go and spend the evening with neighbors while I go out with my friends, she refuses to go without me. In other words, all our evenings must be spent together or there is a family squabble. I see the other men going with their friends to ball games, clubs and even taking extended hunting trips, and they seem to enjoy such excursions. Although I am young and crave the same sort of pleasures, they are denied to me. Is my wife too exacting or is it my duty to devote all of my time exclusively to her? G.

ANSWER:

Yes, your wife is too exacting and nobody would argue that it was your duty to devote all your time exclusively to her. She is a very unreasonable young woman and she should be shown the error of her way. It is out of such mal-adjusted marriages that infidelities and separations and divorces grow. With a little time and patience, a little thrashing out of the difficulties, the matter can be adjusted. The husband must enter as sympathetically as he can into the mind of his wife. This is hard for him to do because he is young and inexperienced and therefore a bit wilful about getting what he wants. But let me explain to him that there are many women who feel a fierce animal jealousy of anything or anybody that comes between them and the men they adore. There are women, too, who have a very overgrown and overweening possessive instinct (probably these two things are one and the same) but for the purpose of the argument we shall treat them as two different manifestations of a consuming affection. The wife, being exclusively absorbed in her husband, must not let that fact blind her to an equally important one, that a man's love for his wife does not exclude outside interests from his life. The old saying that "To woman love is all of life, to man a thing apart," is one with which she has no acquaintance. She must learn it. She can and will learn it if she has in her husband a patient and sympathetic teacher.

Marriage is like any other partnership in which each individual retains his separate autonomy and his private tastes and opinions. Partnership simply says that together they will fight the battle of life, sharing its pleasures, its disappointments, its sorrows, and its heartaches, sharing share and share alike in the profits and in the losses. No partnership was ever conducted without some of each element. And surely the marriage partnership which is formed to conduct the business of the heart and the mind and the body cannot be expected to fare differently.

"No, not by chance
The pale moon flower
Works its white magic
For an hour.

Nor does it come
Without design
That love and pain
Are yours and mine."

Japs' Invasion Has Unified China, Dr. Tehyi Hsieh Says on Visit Here

Japanese invasion of Manchuria has served to unify the various factions of China as nothing in the last 20 years has done, in the opinion of Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, director of the Chinese Trade Bureau, Boston, Mass., who stopped over in Atlanta Wednesday night en route to Troy, Ala., where today he will deliver a lecture at the Troy Teachers' College.

Known as "the Roosevelt of China," Dr. Hsieh, a graduate of Cambridge University, is engaged in debating the Manchurian question with three Japanese speakers, and already has made appearances in 28 American cities.

"In the long run," he said, smiling, "Japan will find that she hasn't the proverbial 'Chinaman's chance' in Manchuria. Already her militaristic invasion of that province has served to weld together the opposing factions of Chinese, and today we are, for the first time in many years, one solid nation, presenting a solid front against the rapacious attitude of Japan in Manchuria."

Tongs Sign Peace Pact.

Even the two tongs—the Hip Sings and the Ou Leongs—long bitter enemies in America, have signed a peace pact and have solemnly pledged a Chinese boycott against all Japanese industry. In this connection, Dr. Hsieh explained that in the oriental manner of reckoning a generation is computed at 80 years.

"And this pledge of amity and solidarity against a common enemy," he added, "may well be bequeathed to the succeeding generation. Japan will find that its untoward action in Manchuria will act as a boomerang."

Pointing out the fact that in Manchuria there are 29,000,000 Chinese as compared with only 250,000 Japanese, Dr. Hsieh said that while it was true the Chinese reputation for warlike aggressiveness leaves a great deal to be desired in this emergency, Japan has reared its nation on a militaristic diet, with Caesarism, Chauvinism and Marxism as the idols of its rulers. China, on the other hand, he stressed, has been a nation raised on cultural and philosophical trainings.

"Japan is simply carrying out a policy of Prussianism in the orient," said the doctor. "It is merely a military attempt to throttle the whole Chinese nation through the device of Manchurian occupation."

"If this should happen," Dr. Hsieh warned, "it will ultimately mean a tremendous, colossal conflict between the white and the yellow races of the world. For this reason, if for no other, the United States must not stand by and allow Japan to overrun China. China appeals today to the American people, the American conscience and the American church."

Pointing out the determination of the Chinese people all over the world to fight the invasion of Manchuria, Dr. Hsieh said that $85,000,000 already has been subscribed by Chinese in foreign lands. "We solemnly abide by the principles of the covenant of the League of Nations—of which Japan was one of the founders—of the nine-power treaty and the sacred pledge in the Kellogg-Briand peace pact," he said, "while Japan assumes the attitude that each of these covenants is only a scrap of paper. Japan, therefore, has forever lost her chance for leadership among the nations of the world because of her audacious, atrocious, ferocious, rapacious and treacherous actions."

RAIN, COLD WAVE WILL END TODAY

Dixie, Drenched, Feels First Freezing Weather. Drouth Greatly Relieved

Having given Atlanta and its vicinity a taste of real wintry weather Tuesday night and Wednesday, the elements today promised milder treatment for this area, according to the outlook made public by C. F. von Herrmann, official weather observer.

Temperatures below the freezing point were registered here Tuesday night, causing a thin coating of ice to form on power, telephone, telegraph and trolley wires, resulting in numerous delays to telephone, street car and electric service, but by noon Wednesday all trouble had been eliminated and service was reported normal.

Today's weather will be considerably warmer and the rain that has drenched the city during the last several days will cease, the forecaster predicted. While the range in temperatures during the 24-hour period ended Wednesday night was from a low of 31 to a maximum of 41, today's readings should be much higher, according to Mr. von Herrmann.

The downpour of cold, sleety rain Tuesday and Wednesday did much to relieve drouth conditions in the local area, as well as over the rest of the south, reports from outlying sections stated. Particularly was this true in Georgia, where rivers and smaller streams that for months had been almost dry once more were flowing at normal levels. South Georgia particularly was relieved by a hard downpour of rain, which served to prevent a long dry record from being recorded in that section.

Electric Service Interrupted.

Almost a score of interruptions to electric service were reported to the Georgia Power Company late Tuesday night and early Wednesday, due, for the most part, to ice forming on wires or tree limbs, the latter breaking beneath the added weight of the ice and falling across wires, short-circuiting them. In two instances street car service was affected, but the company reported all complaints had been taken care of within an hour. About 300 telephones were out of order early Wednesday, but this service likewise was restored to normalcy before noon.

The Atlanta weather bureau Wednesday reported that thus far this month 4.54 inches of rain have fallen—an excess precipitation over the normal of 3.10 inches. The section, however, still has a heavy deficiency in rainfall, and only the unusual downpours of early December will prevent the year from going down as the driest in the history of the local weather bureau.

The unusually bad weather, with its accompanying low "ceiling," played havoc with scheduled flights of mail and passengers by airplane. Little flying was reported over a wide area in the south.

Although the sub-freezing mark was reached Tuesday and a drenching, icy rain continued to fall throughout the remainder of the night and early morning, temperatures Wednesday held steadily above the freezing point.

Heavy Rain in South.

Some of the heaviest rainfall was reported in south Georgia, a section which had suffered greatly from drouth for the last several months. A noon reading at Thomasville showed 2.25 inches the heaviest rainfall since last May.

Weather reports indicated that the storm had not reached coastal cities, although some rain was registered.

North Georgia and the Carolinas reported the only freezing temperatures in the south, and power company and telephone and telegraph officials were busy dispatching repair crews throughout the section. Ice forming on wires and limbs of trees, broken from weight of their ice coating, cause the trouble. Damage was not serious, however, officials said.

Other Sections Wet.

Rainfall reading at New Orleans was 1.89 inches early in the day, while Montgomery reported 1.20 inches. Mobile had only .62 of an inch, but Nashville, Tenn., reported 1.30.

Florida temperatures remained high, Miami recording 80 degrees, and rainfall reported in that state was slight. Miami had .12 of an inch early in the day. At Rocky Mount, N. C., Joseph P. Cross, Wilmington, Del., was killed and his wife injured when their automobile overturned as they drove through a sleet storm.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company reported damage near Buford, Ga., where 25 or 30 poles were down, undermined by the heavy rains.

In north Georgia the Georgia Power Company was forced to send out emergency crews to repair power lines which left several cities in partial darkness Friday night and early Wednesday. Ice forming on the lines was given as the cause.

Near Gainesville three 38,000-volt lines were down during Tuesday night, while Cornelia was in darkness for several hours due to a similar condition. Buford's lighting system also suffered.

Street car service in Atlanta, Hapeville and to Marietta was hampered by ice on the trolley wires. This handicap disappeared later in the day.

Other Georgia Cities.

Thomasville's 2.55 inches of rain was the highest reported in Georgia during the day but several other Georgia cities recorded a substantial fall. West Point, on the western side of the state, reported 2.20 early in the morning, and weathermen here said the rain continued throughout the day.

Bainbridge had a 1.78-inch rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 7 a. m., while Blountstown, Fla., south of Bainbridge, reported 2.78. Albany submitted an early report of .92. Montezuma, .97, and Savannah and Augusta light fall. The storm was headed toward Savannah, however, and both that city and Augusta anticipated heavier rain during the day.

Tifton reported a heavy downpour, as did Valdosta and Brunswick.

The rainfall at Athens, which bore the brunt of some of lower temperatures, was reported at 1.61 inches, while the mercury reached 30 degrees. Power service was off all Tuesday night and telephone communication was severely hampered. Highways leading into Athens were in similar condition to Athens streets, where limbs from trees and sagging telephone poles hampered traffic.

Wire communications with Athens were restored shortly after noon and debris of the storm cleared from the streets and highways. Power company officials worked emergency crews to restore service throughout the city. Moderating temperatures during the day dissipated all traces of ice.

On the Air Today

When Jan Garber and his orchestra are heard over a nationwide NBC network from Pittsburg, tonight at 9 o'clock during the Lucky Strike dance hour they will have added another large city to the ever-growing list represented by dance orchestras during these programs. At this time Garber will alternate with Ted Weems and his orchestra, playing from Chicago.

Walter Winchell, famous newspaper columnist, will continue to introduce these programs and contribute his usual interesting comment on the news and personalities of the day.

A talk from England by Lowes Dickinson, of Cambridge, on the subject, "What I Would Do With the World," will highlight the programs of the National Broadcasting Company on Thursday, December 10. Professor Howard R. Driggs, of New York University, will speak on "Laying of the First Transcontinental Wires."

At the height of the season for selecting "all-Americans" of one type or another, an "all-American radio team" has just been chosen in a compilation undertaken by Jack Foster, radio editor of the New York World-Telegram.

Foster sent out a questionnaire to his confreres throughout the country and received 132 answers. Included in the questionnaire were items relating not only to performers and programs but to news broadcasts of this and other years.

The first 20 questions asked of the radio reviewers gave the "all" team for entertainers, orchestra and announcers. The winners in the various groupings follow:

Dance orchestra—Guy Lombardo's; symphony orchestra — Philadelphia Symphony; male singer of popular songs—Morton Downey; female singer of popular songs—Kate Smith; male singer of classical or semi-classical songs—James Melton; female singer of classical or semi-classical songs—Jessica Dragonette; feminine harmony team—Boswell sisters; male harmony team—Revelers; dialogue act—Amos and Andy; master of ceremonies—Ben Bernie; sports announcer—Ted Husing; studio announcer—Milton Cross; commentator—Lowell Thomas; organist—Jesse Crawford; instrumental soloist—Toscha Seidel; all-dramatic program—Sherlock Holmes; musical program—Rapee orchestra with Virginia Rea and Frank Munn; comedy act—Gloom Chasers, the Colonel and Budd; children's program — Lady Next Door; advice to women in the home—Ida Bailey Allen.

DILL PLANS TO ASK FINANCING PROBE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(UP)—Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, announced today that he would ask the senate tomorrow to authorize an investigation of the refinancing of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

Dill has charged that the corporation contemplated a refinancing program requiring stockholders to contribute on a pro-rated basis to $11,600,000 of corporation debentures.

Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington, was one of the many members of the upper branch of congress to indorse the editorial demands of The Constitution that the methods of holding companies in consolidating business organizations and refinancing the stock, with resultant inflation of intrinsic values be investigated by the federal government.

CAROLINA HIGHWAYS UNDER ICE COATINGS

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 9.—(AP) Ice covered most of the Carolinas today as a light rain fell and froze, making highway travel dangerous and damaging communication lines.

Some snow was mixed with the rain in the western North Carolina mountains.

Anderson, S. C., was cut off by broken telephone and telegraph wires from communication with other cities.

At Rocky Mount, Joseph P. Cross, Wilmington, Del., was killed and his wife seriously injured when their automobile overturned as they drove through the sleet last night.

SPAIN APPROVES NEW CONSTITUTION

MADRID, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Spain's new constitution was formally adopted by the national assembly tonight and the members prepared to elect a constitutional president for the young republic.

It was accepted as a virtual certainty that Don Niceto Alcala Zamora, first provisional president after the overthrow of the monarchy, would be elected president by the assembly tomorrow. Plans were under way for his inauguration Friday.

As Alcala Zamora removed his card from the seat which he has been occupying as deputy in the assembly, his fellow members speculated on the next probable cabinet. Certain quarters indicated leaders had agreed on a coalition cabinet, probably headed by Don Miguel Azana, present provisional president, as premier.

The constitution, which already had been approved by the assembly, was adopted finally after 103 days of debate. It transforms completely the Spanish system of government. The official vote was given as 368 in favor of the document out of 466 members. The other 98 members in the chamber abstained from voting.

Eleven constitutions previously have been handed down to the Spanish people since the invasion of the Bonapartes in 1808, but the new instrument was described by its framers as coming from the soil, whereas the others represented the wishes of crowned heads, military dictators or restricted groups of aristocrats.

Outstanding stipulations of the new constitution provide for:

Separation of church and state.

Liberty of thought and freedom of speech.

Equal suffrage for men and women.

The principle of divorce and equality of sexes.

A single chamber legislature with greater power than the executive.

The recognition of the dignity of labor.

Stimulation of civil education.

The disavowal of war as a political policy.

The encouragement and protection of the small farmer.

The Marriage Racket — By VINA DELMAR

INSTALLMENT XLV.

When she had handed it over at the desk and turned to leave, the stranger spoke to her.

"Well, Irma, the pitfalls did get you, didn't they?"

She did not look around at once. It was only part of the fantastic foolishness that came with the pounding agony in her head.

"My God, Nell, you ain't denying the old folks, be ye?"

She would have darted an oblique glance to determine whether or not there really was some one speaking to her, but the hat was a bit fantastic, too, and jutted out queerly, preventing any view of the left hand side. She leaned against the desk where people were arranging tours to new battlefields and old chateaus. She closed her eyes, then opened them swiftly. Yes, it was really Bill Fitzroy.

"Bill, for heaven's sake! What are you doing here?"

"Seeing the sins of Montmartre on specially arranged tours to the dens of Paris. Competent guides furnished and champagne positively guaranteed with every stop. How've you been, kid?"

"Splendid. How about you?"

"Can't kick. How's your child?"

"O, he's fine, Bill."

"I'm glad of that."

"How long are you going to be here?"

"Till Friday. I've been here almost a week. They can keep this damn town as far as I'm concerned. I'll be glad to be America bound on Friday. The only sweet spots here are Elza Lee's and the Chicago-Texas inn. I think French food is one rung lower than ravioli, and you know what I think about that."

She smiled, managing to hold his gaze so that he would not notice her fingers clutching the desk. There had been a moment when her legs would have given away. To speak of being ill made the treacherous legs and painful head a reality. Perhaps if they were ignored they would tire of their foolishness. Besides, to drop a casual "nice to have seen you" in passing would be no way to treat Bill. She knew that at any other time it would be a pleasure to hear again his amusing line, but now—good God, it was impossible to stand any longer, and it was impossible to go blithely on her way with an airy, "See you again." To admit she was ill would sound to him like a flimsy alibi for giving an old friend the ritz. She had a sudden inspiration.

"What are you doing right now, Bill?"

"I was taking a walk."

"Come home and have luncheon with me, will you?"

"Will I? Say, that's what I call a welcome invitation. I haven't seen anybody in a week that I could say anything to except 'entrez' and 'l'addition.'"

In the taxi Irma took off the fur piece and the annoying hat. It was a joy to be sitting down and to be on the way home.

"How long have you been here, kid?" Bill was gazing at her in awe. She had given her address to the driver in French and Bill was deeply impressed.

"Just a year yesterday."

"A year. I guess you know the town pretty well."

"Pretty well."

Bill laughed.

"What's the joke?"

"You'll probably take a swat at me if I tell you. I was just thinking that some time you could drop in on Wallace and tell him what Paris is like. If I remember correctly, he didn't see much of it. There's a chance here to use the word 'ironic,' but I never seem to be able to work it into a sentence."

She ignored the reference to Wallace's touch and go trip to Paris. "How is Wallace?" she asked.

"He's fine. He never changes any. You know how he is."

"Do I? I haven't seen him in over two years. Say, here's something I often wondered: How is Mildred and how did her marriage turn out?"

"Mildred? She's fine. She's got a baby about a year old. She and Scott are happy together, I guess. They're a strange couple of kids."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, for one thing, they bought a house out in jumping-off place. Scott had some money so they decided to buy a house. There was a cute one with a green bathroom and a blue kitchen sink and automatic garage doors right close to the movies and the stores. I thought they'd eat it up."

"Didn't they like it?"

"They did, like hell! They found out that for the same money they could get an old house with a couple acres of ground ten miles away, so they bought that. Mildred said the ground would be swell for babies to play on, and Scott said the old house was built better. You know, Irma, it's not normal for two kids to use so much sense."

"It is funny, isn't it?"

"Funny? It's weird. You ought to see that kid of Mildred's. He took first prize in the Thrace Healthy Baby show. Mildred's the damnedest young girl I ever saw. She's taken on marriage in a big way and how."

"Are Wallace and she friends?"

"Sure, they're friends. He's the proudest grandfather you ever saw. Every time I see him he tells me about Scott and Mildred and young Scott. I pity myself when the baby starts to say cute things."

Irma felt a sensation close to fury battling itself toward her lips. She wanted to scream at this friend of Wallace's and tell him she hoped Wallace and all his blood relatives in Thrace dropped dead. It was like Wallace to become Scott Avery's greatest admirer and to take credit for having picked a sensible, steady young man for Mildred. It was like him to boast all over Thrace about their baby when he had never given a thought to his own. Well, Martin didn't need his love. Martin could do without it. Some day when Martin was a great man Wallace would wish that he had paid some attention to his son.

"What's the matter, Irma?"

"Nothing, Bill, why?" She pressed her hands against the aching temples. Fury added to the hot agony and she wondered if Bill could hear the countless drum beats that sounded in her ears.

"You're so quiet."

"I've been thinking of Mildred."

"And I've been thinking of you."

"What have you been thinking? O, wait, here we are. Tell me upstairs."

They stepped into the little gilded elevator and flew skyward. It was a lovely feeling to be home. Jeanne took their hats and disappeared. Marie led Bill to the living room and left him. Irma went to swallow some aspirin and immediately felt better because she believed that shortly the pain would lessen.

Neither the Lebeaus nor Russell had arrived. That was a blessing. She could lie for a while on the sofa listening to Bill's pleasant voice and giving the aspirin a chance.

"Very Gloria Swanson, aren't you, darling?" he asked.

"How do you mean?"

"O, the setting and the bunch of help and your clothes and what not. Say, do you know what I was thinking?"

"No. What?"

"I was thinking of the talk we had long years ago. Remember the day I told you about the three kinds of women—mothers, wives, and mistresses? Well, do you realize that I've had a chance to see you take a shot at each?"

"How do you know I'm somebody's mistress?"

He waved a vague hand at the appointments of the room. "Darling, your dancing wasn't this good."

"Come clean, Bill. Wallace told you."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Security and commodity markets reacted again today, stocks finally breaking through the October 5 lows, as measured by the averages.

Emergency tax plans of the federal government to help meet the deficit, a gloomy crop of trade reports and further unfavorable railroad dividend news appeared to bear down the spirits of traders and investors who dribbled their offerings into a market that offered feeble resistance at best. The volume of 2,272,189 shares was the largest in just a month, but nevertheless too small to indicate a "selling climax."

The Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite of 90 issues closed at 69.7 compared with the old low of 70, the day's net loss being 1.9. Final prices generally were up from the mid-afternoon minimums. Bonds weakened and wheat lost more than 2 cents a bushel.

Wall Street had been prepared for higher taxes, both of the income and excise variety; a large section of financial opinion has held that too much reliance should not be placed on borrowing by the treasury. Nevertheless, the advances proposed were sweeping and probably contained some element of surprise.

Quoted values of railroad securities continued to crumble. New York Central failed to declare the quarterly payment due at this time, but the directors decided to make the dividend meeting semi-annual until business improves, thus leaving the door open to a possible payment next May without formally taking the stock off a dividend basis. Great Northern reduced its semi-annual preferred payment to $1, from $1.50.

The year-end shrinkage in many lines of trade is being felt by the steel industry, which currently, according to Iron Age, is running at 26 1-2 per cent of capacity.

The new emergency decree in Germany and a slight improvement in the Reichsbank's gold holdings and foreign exchange reserves were reflected in a firmer mark during most of the day, although the quotation eased toward the close of trading. German bonds were lower.

Weakness in shares was well distributed. United States Steel broke under 50 in the morning, going to 48 1-2 and closing at 49 1-2, for a net loss of 1 5-8. American Telephone was sold when it was learned that the tax recommendations included a levy on toll calls above a moderate charge. The net decline being 2 3-8. Tobacco shares were obviously affected by the plans for higher taxes on smoking materials. In the rails, New York Central had a loss of 5-8. Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio were off 1 to 3.

Corn was down a cent or more and cotton lost 6 to 10 points.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON—The stock exchange was not affected by President Hoover's message. The market was swayed by the uncertainties of the continental financial situation. Prices weakened early on liquidation, but British funds recovered fractionally with sterling, which rallied on sales of dollars.

PARIS—The bourse reacted on the lower tone of Wall Street with losses of varying degree, some being fairly heavy. Trading slackened later and the close was heavy.

BERLIN—Boerse closed.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 10 points down at 5.70. Receipts 45; shipments 367; stocks 137,971.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Cotton was generally lower today under further liquidation of long accounts, combined with some southern and scattered selling.

January contracts sold off to 5.89 in the late trading, making a net decline of 8 points and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net losses of 6 to 10 points.

The opening was steady, 2 points lower to 1 point higher.

Liverpool was a seller here and after the early demand had been supplied, prices worked gradually lower. Trade demand increased slightly around 6.30 for May, holding the decline in check, but this buying was filled up and selling became a little more active later.

The market went off to 5.85 for December and 6.26 for May in the late trading. Closing quotations were at the lowest price of the day. At 5.89 for January the price showed a decline of 117 points from the high level touched on the rally of late October and was within 31 points of the low record for the season.

Part of today's selling was attributed to liquidation of old long accounts through commission houses. Southern selling was not very much in evidence and there was nothing to indicate any change of importance in the southern spot situation. The weather in the south was considered unfavorable for the movement, but there were some who thought the rains might be beneficial from the standpoint of the "season" in the ground. One of the private crop reporting authorities issued a report pointing to an increase of about 10 per cent in the number of boll weevils entering winter quarters this year as compared with last.

Liverpool cables reported continental liquidation and hedging in that market and said there were improved sales of cotton cloths to China. Exports today 20,312, making 3,277,098 so far this season. Port receipts 26,711. United States port stocks 4,652,425.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS CONTINUE TO DECLINE.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Trading was light in the cotton market today and price fluctuations were narrow most of the session with a slight downward trend mainly because of weakness in the stock market.

Cables were lower but little attention was paid to foreign news. There was some trade buying on the scale down which helped to support the market, and it is reported that there were buying orders under the market.

After an irregular opening prices gradually eased off owing to weakness in the stock market, and near noon showed losses from yesterday's close of 4 to 6 points. The market continued to ease off during the afternoon owing to the weakness in stocks and made new lows 6 to 10 points under the highs. There was a rally of 1 to 3 points at the end in sympathy with some late improvement in stocks. The close was steady at net declines for the day of 5 to 7 points.

Liverpool is due tomorrow 1 to 2 penny points down on New Orleans.

Liverpool cables came in 5 to 7 penny points worse than due and sterling exchange showed some recovery. Private cables stated that there was local and continental liquidation and some hedge selling with sterling showing recovery. Manchester cabled that there were improved cloth sales to China.

Brokers' Views

Cotton Letters.

FENNER, BEANE & UNDERLEIDER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—While the cotton market fluctuated over a range of less than 50 cents a bale, the trend was downward, with final prices around the lowest of the day and 7 to 10 points under the previous close. Cables were lower than expected even after making allowance for fluctuations in sterling, largely as a result of local and continental liquidation. There was some selling here by Liverpool in the way of straddle operations between that market and the local one. The spot houses and south sold moderately, in way of hedges, while there was considerable long liquidation by Wall Street and other outside interests inspired by action of cotton itself and weakness in securities and commodities generally. The fact cotton showed considerable resistance to weakness in other quarters furnishes little hope for early improvement and we doubt that more than moderate technical rallies for the more immediate future.

BEER & CO.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 9.—Liverpool cotton market was lower today on local and continental liquidation on recovery in sterling, being 2 to 7 English points worse than due when the local market opened virtually unchanged from previous close. The market was again narrow and quiet, and although the trend was downward, prices lost only about 5 points up to noon. Traders are plainly disappointed over the lack of anything of a constructive nature coming from Washington. It appears as if something was expected to happen as soon as congress convened and both sides are afraid that when something does happen it will be against their interests. Sellers realize that present prices are only slightly above the October lows, while a lack of constructive news is deterring buyers; hence, a waiting market all around. Nothing of importance happened during the afternoon and market drifted on to close with net losses for the session of 5 to 6 points.

Stock Letters.

FENNER, BEANE & UNDERLEIDER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Unfavorable news brought to the fore during today's session weakened the market's attempts at resistance. New York Central's action in postponing consideration of further dividends until next May was construed to mean the virtual omission of payments. The administration's proposals for increasing government revenues through excise tax on tobacco products, automobiles, theater admissions and the like, was not well received. Another item influencing sentiment in its present state of discouragement was the report from Chicago pointing to inconclusive action in the matter of railroad wages. We would take advantage of any further recessions for accumulating stocks backed by seasoned earning capacity and sound financial positions.

COURTS & CO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The stock market showed more actively Wednesday but again at the expense of prices. New York Central passed its dividend and Great Northern reduced its dividend so that the day's railroad developments continue along the now familiar line. Congress is down to work and the most immediate important matter before it will be the proposed reconstructed finance corporation recommended by the president. Reports from abroad are that the bankers representing the commercial credits of Germany are on their way to Berlin for further conferences, having agreed upon a united policy. Recent basic developments have been reasonably favorable, like the I. C. C. decision, the president's message and the progress made in bringing the German situation to a head, but the market has been more influenced by immediate matters in the way of passing of dividends and it is also undoubtedly having to absorb considerable amounts of sales to register tax losses, while at best December is apt to be a month of heavy prices. Under such conditions it is a matter of endurance and worrying along until brighter skies appear.

DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The industrial averages confirmed the downward trend in the rails in today's stock market session and established a new low level for the 1929-1931 bear market. The accumulated buying orders at the previously indicated resistance point did not prevent a slide into new low ground. In strict accordance with the Dow theory, which has been unfailing since the beginning of the bear market, a further retracement in the general stock list is now indicated. Precedent does not dictate the extent of any further recession. We lean strongly to the view that the decline from this point will be nominal, that necessitous selling will be easily absorbed and that an overcrowded short interest will bring about a violent recovery in the near future.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—While November resistance levels were generally smashed today and the market has entered new record low ground the manner in which this was accomplished encourages the hope that the heavy liquidation which has previously followed the making of new lows by the rail and industrial averages will not be repeated in the present instances.

The decline in stocks today through old resistance levels is undoubtedly a cautionary signal and we would continue to defer purchases along general lines though it should be realized that the risks on the short side are great. Sometime in the next few weeks we expect to see stocks at a buying level for a good advance early next year and this level should not be far under that existing at present.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The deferring of the New York Central dividend had practically the same effect marketwise as would have occurred had the dividend been officially passed, except for the possibility that several fixed trusts are not automatically forced to dispose of their holdings in this issue. This news, coupled with the announcements for taxes on many items which the public did not expect, was received unfavorably and reflected itself in the price of almost all stocks.

The increase in tobacco taxes will probably be absorbed by the companies themselves, so that it will have the same effect on net earnings as a price reduction. This should be most harmful to the Reynolds and Lorillard companies, although it will naturally decrease the earnings of American Tobacco Company and Liggett & Myers. Indications are that more situations of an adverse nature will cause liquidation on rallies and we do not look for any sustained upturn.

Grain Letters.

FENNER, BEANE & UNDERLEIDER.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Constant liquidation influenced by weakness in stocks carried wheat prices down about 2 cents net for the day and rallies were few and far between. Foreign news was more encouraging as a rally in sterling exchange partially offset a decline in Liverpool, which did not reflect weakness here yesterday, and Buenos Aires was slightly higher at midday after being closed yesterday. Kansas City reported some easing of mill demand and consequent narrowing of premiums, but still no indication of any increase in farm marketing. We remain of the opinion that prevailing wheat prices are too low, but realize that an advance must await improvement in surrounding conditions.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—More than 2 1-2 cents new slash in wheat values today came about from extensive general selling that accompanied crumbling of securities.

Contracts for May wheat, the principal future delivery, went as low as 54 3-8 cents a bushel, compared with 73 cents just a month ago. Export buying of United States wheat was virtually at a standstill, with Canada capturing the only North American overseas business, and with Liverpool noting urgent offerings of new crop wheat from Argentina.

Wheat closed nervous, 2 to 2 5-8 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 7-8c to 1 3-8c down, oats 1 1-8c to 1 3-8c off and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

Uncertainty over prospective legislation at Washington regarding exchanges tended to operate as a market burden, and so too did talk that until foreign financial skies were clearer the bull side would be handicapped.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat.

x—New 1931 lows.

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Bond prices again trod the downward path to new low records for the year and longer in today's market.

Led by the rails, which nobody seemed to want, both high-grade and low-priced issues continued weak throughout the day, with the majority closing at the bottom figures of the session. Sales totaled $11,076,000.

Practically all the United States government obligations registered losses. The treasury 3s made a new low mark for the year at 89. Foreign loans were generally weak, although the German 7s and 5 1-2s regained some of their rallying power at the close.

Postponement by the New York Central of its quarterly dividend affected the rail securities adversely. Reports of opposition at the union meeting at Chicago to wage reduction proposals, also were said to have aided the selling move.

In the rails there was almost a continuous string of minus signs.

The industrials and utilities lagged but little behind the carriers in hunting new lows.

Listed bonds, according to the New York Stock Exchange tabulation, declined in market value $2,190,140,539 during the month of November. On November 1 there were listed on the exchange 1,603 issues with a market value of $41,702,539,146. On December 1, the listed issues totaled 1,602 with an aggregate market value of $39,512,398,607.

It is figured that the average market price of all listed bonds on the first of the month was $751.90 per $1,000 denomination.

The par value of the listed issues totaled $52,547,476,192.

NEW LOW PRICES APPEAR ON CURB

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Selling quickened in the curb market today, and several leading issues once more penetrated new low levels.

The turnover aggregated 370,000 shares, 110,000 more than yesterday's, and the largest since November 9. Losses were largely limited to fractions, but a few issues broke rather widely.

The utilities were sold in considerable volume. Electric Bond & Share sagged 1-2 point to another new low, and the $6 preferred issue appeard at 52, off 8. It then recovered to 53 1-2. American Superpower and United Light "A" also yielded fractionally to new bottom prices. Duke Power dropped 6 points in a thin market, but held several points above its minimum.

The oils again held up fairly well. Fractional losses, however, appeared in Indiana, Gulf, Humble and Cities Service.

In the industrials, Mesta Machine was an isolated strong spot, rising 4 points, along with report of its transfer to the "big board."

TRADE TRENDS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

COTTON — Commencement of a study dealing with the marketing of cotton goods was announced today by the Textile Foundation. This is the second of a series of distribution studies in the field of textiles authorized by the foundation and will be conducted by the Harvard University graduate school of business administration, under the direction of Dr. Melvin T. Copeland, professor of marketing.

INSOLVENCIES — Business defaults for the week ending December 3 totaled 485, as against 395 last week and 527 for the like week last year, Bradstreet's reports. This is an actual increase of 22.8 per cent over last week, but when the normal seasonal rise of 20.7 per cent is considered, Bradstreet's says, "It is seen that the rise in failures this week is only 2.1 per cent greater than normal."

MACHINE TOOLS — Some inquiries and some orders believed the usual year-end dullness of the country's machine tool markets during the week, American Machinist reports.

TARZAN THE TERRIBLE No. 70

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Down a stone stairway leading to the chambers beneath the altar, Tarzan sped. Through innumerable windings and turnings of these rock-hewn tunnels he accurately retraced his way. Just as he believed himself safe from the searching priests and warriors, as he was rounding a turn, he came face to face with one of the grotesquely masked underpriests. Knowing what the fellow's intentions would be, Tarzan did not delay action. Before the creature could decide how to meet the situation, a long, keen knife slipped through him and his body lunged toward the floor.

Tarzan caught the falling body, and snatched the headdress from its shoulders. A bold scheme for deceiving his enemies had entered his alert mind. Stooping, he severed the tail of the Ho-don close to its root. Into a nearby chamber, from which the priest had just emerged, the ape-man dragged the body. With a strip of hide he tied the tail as securely as possible under his own loin cloth, adjusted the headdress, decorated with human scalps, upon his own shoulders, and again stepped forth. No one, unless they examined closely his thumbs and great toes, would have suspected his masquerade.

He had observed that these people sometimes carried the end of the tail in one hand. So he did likewise, lest the limp appearance of it, dragging behind him, should arouse suspicion. At last he emerged from the maze of underground passages beneath the temple, and came out into the daylight of the palace grounds. Here the excitement attending the impostor god's escape was still going on, and he mingled with warriors, citizens, slaves and priests surging to and fro. None gave him more than a passing glance, for the priesthood was allowed to go everywhere but the Forbidden Garden.

So, unchallenged, Tarzan gained the flowery enclosure, where, removing his disguise, he hid in the shrubbery while determining his next move. Suddenly he became aware that he was not alone in the Forbidden Garden. Soon he saw that it was the Princess O-lo-a, moving as in mediation towards the ape-man's place of concealment. Almost immediately, too, there came the sound of someone running across the garden court. The lovely daughter of Ko-tan also heard, for, looking up, she exclaimed: "Pan-at-lee! What has happened?" "O princess," cried the girl, breathlessly "they would have killed the wondrous stranger!"

PENNY CLUB DAY BY DAY

BY MRS. THOS. K. GLENN

In order that you may know just how much the schools appreciate the work done by the made work plan workers who are paid entirely with funds furnished by the Penny Club I am quoting a letter from Miss Jessie Muse, of Girls' High school:

"Mrs. T. K. Glenn,
"Penny Club,
"Atlanta, Ga.

"My Dear Mrs. Glenn: I feel sure that you will be glad to know what a very satisfactory experience we have had this past week with the group of men sent to the school by the made work plan. The men have worked in squads of from 15 to 20 each, unskilled largely, putting the grounds at the front of the building in good order. Under the guidance of a foreman from the school department they have plouged and resodded the yard, adding a new sowing of English rye, all of which represents definitely needed work.

"At 12 each day we have given the group a hot dinner of meat and vegetables, bread and coffee, which they seemed to enjoy thoroughly as they sat on the benches near the basketball court. Except that I had to get word to them that they must be quiet and not disturb the girls I think they were nearly ready to sing as they sat eating their dinner.

"I believe the idea of helping the unemployed in this way, paying them wages for work that is truly needed, offers the best solution we know just now of the great problem we are dealing with and I wish to express my cordial appreciation of the efforts you and the other members of your organization are making.

"Sincerely yours,
"JESSIE MUSE,
"Principal."

I know it must make everyone feel proud to read a letter such as the one Miss Muse wrote about the improvements made at the Girls' High school. The Penny Club is the only organization paying for jobs for the unemployed.

There are 3,000 Penny Club boxes throughout the city for your convenience. If you prefer to pay 90 cents a month or $4.50 for five months send your check to the Penny Club, 42 Edgewood avenue.

G. O. P. RELIEF PLANS ADVANCED IN BILLS

President's Friends Offer Measures Suggested in Messages to Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Material for the legislative struggles of the new congress was augmented today with the introduction of bills to carry out President Hoover's emergency economic program.

Accompanying them went other relief measures to which the chief executive is opposed.

The contest for direct federal appriations for unemployment relief, likely to be one of the bitterest of the session, was opened by Mr. Hoover's political opponents.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, republican leader, introduced a bill to carry out the president's recommendation for creation of a system of home loan banks; Senator Steiwer, of Oregon, sponsored his plan for refinancing land banks and Senator Walcott, of Connecticut, his proposal for setting up a reconstruction finance corporation.

The measures authorizing direct federal aid to the unemployed came from Senators La Follette, independent republican, of Wisconsin, and Costigan, democrat, of Colorado. They proposed appropriations of $250,000,000 and $375,000,000, respectively.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, the republican independent leader, introduced a bill to authorize a bond issue of $3,000,000,000 for road construction as a relief measure.

The La Follette and Costigan bills proposed to disburse federal funds through the states.

Other measures among the more than 6,000 that have already accumulated in the house and senate included:

By Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa—To abolish the gold standard and fix the value of the dollar.

By Brookhart—To give the farm board power to use the equalization fee.

By Brookhart—To prohibit short sellers of stock or agricultural commodities from using the mails or engaging in interstate or foreign commerce.

By Senator Hull, democrat, Tennessee—To repeal the flexible provisions of the tariff law.

By Senator Black, democrat, Alabama—To permit veterans to receive loans on their adjusted service certificates immediately upon issuance with no interest charge.

Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut—To change the definition of intoxicating liquor to permit beverages containing four per cent alcohol.

Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas. To make the buyer of liquor guilty with the seller.

ADEQUATE DEFENSE NEEDED, MALONE SAYS

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Major General Paul B. Malone, of Baltimore, commanding officer of the third corps area, said in a speech here tonight that the nation must maintain adequate defense forces.

"It is the part of wisdom and good statesmanship," he said, to maintain an army and navy sufficient to insure victory if the country is again called into conflict.

Nations seeking the same basic supplies must either consolidate or fight, he asserted, and added that there are differences of race, religion and custom that make consolidation unlikely.

M'DONALD SEEKS ECONOMIC PARLEY

Nations of World To Be Asked To Join in Conference.

BY P. H. MYRING.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A great "conference of governments" to investigate all the causes of the world's economic ills is contemplated by the British government, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told the house of commons today.

Declaring flatly that the conference would be held, Mr. MacDonald said the government would like to have it convene immediately after the banking experts now meeting at Basel send in their report.

One of the specific tasks of the gathering of governments, the prime minister said, would be to examine "questions of international debts which lie at the base of our currency problem."

"It is the view of this government," Mr. MacDonald declared, "that there should be such a conference and that it should approach its work in a spirit of realism."

The governments should examine all the facts, he continued, and should aim at an agreement "which will not merely tide over these difficulties temporarily, but will establish the whole world, now linked together by increasing social, political and economic deterioration on a footing of hopeful endeavor."

"This can be done," the prime minister declared, "only with a realization by all nations that whatever their own circumstances may be at the moment, their continued prosperity and internal peace depend on the peace and prosperity of the whole world.

"In that spirit his majesty's government will enter the conference and will use its influence to that end."

Mr. McDonald said he regretted the unnecessary delay in bringing the nations together to settle "these questions of international debts" that are fundamental to the British problem.

"This government is convinced, however, that any move to hasten this on its own initiative would have been fruitless," he continued.

The prime minister's speech was made in reply to a formal opposition vote of censure moved by Sir Stafford Cripps, labor member. The motion arraigned the government for failure to take steps to deal with the currency and exchange situation and for not producing a plan to cope with the problems of unemployment and high rent.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS COMMENT ON MESSAGE

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(Thursday.)—(AP)—Accounts of President Hoover's message to congress were given large headlines in London's morning newspapers, but there was little comment today. The News Chronicle, anti-tariff organ, said a deficit and unemployment in the United States proved the utter uselessness of a tariff as a remedy for unemployment, and furnished absolute proof of the impossibility nowadays of economic isolation.

KANE DISMISSAL PLEA OVERRULED BY JUDGE

BY HEYWOOD BELL.

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The domestic life of Professor and Mrs. Elisha Kent Kane was termed a "madhouse" by relatives of Mrs. Kane, who testified today as state witnesses in the professor's trial on charges of drowning his wife in Chesapeake bay.

The state rested after presenting testimony of domestic difficulties and witnesses who claimed to have seen the tragedy at Grandview Beach from afar. The defense immediately moved to dismiss the case on the grounds of failure to present evidence to convict, but Judge C. Vernon Spratley overruled the motion.

Although allowed to present testimony of relatives that Kane was a harsh and cruel husband, who boasted of his atheism, kept his wife in constant fear of him and made no secret of "affairs" with other women, Judge Spratley ruled inadmissible letters which the prosecution had indicated might play an important part in the trial.

Judge Spratley held defense grounds well taken that the letters involved a third party, who was not a witness and who could not be cross-examined. Defense attorneys contended that the letters contained statements allegedly made by Kane in a letter which did not make plain by or to whom it was written.

The defendant was assailed as a "powerful man and a bullying braggart" by Mrs. W. H. Graham, wife of Mrs. Kane's brother, who described the Kane home when they lived at Chapel Hill, N. C., as a "madhouse." She said he made his wife miserable with blasphemy and took delight in treating her brutally.

Mrs. W. C. Graham, mother of the dead woman, who collapsed on the stand in the preliminary trial, also said her daughter's married life was unhappy because of her husband's treatment and she described her daughter's look the morning of the day she was drowned as the "saddest look she had ever seen on the face of anyone."

S. A. L. TO PROVIDE MORE SHOP WORK

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A new contract between the shop crafts and the receivers of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, providing for a five-day week to give full-time employment for 2,222 shop craft workers instead of 1,800, was announced today by Ben Giles, president of Machinists' Union No. 10.

Mr. Giles said there would be no cut in the wage scale under the new arrangement.

The plan, which assures work for 118 mechanics, 86 apprentices, 486 helpers and 41 coach cleaners who otherwise would be jobless, can be ended by mutual agreement should the necessity for the arrangement end during the term of the contract in 1932, it was stated.

Wage rates continue at 80 cents for mechanics and 54 cents for helpers, with apprentices working on the usual sliding scale between these levels.

DR. M. T. SALTER TAKEN BY DEATH

Widely Known Atlantan Had Practiced Here for 45 Years.

Dr. M. T. Salter, 69, a practicing physician here for 45 years, died at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the residence, 3221 Peachtree road. He had been in bad health for several years and had been confined to his home for the last year. Dr. Salter retired from active practice about three years ago.

Born in Toomsboro, Dr. Salter came here following his graduation at a college of medicine in Philadelphia in 1882. He took a prominent part in religious activities and at the time of his death was a trustee of the Peachtree Road Methodist church, of which he had been a member for many years.

He also was active in fraternal affairs and was a member of the Barnes lodge of the I. O. O. F. He had held many high offices in this order, being a past grand noble of the lodge.

High regard for Dr. Salter was held by other physicians here and during his many years of service he had made a large number of friends in and near this city.

Dr. Salter married the former Miss Annie A. Murphy, member of a pioneer Georgia family, in 1882, soon after he came here to begin his practice.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, Dr. F. D. Salter, H. R. Salter and M. T. Salter Jr.; two daughters, Mrs. C. H. Westmore and Mrs. P. F. Cornwell, and one sister, Mrs. Lenora Caldwell. All of the survivors reside in Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

NEW YORK CENTRAL OMITS DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—New York Central railroad directors today omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 due at this time.

New York Central's dividend record has been one of continuous payment for more than 60 years.

A statement issued by the company said that in view of the difficulty of "prognosticating future earnings, the directors voted at the meeting today to consider, until business conditions improve, declaration of dividends semi-annually at the May and November meetings of the board instead of quarterly, as heretofore, these dividends, if declared, to be payable June 20 and December 20."

"This change in dividend policy," the statement added, "necessitated the postponement until the May, 1932, meeting of consideration of the declaration of the dividend heretofore declared at this meeting."

U. S. REVOKES PAROLE OF CANNON ADVISOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The New York Evening Post states today it had learned that a parole granted on July 16 to Harry L. Goldhurst, bucket shop operator and former financial advisor of Bishop James Cannon Jr., has been revoked.

Goldhurst was sentenced on October 16, 1929, to five years in federal prison on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy. When his parole was announced, Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, demanded that the department of justice review the case to determine whether "a blameworthy agreement" had been entered into by officials whereby Goldhurst would receive an early parole in exchange for pleading guilty.

Attorney-General Mitchell in Washington announced on October 12 that the department would review the case. According to the Post, Goldhurst was notified yesterday that his parole had been revoked.

Soon after Goldhurst's parole was granted, the Post says, it became known that it was recommended by Charles H. Tuttle, who was United States district attorney in this district when Goldhurst was sentenced.
